Belleville photographer Cyril Sharp is travelling almost 10,000 kilometers -- over 6,000 miles -- to take wedding pictures.

Sharp left Monday for Tokyo, Japan to photograph the wedding of Randall Lamorre, a former Belleville resident and Lamorre has been living in Japan for approximately five years, teaching English to government and business leaders, says Sharp. He is marrying Keiko Yamaguichi, was secretary to former Minister Nagasony.

In the past, the province funded 60 per cent of the total education expenditures in Ontario. Today, that percentage

Denyes estimates the Hastings County Board of Education is getting close to 50 per cent of its funding

Other issues, although all relate indirectly to money, wait quietly for the board. the world nears the twenty-first century, globalization is demanding higher expectations from secondary, and post secondary graduates to meet the demands for tomorrow's innovations and technology.

The key to staying afloat, and perhaps getting several steps ahead of the game, says Denyes, will be constant assessment and re-alignment of the Hastings Board of Education's mandate. Complacency can sink the largest

And come Sept. 1, Denyes will have some mighty big shoes to fill. Burle Summers is leaving the position and has accepted a position with the Ministry of Education. Summers' uncompromising value placed on solid curriculum will continue under the new education

Real men carry their own canoes

Saturday, Mid morning,

It's starting to turn hot and a few insects are buzzing around my ears.

I'm squatting on rugged rocks beneath an aluminum canoe wondering how on earth I got there and what I'm going to do next.

It all started with my son learning how to canoe. This father and son canoe trip is the result

How I came to be quatting beneath the canoe is another story.

Is another story.

It starts with being a man. A real man would take that aluminum canoe and swing it up on this shoulders and march off into the bush, ignoring mosquitoes, rugged terrain, sweat in his eyes and hard metal grinding into his shoulders and neck.

Right.

But first, I have to get the thing up on my shoulders.

And it weighs a ton by conservative estimate.

I'm getting ready for my third try.

The first time, I banged my head and the canoe wound up back on the ground. The second time, I got the canoe up over my head but do you think I could get it centred? It slipped away and now I'm looking at the canoe and wondering if I should try again.

Take a deep breath. Grab the centre thwart and the outside edge. Heave it up and over.

The thwart is digging into my right shoulder and the whole canoe is starting to slide over and down with the full weight of gravity on its side.

Hang on! Don't let it get away -- slide it over closer to the centre, ignoring the bruises on your shoulders and the fact that your knees are buckling under the effort.
There. It's properly settled.

There. It's properly settled.
The canoe is on my shoulders.
All I have to do is straighten my legs and start walking.
Except those 37-year-old knees don't want to move.
Come on -- be a man! Heave!
With each heave, I wind up squatting a little deeper as the canoe drives me into the ground until finally I'm sitting under the canoe wondering how I'm ever going to get out from underneath -- and, more importantly, if I'm going to try again. I don't have to. The other fathers just got together, each grabbing an end and carrying their canoes over in teams Stupid, some people call it. Women for instance. But that's the way men are. Macho, you know. I've done it before -- 10 days in the bush at Algonquin. And I'll do it again.

Okay, so it was 14 years ago and I haven't canoed since then and my knees aren't what it used to be.

But I'll do it anyway. I'll get that canoe up on my shoulders if it kills me. And it might. It almost does, but at last, I get the canoe hoisted up and I stagger off down the path.

It's a triumph of mind over matter. Of machismo over good sense. But that's men for you every time.

If our Over Coffee response this week is anything to go by, the general public is fed up with the post office. There is a sense that postal employees should be thankful to have a job -- and a well-paying one -- in a time when many are unemployed.

Of course, it isn't that simple, but we sympathize and even agree with the general sense of outrage.

What is wrong in the post office? Why can the postal unions and management never conduct contract negotiations without a strike?

We sense a poisonous atmosphere between labour and management that seems to make improvements to the crown corporation -- no matter how necessary -- impossible.

And why have both sides made seniors a pawn in their struggle?

We don't know what the solution is, but we're out of patience with both sides.

Canada Post's priorities

Canada Post's commitment to keep the mail flowing for its "large volume" customers is interesting because it reveals the corporation's

For "large volume" you can read "ad mail" or "flyers". And that's just what Canada Post delivered when the rotating strike hit Belleville. We didn't receive any first class mail either at home or at work. But we received our ad mail flyers right on schedule.

What does that tell you about Canada Post's

Canada Post's flyer delivery competitors. including newspapers such as Quinte Weekly News, have complained that the corporation is using predatory pricing and its monopoly on first class mail to build its ad mail business.

According to the Canadian Community Newspapers Association, first class mail rates are subsidizing aggressive discounting on flyer rates. As a result, the crown corporation increased its ad mail volumes by close to 20 per cent in an industry that was basically stagnant last year.

That's not right.

Treat delegations fairly

One of the jobs of the head of council is to ensure the observance of order and decorum. Who, then, ensures the observance of order and decorum when the reeve of Sidney Township holds the floor to browbeat deputations while at the same time chairing the meeting? The last time he attacked a taxpayer (and it wasn't the first time) was at the council meeting of Aug. 12. And there was nobody to tell him his behaviour was neither professional nor acceptable -- but then he shouldn't have been speaking at all.

Anyone even vaguely familiar with Robert's Rules of Order knows that the chair of a meeting should not be participating in the ensure that the proceedings are fair and orderly. As chair, the reeve should ask other members of council to respond to a question. If he believes it necessary to speak on the subject under discussion, then well over another council member. Shouting down a delegation is neither fair nor orderly. But this is Reeve Noble's style. He enjoys power and abuses it power and abuses it frequently. In this way he not only demeans the office reeve but demonstrated his contempt

Reeve Nobles is not worried about inaccurate minutes. He has no problem with letters to "reeve and council" failing to reach the other members of council. He is willing to leave off the agenda matters that embarrass him. He is quick to grab the spotlight when credit should go to somebody else.

But when he should be chairing the meeting, what is thairing the meeting, what is he doing? Vociferously defending his various boondoggles against all comers. Tyranny? I think so. Jackie Lachance

Animals have a good friend

The Editor

In this day and age it is hard to find people who care about others, especially animals, so the generosity of Mrs. Dawe of the Belleville Humane Society was a pleasant surprise.

Some people recently moved into my area with 19 thoroughbred horses and five colts. The animals were all in fine condition, but due to lack of rain, their pasture was completely dried up.

As I drove by I could see they had no hay, so I threw them a few bales, which quickly disappeared

I called Mrs. Dawe of the Belleville Humane Society to see if the Society had a service to help people with animal food in emergencies Mrs. Dawe immediately said that if the society couldn't give them son hay she would personally and authorized me to buy 50 bales.

The people were delighted to get the hay (and so were the horses.)

This hay helped them over a rough time of moving, dried up pastures and, due to our economy, slow sale of thoroughbred horses, etc.

They have now been able to purchase hay as have sold a horse.

Animals are lucky to have such a friend as Mrs. Dawe of the Belleville Humane Society.

My sincere thanks to

The New York Sun hired Barney Flaherty today in 1833. He was America's first known newsboy. He probably got the job because he could steer a 30-speed mountain bike through flower beds and scatter folded broadsheets faster than any other kid on Newsboys (and girls) are now a necessary part of any paper's circulation staff. A half hour before deadline, the editorial staff can also do a good job of circulating. But without carriers, how would their errata ever reach

In Barney's day a newsboy had to be able to read papers

Extra!" Now days a carrier yells only when you don't tip him.

I remember those times. "Read all about it. Fifty people swindled!" When I bought that particular paper and read through the headlines, I complained, "There's nothing here about a swindle."

The barker just turned and shouted, "Read all about it.

The barker just turned and shouted, "Read the Fifty-one people swindled!"
Newsboys today don't have that creativity. They just lob, "ground zero" being anywhere near your own or either neighbor's lawn. Reporters may have to stoop to scoop.

wanted to call a paper once to complain about this obvious lack of resourcefulness, but I didn't know the number. So when I met the associate editor on the street, did I give him an earful! He just told me to talk to circulation. Ya gotta be careful how you abbreviate that title: "Associate Editor."

"Associate Editor."

Sure, the bad news our carriers deliver is bad. But if that's all we're looking for, maybe we should have to grovel and search through the shrubbery. The good news is always that it could be well.

One new program will be "Fitness at Noon Time," a half program three days a week for business

Similarly, a fitness program specifically designed for seniors will also be starting up. George Patsios Low impact exercises geared to the physical level of seniors have been designed for the program.

The YMCA is also expanding into new sports areas, including soccer with an instructional course and indoor soccer leagues on Saturday and Sunday for all ages during the winter months.

There's a big interest in soccer in community. Patsios says.

Golf instruction will start in January with Port Hope golf pro Bob Keyes. The YMCA has purchased a net and tee off mats will allow beginning golfers to practice in the gym despite snow on the ground outside.

As well, the day care and nursery programs are also being expanded.

The YMCA is also planning to host its first annual invitational golf tournament on

Plans are underway for a Fitness Week in October. The public will be invited to visit the YMCA, participate in workshops and take fitness testing.

In addition, a steak barbecue and corn

At the end of the year, a basketball ournament is planned to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the invention of basketball by a Canadian.

Next year during the Barcelona Olympics, the YMCA and the city's recreation department also plan a mini olympics with one or two weeks of olympic sports competitions for all ages and sexes Meanwhile, registrations are being taken now for the fall program at the Belleville YMCA with programs starting Sept. 9, says George Patsios, chief executive officer of the

The YMCA is offering a series of 12 seminars on everything from drugs to AIDS, from stress to abuse, from teen

Families are suffering, Patsios says, because of the stress of modern life and the

The free Lifestyle seminars are a response to changes in society that are

The YMCA is branching out into other unusual areas as well.

wind and shade protection

Trees, shrubs and evergreens are some of your best tools for taming the elements, for shutting out the sun and redirecting the wind. So on one of those spring days when the sunshine calls you, take your notebook outside and assess the impact of the trees and shrubs in your garden in terms of sun, shade and wind protection.

What you are trying to determine are the patterns of shade that exists in your garding at various times of the day.

what you are trying to determine are the patterns of shade that exists in your garden at various times of the day and the season, patterns such as; 1. dappled shade, 2. alternate shade, 3. open shade, 4. medium shade and 5. deen shade

Dappled shade is best described as a drifting pattern of un and shade that exists under trees with open foliage such as birch or pine

Alternate shade is found in areas that may be shaded in the morning and in full sun in late afternoon,

Open shade describes an area where the sun never shines but is fully open to the sky, without sheltering shrubs and

Medium shade is usually found under a canopy of interlacing limbs and branches with open patches of blue sky, or in the shade from trees.

Deep shade is obvious a place where the sun never shines, usually under a heavy tree canopy.

One of the more enjoyable touches you can overlay on your plan is night lighting. Not just a functional floodlight or two under the caves because, while they will give you plenty of Illumination, their flat, harsh light is hardly flattering to your gardens. How much better to light up your outdoor life as you would the inside of your home, with plenty of light for high activity areas and soft dramatic lighting to highlight features such as a white birch, a rose garden or a reflecting pool.

Whatever your choice, here are some points to Make sure any area used outdoors at night is safely lighted, especially such hazards as paths, steps, low walls, terraces and pools

2. Locate some lighting out as far as the perimeters of your lot lines to call attention to particularly attractive plantings of other decorative features. In addition, you'll be surprised at how much they seem to extend your outdoor living space.

3. Make sure your lights are shaded or screened so that the bulbs are concealed and do not shine into your eyes or those of a neighbours.

4. Interesting textures such as the bark of a clump birch, a Interesting textures such as the bark of a clump birch, a textured fence or a stone wall will take on a new dimension when side lighted so that their surfaces are enhanced.

when side lighted so that their surfaces are enhanced.

5. Take plenty of time to plan your outdoor lighting, making full use of the pamphlets and plans available anywhere outdoor lighting is sold.

6. Finally, avoid colored lighting outdoors just as you would indoors. Blue light makes foliage take on an unusual hue and red turns green foliage an unhealthy brown, stick with the soft white light from large frosted bulbs and your gardens will be at their shining best.

Garden lighting need not involve a major outlay with an electrician or contractor. Easy-to- install low-voltage lighting kits are available both in your nursery and lighting Mystery and symbolism are also personified in the sparkle and sound of water and the hidden depths of a garden pool and there is nothing to complex about garden poor and there is nothing to complex about installation with or without flora or fauna. You can buy rigid plastic liners that can be set directly in the ground, or you can dig a larger pool and sheet it with a pool liner made just for that purpose.

ny your car gets thirsty for oil

Do you think your car may be using too much oil? One sign an engine is burning oil is blue smoke coming from the exhaust

There can be several reasons for this condition says Car Care Council, the most common being worn valve guide seals.

Here's why: The valves in a typical engine may open and close as often as 100,000 times per hour at highway speeds.
The stem of the valve, sliding up and down in a guide, is fitted with a special eal designed to permit only a limited amount of oil to pass. Some oil is necessary for lubrication, but too much creates oil-burning problems

Eventually these seals will wear, harden or otherwise fail. That's when oil burning begins.

Many of the conditions which cause an engine to burn oil prematurely are caused by vehicle neglect. One example of this is worn picton rings, which can wear out prematurely because of failure to change oil and filter regularly

Vehicle Neglect A Facto

Once the rings become excessively worn, an expensive "ring job" is the only remedy. With proper maintenance, however, an engine normally should go well beyond the 100,000 mile mark without needing new piston rings.

It is essential to check the engine oil regularly. If oil is over-full or smells like gasoline, it could mean it is becoming diluted with gasoline

Thus, the oil becomes thin enough to work its way into the combustion chamber, eventually to burn and end up in the atmosphere as

If you have to pump the accelerator to keep the engine from stalling, you may be pumping raw gasoline into the crank case This situation can be avoided by keeping the engine in tune. Aggravating the Situation

Misfiring spark plugs can aggravate a situation such as this because they permit raw, unburned gasoline to wash into the crank case. Not only does this create hard starting, it also celerates wear due to diluted engine oil.

Another factor in oil burning is a malfunctioning positive crank case ventilation (PCV) valve, which is intended to route oil vapors through the combustion chamber rather than permitting them to escape into the atmosphere. If the PCV system is not improper working order, it can be the cause of oil burning.

Excessive oil burning is a condition that gradually worsens and can affect other aspects of the engine. Like so many other car troubles, early detection and correction are essential.

8,000 lost jobs.

Some studies suggest that a government takeover of Ontario's car insurance system could cost up to 8,000 industry jobs.

How many will be in your community?

You may already be aware that the government has announced plans to take over Ontario's car insurance system. But you may not be aware of the potential impact this could have on your community and others like it throughout the province.

faster and customer satisfaction is high. Insurance companies, now showing profits for the first time in years, are, in some cases, applying to the government for permission to reduce rates.

Jobs lost. Lives disrupted.

Right now, the car insurance industry in Ontario, including companies, brokers and agents, employs about 26,000 people. And the very nature of the industry means that these jobs are located in communities throughout the province.

A number of studies have been commissioned to determine the impact on industry jobs that would result from a government takeover. The consensus is that after allowing for new government jobs that might be created, up to 8,000 industry jobs could be permanently lost...some of them quite possibly in your community.

Even if some insurance industry workers were subsequently hired by government, they'd have to move to wherever the government chooses to base its operations... causing immense disruption to families, particularly in two-income households.

Who gets hurt most?

The 26,000 insurance industry workers in Ontario reflect the province's multicultural diversity. In addition, more than half of them are women. If the government puts the industry out of business, it will affect the livelihoods of thousands of ordinary working people.

What's the government's reason?

A lot of people have asked why the government wants to take over the car insurance system. Other than carrying through with what may have been an ill-considered election promise, there doesn't seem to be any good reason. The current car insurance system, called the Ontario Motorist Protection Plan, appears to be working well. Claims are being processed

ECONOMIC IMPACT IN YOUR AREA

In the local communities reached by this advertisement, general insurance companies and brokers employ 190 people.

66 The current system of insurance appears to be efficient, providing quicker access to benefits and the right of seriously injured persons to sue, if necessary. As the saying goes, if it ain't broke, don't fix it.

Chris Lockyer Warden, Prince Edward County

66 My experience has been that any government-run program always costs more than similar programs run by the private sector. 99

George Zegouras Mayor of Belleville

Where's the economic sense?

Scrapping the current car insurance system simply doesn't make economic sense. By any estimate setting up a government-owned system will cost taxpayers millions of dollars, so government insurance would certainly not be cheaper. And if experience is any guide, a government-owned system in Ontario, like those in Western Canada, would have to be bailed out by the taxpaver.

Some people believe that with all the other social and economic problems Ontario faces, taking over the car insurance system should simply not be a government priority.

The government already has control.

Perhaps the best reason for the government not to take over the car insurance system is that there simply is no need. Through the Ontario Insurance Commission, the government already has complete control over prices and benefits. Insurance companies even have to apply to the Commission for permission to reduce premiums. So if the government already controls the insurance industry, why do they have to own it:

Can the car insurance system be improved? Certainly. But with the government's current level of control and the industry's willingness to co-operate with government, there's no reason why improvements can't be made under the present system.

What can you do.

If you agree that a government takeover of the car insurance system could hurt your community, you might want to tell that to your local M.P.P. (see below for the name, address and phone number of your local M.P.P.).

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT NOTICE

Commencement of Planning Study HIGHWAY 401, FROM 0.3 KM WEST OF HIGHWAY 37 INTERCHANGE EASTERLY TO 0.6 KM WEST OF SHANNONVILLE ROAD INTERCHANGE WP. 544-90-00

The Ministry of Transportation (MTO) has initiated a planning study for the construction of a solid median barrier with fully paved median shoulders along Highway 401, from 0.3 km west of Highway 37 Interchange easterly to 0.6 km west of Shannonville Road Interchange, in the County of Hastings. This project is being undertaken to reduce the potential for cross median accidents which have been occurring in recent years. The existing drainage system in a median storm sewer will remain in place. utilizing the present draining outlets. The median will be filled with granular and paved.

This study follows a Class Environmental Assessment process, approved for highway projects of this type. An Environmental Study Report will be submitted to the Ministry of the Environment, and will be available for public viewing; a further public notice will be published at public viewing; a further public notice will be published at that time. You are encouraged to contact MTO project staff at any time if you have questions or concerns about this project. If you feel, after consulting with MTO staff, that serious environmental concerns remain unresolved, it is your right to request that the project be subject to the formal Environmental Assessment review and approval process, possibly including a formal public hearing. The decision rests with the Minister of the Environment.

This project is being considered for reduced documentation If our screening process indicates that this project will not result in any significant detrimental environmental effects, then no Environmental Report will be prepared.

Comments and information regarding this project are being collected to assist MTO in fulfilling requirements of the Environmental Assessment Act. They will be maintained as a public data base and kept on file for use during the relevant studies. Unless otherwise requested, they may be included in study documentation which is made available for public inspection.

Speedway racing returns

Rob Istead will race in the 600 cc class this weekend

By Derek B

The thrill of flat track motorcycle racing is once again coming to the Shannonville short track next weekend.

Hosted by the Bayside
Trailblazer's Club, the quarter-mile speedway dirt-track races will attract competitors from all over Ontario and Quebec, says club executive member Rob Istead, also the 600 cc class 1990 winner at last

Istead says the flat-track race has been held for the past three years to replace the former Norm Carr Memorial, held at the Ouinte Exhibition Raceway for ten years until its

Next weekend's races are fully sanctioned by the Motorcycle Canadian Association

"Anyone that is a dirttrack fan or just simply loves the thrill of loves the thrill of motorcycle racing should come down and witness it first-hand it's the best flat track around," he says

Admission ranges from $8 for adults and $6 for seniors and students to children under 12 free.

Autograph madness and cards

Last summer Sports Illustrated dedicated a cover story to "Autograph Madness".

No matter where you go, if there's a star present, there will undoubtedly be autograph seekers.

TOP CARD

By James Hurst

Basic rules of good conduct should apply when seeking autographs: 1. Politeness, 2. Respect and 3.

Understanding.

Politeness -- Above all, if you are rude, you will jeopardize the chance of other fans to get a player's autograph. Always use the old "Please and Thank You".

The players will definitely appreciate it.

Respect -- If you could crawl inside a major league baseball player's head before a game (after fighting your way past the sunflower seeds and chewing tobacco) you would discover some tension. Naturally they're putting on their game faces and if you demand an autograph and they ignore you, perhaps they are thinking of their jobs.

Understanding -- Common sense should prevail here

If a player has to be on a bus half and hour after a game and can't afford the time to sign for everyone, be prepared for a "Sorry, I've got to go."

Ah yes, the question largely remains what to autograph. There wildly divergent schools of thought on the signing of sportscards

Some say under no circumstances should you get and solute say under no circumstances should you get and cards signed. Others profess no harm will come of it.

For example, most items signed by Mickey Mantle are worth about $100 including bats, balls, programs, sportscards and the like.

You can buy a picture of Mick for 4 per cent, get it signed and it will be worth $100. Getting it signed is a bit of a pain -- you have to be where he is and usually he charges $40 an autograph.

Some Mickey Mantle cards are worth $10,000 and some say if you can get those items signed they will be worth the same as the $5 picture.

Others disagree

Nonetheless, the joy of meeting the star, perhaps speaking briefly with him or her and taking away the memory could possibly be worth the wait or the price.

Survey asks agencies: Is emergency hostel needed in Belleville

next nine months to determine if there is need for an emergency hostel in Belleville

The survey has been forwarded to agencies, churches, Belleville police, Belleville General Hospital, Gleaner's Food Bank and the Salvation Army.

Roberts says each party is expected to complete the survey forms each, and every time, they encounter a client who is

The findings will provide a valuable base from which a strategy and framework can begin to address the situation.

What it all comes down to is us trying to get an accurate picture of how many people need emergency housing in elleville," says Roberts.
"It's really hard to tell at this point without all of the necessary data. But working at Youth Hab has made me very for youth in Belleville.

Many share her opinion, namely those who responded to a preceding survey conducted in April, 1990 regarding emergency housing.

Of the 85 agencies polled, 85 per cent responded with 91 per cent of those saying Belleville needed an emergency hostel. Three per cent said a hostel wasn't needed.

Some of the opposing comments from the three per cent were recorded as follows:

"A shelter will attract transients to Belleville" and "Chronic abusers of the system will misuse a shelter.'

Despite the negative mindset amongst the three per cent opposed, last year's study prompted more investigation of the emergency housing issue.

Roberts says data from this year's study will also provide numbers, ages and the marital status of those needing a hostel.

through, or did stay in the Quinte region, a lot of them weren't spending their money, says Welsh.

A big favorite among those who were staying in the Quinte region was camping at provincial parks in Prince Edward County, says Welsh.

"Camping isn't nearly as expensive as hotel accommodation. The savings really add up after a week's stay. I spoke with Don Buckholtz, superintendent of Sandbanks (Provincial Park) and he says park camping numbers are up this year," says Welsh.

Buckholtz couldn't be reached for comment

Andy Pruchnicki, chairman of the Belleville and District tourism committee says despite the drawing power of Sandbanks Provincial Park, there aren't any other natural tourist attractions of the same calibre in the Quinte region.

The area strictly depends on man-made events.

"We don't have Disneyland or Niagara Falls here in Quinte, We're not a typical destination. Most people come here on their way to somewhere else," says Pruchnicki.

To compensate this we have to rely on the Sandbanks and the fishing on Bay of Quinte waters and other major events like Belleville Waterfront Festival and Folklorama."
Ron Broadbridge agrees

Pruchnicki citing the success of several Quinte region events and the dollars brought into the area as a result.

"Shannonville Motorsport Park, waterfront festival, Trenton Bathtub Days, baseball tournaments and of course our fishing derbies brought in a lot of people to the area that wouldn't otherwise be here," says Broadbridge.

Indeed, says Broadbridge, some visitors to the BCC log cabin in Belleville were from as far away as Singapore and New Zealand.

Ironically, log-cabin visitor records show 10 per cent more visitors stopped by for information regarding the Quinte region: "In 1990 we had 2,226 stop by the cabin. In May, June, July and August if this year we've had to date, 2, 520. And out of that total we had more American visitors. In 1990 we had 64 people from the USA compared to 83 this year," says Broadbridge.

Blue boxes a success story in first year

By David Botting QWN Editor

Blue box recycling was a success in its first year of operation, says the manager of the Quinte Regional Recycling Centre.
Blue box recycling started in the Quinte area in September one year ago, and Richard Barrett says more local residents participate in the program, putting more material in their boxes than in comparable blue box programs around the province.
"We put more material in our boxes and our participation rate is higher," he said in a recent interview.

The key to recycling success, he said, is to make sure people have the proper information on what can be recycled.
"We've had really good coverage from the media," he said, which has helped to get the information to the public

The plant had some problems with contamination -- items that it couldn't recycle being included in the blue boxes -when recycling first started. But now, Barrett said, "people are pretty good about

The 35-ton load was returned so the centre could find the other half.

As Barrett says, the centre has to produce quality garbage.
"If we don't produce a quality product, we won't be able to sell it," he said.

And that is the goal of the centre: to sell everything from the blue boxes to be recycled into new products rather than fillies are harfell little. filling up landfill sites

Barrett is proud to say the centre has found a market for everything it recycles -even boxboard, which is collected here as a

Miracle lives in Terry Fox Run

On March 8, 1977 Terry Fox discovered he had a malignant tumor in his right leg. It was amputated above the knee to stop the spreading of cancer to the rest of his body.

Two years later, he enlisted the help of the Canadian Cancer Society: he wanted to run across Canada to raise money for

Sweet sixteen and ready to vote

You see? Give them an inch and they'll take an ell. Whatever that is.

In 1970, Canada dropped the voting age from 21 to 18. Now, just 20 years later, a royal commission on electoral reform is pondering the wisdom of dropping the age again, this time to 16.

Kids too young to be tried in adult court would be invited to vote.

"Hey, Dad. Can I borrow

the car keys so I can go

"Sure, son. Feel free to determine the future of this country. But don't forget to put gas in the car. And I expect you home before midnight or you're grounded." Can you ground a voter?

THE CRAYON VOTE

Seems the discussion of 16-year-old voters has something to do with the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, which prohibits discrimination on the basis of age.

"Why 18?" asks a spokesman for the royal commission.
"It's a legitimate question. Would it stand up to the

And thus, the foundations of the known universe shake

Why, indeed?

Why any age?

Why not pre-schoolers. As long as they can scribble an 'X' on the ballot. With a crayon Why 18?

Why, indeed

Why not older?

Say to age 25. Or 35. Or 65. Maybe only the dead should be allowed to vote -- they used to in Chicago elections.

VOTER ELIGIBILITY

Or, since age seems to be a Charter of Rights problem, maybe we should forget it altogether and base voter eligibility on something else, such as your car insurance. Voter eligibility could be based on premium levels. Let the actuaries decide who votes. If you're a good risk as a driver, maybe you're a good risk as a voter.

Maybe only the parents of 16-year-olds should be allowed to vote. Better yet, only parents of teenagers should be allowed to stand for parliament. It's good training for dealing with lobbyists, special interest groups, unruly caucuses, separatists and provincial premiers.

RISKY VOTERS

What is a good risk as a voter? My 13-year-old, having a clear eye for the foibles of his elders, is very concerned that 16-year-old voters might not take their vote with proper seriousness.
"What if they voted wrong?"
Tell that to the millions of voters who supported the Brian and Mike Show in the last federal election. Those who will still admit it.

Maybe we should have let the 16-year-olds vote

In honour of Ontario's youth

They're out there. Plenty of them, in fact

Ontario is fortunate to possess an abundance of young people filled with energy and vision, who see what needs to be done and don't sit back waiting for someone else to do it.

These are the young people who deserve consideration for the Ontario Junior Citizen of the Year Awards.

Jointly sponsored by the Ontario Community Newspapers Association and Canadian Airlines International, the Ontario Junior Citizen of the Year program has, since 1981, paid tribute to exemplary individuals or groups of young people between ages six and 18.

Junior citizens represent a broad cross-section of Ontario's fine youth. Some are honoured for their tremendous attitude in coping with illness or handicap. Some have identified a local need and have taken a leadership role by devoting an amazing amount of time and energy towards community service and betterment

Still others have been selected for responding instantly in a moment of crisis, or for the way in which they have shown kindness and compassion

Those chosen to receive the award, along with their families, are guests of honour at a luncheon in Toronto during the annual convention of the Ontario Community Newspapers Association (OCNA). Award winners are joined by Ontario's Lieutenant Governor for a family portrait at Queen's Park and are presented with $200 and a ior Citizen pin.

Many young people in our community are worthy of the attention and encouragement provided through the Ontario Junior Citizen of the Year program. Every nominee will receive a certificate stating that they were considered for this distinct honour and have contributed greatly to their community.

Say 'thank you' to the special young people in our community by filling out a Junior Citizen of the Year nomination form -- available now from this OCNA member newspaper.

Come and see us at 37 Pinnacle St. S. in Belleville. Let's salute our deserving young people

Columnist doesn't endorse use of firearms

The Editor: Although I can appreciate and understand the apprehension and fear of a stranger breaking into your home or place of business, I have to wonder about the last paragraph of David Botting's column in your Aug. 20 issue.

Surely he does not suggest that the bearing of arms by citizens could in anyway contribute to a ition to the problem

Having read every installment of Mr. Botting's column since the newspaper's conception five years ago, I find it difficult to believe that this is Mr. Botting's stand.

As an editor and columnist in a popular community newspaper, surely he is aware of the importance and influence of what he has to say. I trust that the impression that this paragraph left me with was not his intent.

The Americans bear arm at random because they have historically and culturally been taught that the sword is mightier that the pen. I hope that Mr. Botting truly meant the opposite... "and I've been thinking about it ever since."

Editor's note: Your impression is right -- Mr. Botting wouldn't endorse the use of arms. But the attempted break in makes him understand why some people turn to guns. Understanding is not the same as endorsement.

Honesty is a golfer's handicap

Golf great Arnold Palmer was born Sept. 10, 1928. Golf is a lot like life. You get out of one hole, then head straight for another. For the not-so-great like me, it's "flog" spelled backwards.

What a game, though. You spend a whole day with a hooker and your wife doesn't even mind. With me, it's the slice. Mine can cost more than my butcher's

Some golfers have large handicaps ... honesty. That's why the game is an why the game is an acceptable pastime for Sundays, according to Stephen Leacock. It's "a form of moral effort."

Leacock. It's "a form of moral effort."
In fact, many ministers are great golfers. And why not?
Look at all the practice they get keeping their heads down. I don't own a complete set of clubs, so caddies never tire of carrying my bag. What they tire of is counting.

That's one of the reasons I find carts better than caddies. They don't cost, they don't criticize, and they don't count. I'm told my problem is that I stand too close to the ball ... after I hit it. But I'm getting better. Frequently now I do hit is now.

I started lessons once but quit when the pro asked me to go through the motions of my swing without touching the ball. Heck, that was the problem I thought lessons would correct. Two can live cheaper than one can play golf. G.K.

Two can live cheaper than one can play goll. U.s. Chesterion called the game "an expensive way to play marbles." Still, I like it. I get to swat the balls more than anyone else. And for me, it's pretty cheap. I never hit them far enough to lose any.

When you stop to think about it, though, it's a pretty stilly game. Even that elusive hole in one presents problems. You can't cheat and record a "O" without raising suspicions. And it's expensive to mount as a wall trophy.

While golf must be healthy, pro's like Arnold Palmer are the only ones who ever get an answer to the golfer's prayer: "May I live long enough to break my age."

Blue box recycling celebrates successful first anniversary

One of the biggest hurdles, Barrett said, is to get manufacturers to accept a somewhat lower grade of boxboard. Manufacturers set high standards for boxboard, but he feels the differences are so minimal that the contact with the waste management board. The company is also responsible for marketing the recycling materials.

The Quinte Regional Recycling Centre, located in Trenton, is operated by HGC Management Inc., which has a five-year contract with the waste management board.

Participation in the blue box program has been steadily rising over the first year, says centre manager Richard Barrett. As of the end of July, the centre had received over 6,000 tons of materials for recycling. Barrett can track the time of year by the volumes and kinds of materials that are

When school starts up again, the newsprint volumes increase -- because of back to school advertising flyers.

When there's a heat wave, the number of cans rises. When there's a holiday, the amount of coloured glass rises -- multiply one wine bottle by 35,000 homes, he says.

And "Christmas makes everything go crazy," he said.

But there is still room for growth, Barrett says. The centre picked through both the blue boxes and the garbage of 50 homes for two months as part of a waste audit to see who recycles and how they perform. The waste audit found that some households never recycle and that those that do don't recycle everything the centre accepts.

Boxboard and plastics are the chief problem areas, probably because people aren't always sure what the centre will accept, Barrett speculates.

Volumes in all areas are rising, however, he said as people "are starting to be aware of a few more things" that can be recycled. The information campaign has to continue Garbage with quality!

Garbage. Where does it go when it leaves your blue box?

The loads, sorted into six separate compartments, are delivered to the Quinte Recycling Centre on Tripp Boulevard on the north side of Trenton.

There, the materials are sorted manually to make sure the waste is uncontaminated -- believe it or not, "garbage has quality," says not, "garbage has quality Recycling Centre Manager Richard Barrett. He has seen 35 tons of glass returned because a flower pot was accidentally included in the load. HGC Management Inc., which manages the centre under contract, finds markets for the recyclable waste. So far, everything collected by Quinte Recycling has found a market, Barrett says.

Most of the materials you set out in your blue box return to your home again, recycled into a new product. At least some of the glass, for example, has been through the centre several times,

When to talk to the landscaping experts

11. When To Talk to The Experts In the development of your personal decorating plan, you have by now collected a good deal of reference material and assembled a lot of ideas before putting on paper your personal landscape plan.

2,000 older workers unemployed

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

The new emphasis at the Older Worker Employability Services (OWES) is on employability, not employment.

Although the subagency of Community Care for Seniors can place workers, the job agency aspect of

of the priority list, says coordinator Wib Brown.

Instead, OWES has established two mandates to help older workers aged 45 and older in their bid to obtain employment: advocacy and consultation.

Advocacy by OWES in the Belleville community will raise awareness of the merits and problems older workers face.

Consultation further cements the gap between the problems and solutions, says Brown, providing selfassessment and interviews with the older worker to identify needs: retraining, health, education, career change or personal and financial counselling. "There are many avenues open to the 2,000 unemployed older workers in South Hastings. Many, however, have tunnel vision when it comes to realizing all of the possibilities in front of them," says Brown.

"That's where we come in," he says. "We can help these older workers expand their options by walking them through what needs to be done to obtain employment."

Once needs are determined, clients are referred to agencies that can professionally and properly deal with the issues of reentering the workplace.

For example, Canada Employment personnel are better equipped to steer an older worker to re-training programs or government-funded job re-entry programs.

Trenton angler misses top prize by minutes

nton's Evan Noack has heard the sayings before: It's not over til it's over, don't look back as someone may be gaining on you, it's not over until the fat lady sings. All those rang true for the ardent angler in the Great Salmon Hunt a few weeks ago. His 36,46 lb.

chinook sat at the top of the weekly leader board for weeks -- but in the 11th hour of the big event, with only 10 minutes to go to end the derby, Evan missed out on over $25,000 in prizes for first place.

Cambridge angler Heider Ferreira rushed to the scales in Port Credit with a salmon less than a half a pounder heftier and toppled Evan to a second place finish.

The difference between first and second place prize you ? Over $24,000!

Not to take anything away from the winning angler, but Evan has spent countless hours on Lake Ontario in a quest for the big one. To get beat with such little time left must be heartbreaking. Yet there's no doubt he'll be back at 'em next year with even more incentive and

LOOK FOR NEW WALLEYE LOCATIONS

Anglers who have found some tough going in search for walleye in the Bay of Quinte may be wise to change playing fields.

Fishin' bud Gary MacDonald, along with nephew

Rodger Elliott, have been displaying limit catches from ellers Bay. No trophy fish but some excellent table fare. Neophyte angler Mike Skelly, while hunting musky in the deeper climes of the Moira near Plainfield, was more than surprised when he boated a 7.5 lb. walleye that succumbed to his offering.

Not really that an unusual a catch as another friend, who took an 11 lb. walleye from the same waters ten years ago trolling a 12-inch sucker minnow. Good Luck and Good Fishin!

Dinner for conservation beats recession

Despite the recession, the eighth annual Ducks Unlimited Dinner and Auction attracted more participants and raised more money than ever before, says Gary Little, chairman of the organizing committee

Held at the Belleville Fish and Game Club Friday night, the dinner attracted 280 people, 20 per cent more than last year. It was named the William (Bill) MacDougall MEmorial Dinner this year after longtime the club member who died earlier this year.

Final totals on the dollars raised won't be in for weeks, but Little estimates that the auction will net

$5,000 to $6,000 more than last year. He expects the final figure to be well over $20,000 and probably over

The money will go to Ducks Unlimited for conservation projects across Canada

Little says the results are a credit to the promotional efforts of the organizing committee of 13 local people. As well, he singled out Jim Nelson, who donated his time as auctioneer, and Steve Bolton, who donated his time as the dinner's first professional master of ceremonies And Little wants to give credit to the people who came out and generously bought art and wildlife related items in support of Ducks Unlimited

"The people of this district who support Ducks Unlimited and its policy of preserving and enhancing wetlands for all species of wildlife have really put their money where th mouth is during this period of recession," Little says.

Among the auction highlights was a Ducks Unlimited A-5 Browning Hump Back 12 Gauge Shotgun, which sold for $1,850.

Top price paid for artwork was $850 for a limited edition signed print called "Hunter's Haven" by

Perpetrators of crimes are often hospitalized, or jailed. They leave the city; sometimes they die of natural causes or are themselves murdered. Ms. Woodcock had been dead for 48 hours. Cause of death was strangulation. Once again, the victim had been raped. Her Riller had gained entrance by prying open a sideroom window. This time he had left a clue—a single footprint, size nine and a half C, made by a pair of running shoes. On Aug. 21, 1983, a house occupied by Dorothy Fain, 70, burst into flames. Firemen did their best to extinguish the flames, but they were too late to save Dorothy. She was found unde and horribly burned on her bed. Dorothy had been sodomized and robbed. 'how to' guide to running for municipal office

"First of all you have to be ready to work hard if you're even thinking of running for election," he says. "Most people only see their elected (officials) at council meetings.
It's much more than that. Mayor George Zegouras and the aldermen put in many hours on committees, doing their

The first order of business for a potential andidate, continues Moreton, is meeting eligibility standards. You have to be a resident of the municipality for which you are running, a Canadian citizen and at least 18 years old on polling day.

clerk Moreton. Registration forms can be picked up at city hall.

Your registration has to be signed by 10 eligible voters. It can be submitted starting Oct. 8 but must be in no later than Oct. 11. Nominations will be not accepted after Oct. 11, says Moreton.

A four-day grace period follows to allow for withdrawals of candidates from the

"That gives us 15 working days to get all of the ballots printed in time for the first of two advance polls," says Moreton.

Of course, getting as much publicity as possible will help the public remember who you are and why you think you're the best man or woman for each of the opening jobs when they fill their ballots.

That's where advanting comes in

That's where advertising comes in. Candidates can only advertise in print and electronic media between Oct. 12 and Nov. 9. Otherwise, you're stuck with lawn signs and word of mouth before and after in your bid to get elected.

Of course, mass-advertising takes a lot of money.

Candidates are allowed to collect campaign dollars from businesses and individuals to help get elected.

In Ontario municipal elections, however, you can only accept contributions from businesses and individuals who operate or live in

And there are limits to what you can spend in your bid to get a council seat.

Those running for mayor are allowed to spend $5,500 plus 50 cents for each eligible voter. In 1988 that formula amounted to $19,480.50. Alderman in 1988 were allowed to spend $2,000 less on their campaigns.

Because the final eligible voter list is not finished, 1991 election campaign spending limits are not yet available, says Moreton.

The number of voters in Belleville this year, however, is expected to top 29,000.

Goldwings kick off toy drive

Christmas is still 106 days away, but Bev Hackett and the Goldwing Touring Association Chapter 'C' Quinte Wings are thinking about it already as they kick off this year's Professional Firefighter Underprivileged Toy Drive a little early this year. And with any luck, the venture could mean more stuffed toys under the Christmas tree for underprivileged children Dec. 25.

They're inviting bikers of all makes and manufacture to participate in the Sept. 15 Quinte 6th Annual Toy Run.

To enter, each participant must bring his motorcycle and a toy to registration at the Quinte Mall at 10 a.m. After registering, the motorcycle motorcade will depart from the Quinte Mall for a tour through Quinte, ending at the Belleville Recreation Centre for hotdogs and refreshments.

Hackett says last year's toy run attracted as many as 120 bikes to help area kids.

'It's really not that long before Christmas and this is a really good chance to help these kids have a good Christmas," says Hackett. "All of the bikers who participate in this have a heart of gold and really want to help. If he or she is a biker, they'll be there. It's great to see these people put their best put foot forward to help."

Animal testing for cosmetics may be banned says local MPP

By Derek Baldwin

Ontario Minister of Agriculture Elmer Buchanan says he intends to introduce new legislation at Queen's Park later this fall that may ban animal testing in the cosmetic industry

"We may ban it or simply call for further restrictions. Whatever the case may be, I am prepared to move on this issue," says Buchanan in

The Hastings MPP has met with a six-member committee from the cosmetic industry with laboratories and plants in the province. "I've met with animal researchers, animal welfare groups and the cosmetic industry. Many of the cosmetic industries told me they were attempting to move away from the testing of animals to make their

Gulf War taught new lessons to Canadians

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

For Canada's military, the Gulf War conflict was a real eye-opener, says retired Brig. Gen. Paul Manson.

United Way shoots for more bucks

While United Way campaigns in other areas are lowering their sights because of the recession, the United Way of Belleville and

And at the same time, the local campaign committee is dropping its door-to-door can such a canvass.

Ross McDougall, campaign chairman, announced the target at a press conference last week, admitting it was a "pretty ambitious goal for us." However, he said, in hard times there is increased demand for the services provided by the agencies supported by United Way.

The agencies we serve have made it very clear that we have to do better," he said. As well, the United Way has added two new agencies this year, the Canadian Hearing Seciety and the Community Development Council bringing.

the total to 24.

According to McDougall, more money can be raised in the area. He said an analysis of the amount raised per capita revealed that at $9.35 per person, Belleville was below the Ontario average of $14.18.

The goal of the campaign committee is not to increase gifts from normal donors by 14 per cent, but to reach more people than ever before.

And a door-to-door canvass is no longer the route to go. It simply isn't cost effective anymore, McDougall said. The traditional canvass requires hundreds of volunteers but only accounts for between two and three per cent of the total donations. However, McDougall says volunteers who have traditionally helped with the door-to-door canvass are still needed for the direct mail campaign in particular and for contacts in local businesses.

To achieve its target, the committee has devised a three point strategy to reach more people

A direct mail campaign will be directed to previous donors and other targeted groups.

Much more stress is being laid upon employee contributions, becoming the main thrust of this year's campaign. Small as well as large companies are being targeted for payroll deductions of as little as $2 per week towards the United Way. "The way to success is to get employees to give a cup of coffee a week," McDougall said.

Finally, the committee was completely reorganized last year for more efficiency and productivity.

The prime minister's popularity has dropped to such a point that even civil servants look good by comparison.

Traditional whipping boys for everything wrong in the state of the union from high taxes to bad breath, civil servants have had more support than one might expect for their strike

The non-partisan civil servants are making political hay by attacking the prime minister and the Tory government. Even people who don't like the civil servant strike are tempted to honk when they pass a picket sign that says "Brian resign" and "Honk of you hate Tories".

SETTING AN EXAMPLE

SETTING AN EXAMPLE
We have some sympathy for the civil servants, despite hardline rhetoric from leader Daryl Bean, who has been almost happily saying the strike will hurt seniors and the disabled and the unemployed, statements calculated to win friends and influence people.
"It's a matter of principle," pontificated an unnamed Tory strategist in a Toronto Star article.
Oh really

Why should the civil servants receive no raise this year when MPs vote to raise their own salaries earlier in the year? Why should civil servants be expected to set an example MPs and the prime minister aren't willing to set

"A lot of people in this economy got zero or less than zero this year," the strategist went on to say.

Unlike the MPs and the prime minister, who voted themselves a 3 per cent increase directly on salary and the equivalent of another 8 per cent in tax-free benefits.

"They are taxpayers who pay public servants' salaries. They want the public belt tightened too," the strategist concluded.

concluded.

So who pays the salaries of MPs and the prime minister?

If our members of parliament and prime minister had set an example, they would have an easier time asking others to follow suit. But the government blew it. And now it's hard to ask other people to set the example instead.

UNHAPPY TRUCKERS

Truckers are also unhappy with the civil service strike. They don't like the long lineups at the border. Which sounds kind of funny coming from people who blocked the 401 for days while motorists fumed.

All depends on whose ox is being gored, doesn't it?

My strike's okay, your strike is not

Ran into a businessman downtown last week, who commented that he and I were probably the only people left in Canada still working. Told him he was on his own. I was taking the day off.

Will the last person working in Canada please turn out the lights and shut down the photocopier when they leave?

'GIVE THEM AND INCH...

...and they'll take an ell -- whatever that is." That's what we said last week, so a reader phoned to explain. An ell is a measurement equal to a yard and a quarter. Whatever that is. I mean, we members of an older generation know about yards, but do our younger readers? Well a word is 86 ir blever.

Well, a yard is 36 inches.

Whatever inches are.

Well, an inch is ... aw, forget it. Go ask your mother.

Good first step

Quinte residents are proving the value of blue box recycling with one of the most successful programs in the province as we celebrate the first niversary of the program here. We can all take a pat on the back for the level of participation and the amount of materials we are recycling -- both are higher than in comparable programs.

The recycling system still needs work, however. First, more people need to participate. Over 86 per cent of the households in a survey of over 1,000 households participated at least once over an eight-week period. That's great, but almost 14 per cent -- around 6,500 households -- didn't participate.

Second, we aren't recycling all the material we could. A waste audit by the Quinte Regional Recycling Centre revealed that the percentage of box board and rigid plastics being recycled is lower than that of other materials, probably because of some confusion over what the centre will take. Recycling still needs to become second nature to us.

Third, more markets have to be found for materials. To make recycling effective, markets have to be found for the recycled materials. More materials are recyclable but the centre won't take them because there is no market.

Fourth and finally, we have to get beyond

Recycling is great. We can all feel good about what we are doing with the blue boxes, but we have to take it a step further and put a higher priority on the other two 'R's: reducing and reusing.

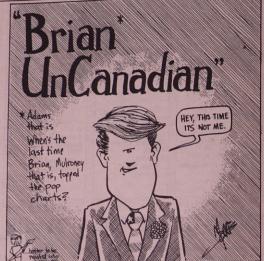

Would it be better, for example, to recycle glass beverage bottles -- or would it be better to implement a deposit system and reuse the bottles?

That's a question governments and manufacturers have to answer, but consumers -you and I -- can do something right now about reducing and reusing.

We can start by purchasing fewer products. When faced with a choice, we can chose products that are made of recycled materials, products that can be reused rather than just thrown away, products that use less packaging or more responsible packaging.

The best recyclers are not those who put the most out on the curb, but those who use the least before recycling the rest.

Reeve makes no apologies for serving the ratepayers

I felt it necessary to respond to the recent spate of letters written by Ms Jackie Lachance published over the past several weeks in your and other area

It saddens me that Ms Lachance has chosen to run for Sidney township council on a platform centred upon personal attacks upon myself.

Apparently, Ms. Lachance believes that this is the approach best suited to her run for council. Personally. I have no intention of entering into this kind of campaign. My record as a member of council speaks

I do feel, however, that the contents of her letter are misleading and unsubstantiated. Ms Lachance makes reference to a recent delegation that appeared before council and which discussed several matters related to the Bayside Water Project. Ms. Lachance criticizes me for taking time to provide the correct information to the questions raised by the delegation. Her suggestion that I somehow overstepped my responsibilities is indeed puzzling. Questions were asked and answers provided in a timely manner. With regard to our relationship with our sister municipalities, I can assure your readers that we have established a co-operative, professional working relationship with our neighbours on many, many

I make no apologies, however, for standing firm for the best interests of our ratepayers here in Sidney when it is required

Again, I regret Ms. Lachance's decision to pursue this negative campaign style because it does a disservice to the office she seeks, and in my opinion, makes public office less attractive to individuals who wish to serve their community in this manner

Don't turn residential areas into used car lots

The Editor We are petitioning Belleville City Council for an amendment to bylaw 12642, items 5.3(b), which states that an occupant of a residential property can repair his own motor vehicle. "The said repair is to be limited to one vehicle which shall be actively repaired."

This means that as long as he is the owner of the vehicles, anyone can work on a succession of vehicles buying, fixing, selling-in other words, to be in an unlicensed business in a residential zone.

As these people claim to be "hobbyists", these cases prove difficult and costly for city authorities to prosecute One recourse for people like ourselves is the noise bylaw. bringing in the police department at further cost to the taxpayer. When we add the lowering of property we realize that we cannot afford not to amend this

We defend an individual's right to do some repairs on his own car, but not to turn residential areas into used car lots.

We urge fellow residents to help us in asking for minor changes in this bylaw to protect our property

Be kind to editors and writers

SEPTEMBER 17

By Sept. 17, 1988, America was half way through a "Be Kind to Editors and Writers Month." Believe it!! I don't think it's an annual observance, but that's what September of 1988 was.

Writers are a maligned lot.
The fact that they write doesn't necessarily mean they can't earn an honest

James Thurber complained it took him fifteen years to discover he had no talent for writing, but had ho taleful fit writings out he couldn't give it up because by that time he was too famous. Unencumbered by fame, I made that discovery much faster than Thurber, by fame, I made that discovery much faster than Thurber, so I write now for posterity.

Writing is one of the three things everyone feels he can do. The other two are farming a small property and driving, a rig. Therefore anyone with half a mind to write a book

I enjoy writing. What I can't stand is the paperwork. And I've half a mind to write a book. But I also have this unrealistic dream of making enough money at it to pay for the content.

threating the copies I'll give away.

There are three basic rules for writing such a book.

Unfortunately, no one knows any of them. And what miffs undow, no me as I try is that while I sit staring stare out a window, no one believes I'm working.

I think one of the rules is not to send those large, stamped, self-addressed, return envelopes with your manuscripts. They're big temptations for editors. The best way to be kind to writers any month is to buy their books. It's more difficult, though, to be kind to editors.

After all, they're the people who write those unsigned newspaper articles that express the opinions of an editor and no one else. Their other job is to sort the wheat from the chaff of their writers, and publish the chaff.

Probably the kindest thing you can do for an editor is give him a pimp for a brother. Then at least he'll have someone to look up to.

BE THERE! When it happens...

Outdoor season closing

The golden sun of fall provides Nature with a gentle reminder that it is time to start shutting down operations before lock of Winter is turned on the land. It is also a reminder to gardeners that the outdoor season is fast coming to a close and that the long season of indoor gardening will not be far behind. Which in turn inspires the thought of salvaging plants to brighten the windows of winter.

It can be a good idea, but can also be a disaster unless certain precautions are taken. For example, one lost a lot of house plants before she realized that the Impatiens she had brought into the home were loaded with spider

The first steps in the salvaging of garden plants are undertaken while the plants are still in the ground. Begin by asking yourself what are you going to salvage— whole plants or cuttings. The decision should primarily be based on the amount of sunny window space available in your

Once that decision has been made, then start spraying the plants with both an insecticide and a fungicide, not once but at llasethede and a tingletic, not once out at least three times. And by the way, don't delay on these decisions. Begin the process now while light values are high and night temperatures are reasonably warm. As light values and night temperatures continue to fall, plant tissue starts to harden off, and tougher it gets to successfully propagate.

The temptation is strong to take fullrealize they are going to look pretty bedraggled compared with your house plants. What you should also realize is that they could easily double in size by next spring and occupy a lot more space than you bargained for.

However, if you have decided to take full - size plants, the first step is to cut them back by one third before you start the spray

After washing the roots, sprinkle them with soilless mix, plant in soilless mix in a pot slightly larger than the root ball. And by the way, before planting, put a small flat rock in the bottom of the pot for stability. Then quarantine the plants in the home in a bright cool for a month and inspect carefully twice a week.

Then spray again and introduce them to a sunny window.

I prefer to take cuttings. First of all they are the newest foliage from the end of the stem which means they will propagate easily. Secondly, as they grow, they will adjust naturally to the home climate. Finally, they take far less space than a fullsized plant and by spring will themselves provide plenty of new cuttings.

As with whole plants, begin by spraying two or three times. Then take your cuttings, about one-third of the stem tip, and remove all leaves except one to two on the tip, before inserting it to half its length in a four-inch pot of soilless mix.

Cover with a small plastic sandwich bag to creates a greenhouse climate, and set it in bright light, never sunshine. In three to four weeks, remove the plastic and hive the cutting a gentle tug.

If it resists, it's rooted. If not put the plastic back on and continue the process for a couple more weeks.

In any case, spray once more before adding to your collection and they should be yours to enjoy all season long.

'Pure Luck' falls short

Remember Second City Television? Remember the movie Three Amigos?

Both featured crazy comedian Martin Short. He was,

However, in his latest Universal Studios movie Pure Luck, Short, true to his name, falls "short" of providing a memorable performance.

Even with celebrated actor Danny Glover as co-star

(Lethal Weapon 1 and 2, The Color Purple, Places in the Heart and Witness) the movie just doesn't cut it.

The problem isn't the acting. It's the screenplay.

Written by Herschel Weingrod and Timothy Harris, it's fair to say the writing really stank in this film.

Short plays Eugene Proctor, the world's unluckiest accountant, sent on a mission with Glover to rescue the world's most accident-prone heiress, played by Sheila Kelley, who disappeared in Mexico while vacationing.

The theme of the movie is that bad luck is drawn to bad luck. Through a series of misfortunes Short finds the missing heiress. The theme is a take-off from the acclaimed film Le Chevre by French filmmaker Francis Veber.

But, Short's constant bumbling, tripping and running into things gets very tiresome as

But, Short's Constant bullmoling, urpping and running into things gets very tiresome as the theme disintegrates and the movie's pace almost puts you to sleep.

There are times when dramas or documentary-style movies can have you yawning, but when a comedy has viewers almost sleeping, it makes a person wonder what the movie business is coming to. Are the majority of Hollywood producers on qualudes or valium? Pure Luck is rated Parental Guidance (PG).

Brokers police their industry

By David Botting QWN Editor

"The consumer thinks we're just car insurance salesmen," says Barry VanZoeren, second term president of the Hastings County Insurance Brokers Association. "We're not. We're brokers now.'

The distinction escape consumers, but it has been changing the industry since 1981 when insurance agents became brokers.

The essential difference is that agents represented a company and the company backed them up if they made a mistake. Brokers are independent professionals who are responsible for policing their profession and take direct responsibility for their own mistakes.

The move, according to VanZoeren, made insurance brokers a self-governing and self-regulated profession like doctors or lawyers.

The Insurance Brokers

Association of Ontario has its own disciplinary body that reports to the superintendent. It can fine or suspend brokers or revoke their licences. "And it is Van Zoeren says.

Brokerages must also provide the association with notarized statements every six that cover assets, receivables, payables and trust accounts.

The association has agents who drop in unannounced to check the operation of a brokerage or handling of its Barry VanZoeren trust accounts if they think there is a problem.

Failure to report properly or mishandling of the operation or trust accounts can lead to fines or even suspensions. And if a broker absconds with premiums, the members of the association absorb the cost.

Licencing and certifi-cation, administered by the association, has also become much more stringent, as VanZoeren can testify.

A member of VanReewyl

Insurance in Belleville, he has been working towards the highest level of broker, which would allow him to operate a brokerage and hold trust accounts.

Soon, he will go through a stringent Removal Restriction exam. More than 80 per cent of those taking it fail the first time. Similarly, he took an advanced broker preparation course with over 30 people. Only four passed.

of the bride to cover the entire cost of a couple's wedding. But that is changing. For the first time, there's a definite trend toward the sharing of wedding expenses.

The groom's family, as well as the bride and groom themselves, are taking on a chunk of the financial responsibility.

One reason for this may be changing attitudes toward the nature of marriage. In this era of liberation, a bride's parents are no longer considered to be marrying off their daughter. Rather, the wedding is seen as the joining of two people and two families with everyone contributing to the

The actual dividing up of the cost can be done in several ways. An easy and tactful method is to settle on specific expenses in advance rather than to just split the cost of the whole wedding down the middle.

This year marks the ninth year the Belleville Runners Association has organized the 21 km and 19 km races, won by Simon Walker and Van Johnson respectively

Even card guides are collectible

One of the most important tools of the trade to the sports card collector is his or her guide — more correctly, his or her guides. Several are currently being published — and many have come on the market since the boom in collecting about two years ago.

TOP CARD

By James Hurst

The Hockey News, a tried and trusted weekly tabloid about the game, is now publishing a guide in its newspaper format called Collector's World. Rand Simon, its managing editor, has his finger on the pulse of the industry and always provides plenty of tips for collectors. His column also appears in the Saturday Toronto Star.

The Beckett Guides are actually an entire family of guides spawned by Dr. James Beckett from Dallas, Texas. Monthly magazines, guides appear for football, basketball, baseball and hockey, as well as its latest edition of future stars. Beckett's September hockey issue with Jaromir Jagr on the cover, contains an excellent article on Rick Meagher and the collection the local hockey star has amassed over the years. Tuff Stuff, a publication from Virginia, is also an excellent source of information. Tuff Stuff Junior, a spin off from the original, is for younger collector's and contains word puzzles and comies for the kids

Baseball Cards, Trading Cards, Baseball Hobby News... there seems to be an endless group of these guides. The granddaddy of them all is the Sports Collector's Digest. The guides provide suggested prices (not necessarily followed by dealers), the latest news about cards, investment tips, card show and convention dates and locations and interviews with players.

At his age he had come through a five hour operation involving risky abdominal surgery. The following day he was receiving a bag of plasma into his bloodstream. He instituted testing procedures which indicated that the plasma's potassium thevel was 30 times higher than normal. Terri was the nurse who had delivered the plasma.

"Our big problem at the moment is identifying the term cosmetics. Sunscreen is a cosmetic but most people wouldn't think so," says Buchanan.

Once identification is established, the emphasis in the proposed regulations will also call for the search for alternatives to animal testing in the cosmetic industry.

The Canadian Council for Animal's Welfare welcomes the push

The council June 9 presented a petition with 800 signatures to the minister requesting provincial and federal governments to "search for and validate alternatives to live animals in research and to make more use of existing alternatives."

Anne Boulton, president of the animal welfare organization spearheaded the petition and says faster and cheaper testing alternatives are available to end animal

For example, says Boulton, the Driaze Ophthalmic Irritancy Test should be banned because it uses rabbits to measure irritancy levels in the tear ducts. Using restraining boxes, rabbits' eyes are pinned open while cosmetics such as eye-make up are shot into their eyes repeatedly.

Boulton cites an alternative testing procedure announced earlier this year by the University of Waterloo that uses the eyeballs of slaughtered cattle to determine irritancy levels. "This is a viable alternative where you don't have to sacrifice and torture innocent animals in order to get good research results," says Boulton. "And the effects of this testing is just as good, reportedly, if not better than the driaze

"We're not against research — it is necessary and we do have to have safe products — but not at the expense of animals."

The council president says medical animal testing should also be included in any government ban or further restrictions

Buchanan disagrees.

He still firmly believes in the medical testing of animals, especially unwanted shelter animals, to learn more about transplants, diseases and medicines

'High technology has really come into its own and has never been more apparent than in the Gulf War. We found out how crucial it is to keep in step with the latest in technology.

Canada's three ships that were sent to the gulf were just too old to be performing the tasks at hand," says Manson.

On the other hand, Canada had every reason to be proud of its CF-18 fighter jets who accompanied air re-fuellers into Iraq's airspace.

Canada's CF-18s got the job done because they had the technology and ability to compete in the high-tech

"This aspect of the war was very fulfilling for me because I was the one who pushed so hard for the CF-18 to be brought in under the New Fighter Aircraft program in 1977 to 1980. There was a lot of criticism then, but the gulf war showed we needed the

Aside from technology, Canada learned invaluable lessons regarding

Kiwanis travelogue remains popular

In 1952, television was still in it infancy, international travel was just a dream to many people and the Belleville Kiwanis Club was just starting its first travelogue season.

Thirty nine years later, the travelogue series is still going strong, the oldest continuously running series in the business

According to travelogue chairman According to travelogue charman Frank Gerkens, the series is still a popular draw. He speculated that the travelogue has retained its popularity, despite television and increased foreign travel, because it represents an inexpensive, family-oriented evening out. For example, one group comes down from Napanee by bus for shopping and dinner out before taking snopping and dinner out before taxing in the travelogue show.

This year's series includes six shows: Nepal -- In the Shadow of Everest, Along the Blue Ridge Mountains, Marco Polo's China Today, Ten Speeds Through Eastern Europe, Ontario & Quebec -- Wild & Wonderful and This is Israel. Tickets are on sale now at Coles Jewelry in the Belleville Plaza and Roluf's Travel Center in downtown Belleville or call Frank Geerkens at 962-4318.

Cost for the season is just $23, with all profits going to community projects supported by the Kiwanis Club. The travelogue series is the club's major fundraising event of the year.

miracles every day

I know someone who is dying. At least, the doctors say she is. They give her just months to live.

Maybe it will happen. Maybe it won't. She's a battler and a lot of people are praying for her.

And miracles do happen,

I know a young man who beat all the odds and lived. It was a miracle, doctors said.

But, they said, you'll never have children after all the chemotherapy. But he did. Healthy children.

It's a miracle, they said, and they're right. But when w say that we miss most of the miracles that happen quietly and without fanfare in our lives.

What is it that breathes life into the limbs of a blob of what is it that breathes life into the limbs of a blood of cells, as Dr. Morgentaler calls it? How fine the line between life and death -- a little breath is all. But not all the breath in the world will restore life when death comes knocking.

the world will restore lite when death comes knocking.
And what about healing?
We take it for granted. See a doctor and take some pills.
Put a broken arm in a cast and let it inkit together.
But why does it heal? Why does an arm knit itself together and why do pills beat back disease? And why, if a body will heal, do we not heal ourselves of old age?

Doctors can provide the circumstances in which healing can take place, but they cannot heal. Scientists can describe the mechanisms of medicine, but no one can explain why some people heal and others don't.

Not really. No more than anyone can explain bird migration. Instinct, we say of birds -- which simply means

We experience miracles every day that our eyes open to the morning light. Every day that the muscles in our fingers work together to pick up a pencil. Every day that we live and breath.

The miracle of life.

I know someone else who is dying, and there will be no miracle.

miracle.

Tam. Every day.

How long do I have to live? A lifetime, however long that is. Perhaps 40 more years. Perhaps 40 more minutes. But every day, every second, I am a little closer to death.

If I remembered that, perhaps I would live my life.

But I don't. I forget and fret instead about my job and my family, my money and my house, my car and all the myriad of things I have to hurry to get done.

The day will come when when all my hurry will be done, whether I'm done or not. Will all the hurry seem silly then? It does now when I think of someone else meeting death

"What does it profit a man if he gain the whole world but lose his own soul?

No, the secret to living is to know that you're dying. And to recognize that every moment of life is a new miracle.

Local government hits close to home

Municipal elections and municipal office may not seem glamorous, but that is where the democratic rubber really hits the road.

Question period and media scrums in the halls of the House of Parliament may hit the six o'clock news, but the decisions with the most direct impact on our lives are actually made by city and township councils and school boards. The issues may be mundane, but they hit close to home our homes, our neighbours, our neighbourhoods.

Just ask anyone who has served on a council or board. Councillors get calls about just about every problem imaginable, from enforcement of noise bylaws to filling potholes or repairing sidewalks.

The municipal level is the place to get involved if you're interested in politics but not in party politics. And you can run without a lot of cost compared to other levels of government.

But time is running short. Candidates, endorsed by at least ten voters, must register with the municipal clerk between Oct. 8 and 11. That's just two weeks away.

The direct rewards of serving in municipal office may be low. In fact, those in office must often wonder why they do it. That's why no one should run unless they are motivated by a sincere desire to serve the public interest.

But the job is important and we encourage anyone who is interested in the well being of their community to consider running for office. Win or lose, anyone who takes their community seriously enough to want to serve deserves our respect.

Smelling a buck

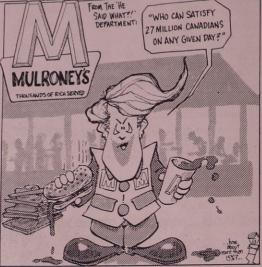

For every problem there is someone out to make a buck. Cross border shopping, for example.

Canadian consumers crossing the U.S. border to purchase goods there rather than in their own communities has skyrocketed this past year. leaving local business people dismayed.

But not entrepreneurs who smell a buck, such as the Canadian who is offering a book and weekly newspaper columns to guide cross-border shoppers to the best bargains -- and incidentally encouraging more Canadians to shop there.

Wonder how he'd feel if an American offered the same product -- cheaper.

Pastor replies to Mormons

The Editor

I was surprised to peruse
P. Joan Minaker's support of the countless vagaries and theological contradicitons residing within the framework of the Mormon church built by the eccentric polygamist Joseph Smith, Jr.

What is essentially Christian about a polygamous Christ, a Jesus who is but one god in a pantheon of gods and a Saviour whose blood is ineffective to forgive all sin?
Where in all the universe does the Holy Bible even hint at Jesus Christ visiting the Western hemisphere during his 40 days on earth after his resurrection?

What chapter and what verse declares the Mormon nostrum about Jesus and Lucifer being brothers?

Don't you earnestly feel that if Mormons were to proselytize on the basis of their belief in an incestuous God, the Garden of Eden in Missouri, a star named Kolob, Adam's grave and that every man has the potential of becoming a potential of becoming a polygamous god (Joseph Smith, Doc. History of the Church, Vol. 6, 305, 306; and M.S. Snow, 54:404 re latter), well, don't you think that many folk would think

In direct contradiction of Gal. 1:8 and II Cor. 11: 14, 15, Joseph Smith's followers preach a strange 'golden plates' gospel involving upstate New York's Cumorah Hill and an unknown angel called Moroni. Mormons teach a Kingdom of God in North erica, but the Christian Bible teaches a blood-

bought church of Jesus Christ composed of all believers world-wide owing their spiritual allegiance to the Lord Jesus Christ (not Joseph Smith or Brigham Young) and his coming universal kingdom. And what Christian church anywhere actually thinks that Adam spent the last years of his life some 80 Independence Missouri although it is a great state, no doubt about it -- at a place called Adam-Ondi-

Finally, the 'stick of Joseph' in Ezekiel 37:19 is clearly interpreted in Ezekial 37: 18-22 as being literal Israel and as divided nations coming together to make one nation, not any book of Mormon dated Aug. 21, 1991.

Please be advised that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons) does not in any way claim to know the time of Christ's Second Coming On the contrary, the Church espouses the belief that no one but God Himself knows when Christ will return (See Matt 24:36) In the interest of accuracy, I believe a retraction is in order.

Thanking you in advance.

Critics: Pigs at the pastry cart

On Sept. 24, 1934, America's first theatre and drama course to offer Ph. D. degrees was established by the Velo University drama department. Can you imagine a Ph.D in laws!

A critic has been called "a legless man who teaches running." If you can't do, teach; and if you can't teach, criticize. It's an opportunity, with cutting words, to whittle someone down to your own size

Panners boast they're hard to please. That's probably because nobody with any ambition can afford to waste time trying. Why bother? At Fred Webster amblion can allow to waste time trying. Why bouler: A best critics are Brendan Behan's "cunuchs in a harem," More likely they're John Updike's "pigs at a pastry cart." Any twit who can't sing a song can shoot a skylark. Any fool can criticize a mistake ... and usually does, I find particularly loathesome the self-inflated leaches pan with such urbane yet tedious glitz for national publications. They must search endlessly for just the wrong word till, to their credit, they find it. Aren't those with free seats always first and loudest to Surely the goal of criticism is to improve. As long as we just belittle we'll be little. So why is it human nature to emphasize the negative? When did you last see a sign."

"Beware — nice dog?"

Professional criticism that's not therapeutic is garbage. If it's well written, why then it's well written garbage. But assuming a good writer makes a good critic is no sillier than believing a good alcoholic makes a good bartender.

If Ph.D. courses in criticism teach students how to be constructive, they're worthwhile. Time and Macleans then have somewhere to send their entertainment page hacks for professional development.

But if they simply stir the pot for ever more clever words to leave no turn unstoned, the degree should be printed on White Swan two-ply. Then it could be put to appropriate use.

For all their efforts, critics at least give artists cheap publicity. Real cheap!

Progress made to impeach PM

Cont. From Page 4 have sent out well over 5000, due mainly to the response received from the women of Canada. Thanks to their determination and hard work there is no doubt in my mind that we will get the million signatures we the million signatures we require for impeachment.

When it comes to impeachment, it is worth remembering that in the last century Sir John A.
MacDonald resigned 3 hours before his hours before his impeachment was to be served. The last impeachment in Canada was in the late 1970's when Justice Landreville of the Supreme Court resigned at the very last moment.

the very last moment.

Let each of us give ourselves a Christmas present, by having Mulroney impeached before the end of 1991. Then even though 1992 may not be a prosperous new year, it will at least be a happy one.

I am asking the men of Canada to get involved.

Carriers take Florida trip with paper route earnings

Stephanie and Jason Hovestadt earned a week's holiday in Florida, thanks to paper routes with Quinte Weekly News.

The two Trenton youngsters became carriers about one and a half years ago because they wanted a family ski trip or a family trip to Florida. Their parents challenged them to earn the money for their share of the trip, so they each took up a Ouinte Weekly News route. Their reward? A one-week trip with their parents to Florida where they visited Disneyworld, the Epcott Centre and MGM Studios while

Jason, in Grade 9; and Stephanie, Grade 7, paid for their own airline tickets as well for most of the cost of the condominium and still had money left to spend.

Was it worth the work? You bet, the two young people enthusiastically say.

Although their home is on the east side of Trenton, Jason and Stephanie started with routes on the west side. They would pick up the papers on Tuesday afternoons from The Kitchen Cupboard, owned and managed by their father. A route later became available on the east side of town, and they now deliver 200 papers together near their home. They calculate the delivery takes them 45 minutes to an hour.

They find saving easy. Every penny they earn from the route goes into a special bank account. "We set the money aside," they say. "We're not allowed to touch it."

What are they saving for now? They're not sure, but say they'd still like to go on a family ski trip.

Fall pruning is better than spring for many trees

Contrary to popular belief, fall rather than spring is the b time to prune trees. In fact, trees such as maple, birch and beech could literally "bleed to death" if pruned in spring.

Bruce Bostok of Bostok Tree Service on Toronto prefers to prune trees in late fall and over the winter months, even to prune trees in late fall and over the winter months, even offering clients a discount. "We actually prefer to prune trees when they are dormant." states Bostok. "First of all there is less trauma for the trees, also, when the leaves are gone we can get a far better idea of the tree's skeletal structure so that problems become more obvious. This means a saving in time. Finally there is less debris to haul away and we share these savings with our customers

For the home gardener, the pruning of trees is one of the least practiced of the gardening arts because it is one of the

The first thing to realize is that pruning is not an interference with natural processes of nature, but an improvement on them. While nature undertakes its own pruning, it often does so with disastrous results. Witness a clump birch after an ice storm. And nature is not the least med about aesthetics or growth control, but solely Pruning together, get no of one of them.

Pruning can also cut back on disease, particularly fungi, by opening up the centre of a tree or shrub to let in nature's best medicals — sun and air. Clean out all the weak and dly growth and the remaining growth will thrive

The second reason for pruning is control, to keep things inbounds, to prevent a situation where the where the only

There are three types of pruning -- thinning, heading and composite -- and each produces different results.

Heading tends to close things in, to produce multiple Heading tends to close things in, to produce multiple branching and stocky growth. Thinning sends growth upward and outward, heading spreads it sideways. Composite pruning calls for a little of both with thinning done first and heading second.

When you prune a foliage tree your objective is not to change its shape, but to keep it healthy and symmetrical and to increase the yield of leaves. But not at the expense of throwing the garden into deep shade. That calls for composite pruning and, one thing more, the removal of all feet. Not only will this allow you to walk beneath your trees, it will also turn deep shade into open shade which

rpet basics

Square yard for square yard, carpet adds more comfort, luxury and quiet to a room scheme than any and quiet to a room scheme than a other floor covering.

Carpet also represents one to the largest furnishings investments you will make. That's why it's important to have a good, basic understanding of carpet construction before you make any buying decisions.

Following is a convenient smart shopper summary.

Construction Basics

Construction Basics
Carpet construction will determine not only the beauty, but the wearability of your floor fashions. Most of the carpet you will find is tufted, produced on tufting machines. Basically, these are huge sewing machines that insert pile yarns into a backing material.

During the tufting process, these machines often use over 1,000 needles which can be adjusted to vary the height of the individual loops that appear on the surface of the carpet.

After the loops are inserted into the primary backing material, a heavy layer of latex sizing is applied to the underside to firmly lock the tufts in place. Over this, a secondary backing material is bonded to add further strength and stability.

Tufting is the fastest and also the most economical method of manufacturing carpet. Because of this, tufted carpet is generally less expensive to purchase than woven

Over 90 percent of all carpet made in North America is now produced by the tufting process. The closer the tuft, the denser the carpet.

Judging Quality

When purchasing a carpet, there's a good rule the remember: Always buy the best you can afford. Your local carpet dealer can help you compare the relative merits of different carpets, but here are some general guidelines to help you determine carpet quality. Annearance retention

Good-quality carpet made of strong, resilient fibers will retain its like-new appearance for years to come. An important element of carpet quality is the type of fiber used. The more resilient the fiber, the better the carpet's long-term appearance retention.

Nylon fibers are remarkably resilient. They resist abrasion and also bounce back to their original form making them less susceptible to crushing, matting and daily wear and tear.

Twist is put into the yarn prior to carpet tufting. In general, the more turns per inch, the tighter the twist, the less bulk in the carpet, but the better the carpet's performance. Twisting allows the tuft to keep its shape and stand up straight.

One way to judge the twist levels of various samples is to look closely at the cut tips of the individual tufts, they should be neat and well defined rather than flared open.

Density
Another excellent guide to carpet quality is the density of the pile-the closer the tufts are together, the better. In comparing samples of the same fiber type, note how close the individual loops and tufts are to each other. Press down on the pile with one finger and see how easy or difficult it is to penetrate to the backing.

Bend the carpet as it would be bent over the tread of a Better carpet will have more closely spaced tufts and will therefore be more difficult to penetrate.

Padding

rationing
Top-quality padding extends the life of your carpet padding is available in varying thickness and densities. For the right amount of walking support and comfort padding for use under wall-to-wall carpet and large broadloom area rugs should be about 3/8 inch thick.

Not only does good padding make any carpet feel better underfoot, at the protects your carpet investment. Because padding acts like a shock absorber, protecting your carpet from the wear and tear of heavy traffic, it will look better

So don't skimp on padding, especially under top quality

Rapid Rad owner Brian Amodeo recycles cardboard, saving over $1,600 per year as a result. (Botting photo)

By David Botting OWN Editor

Recycling pays, says Brian Amodeo, owner of Rapid Rad Service on Highway 2 at Bayside. He started recycling cardboard this past year and is astonished at the way it slashed the cost of his waste disposal. Amodeo built a trailer, using an old radiator test tank and an old pick up truck, and hauls all his cardboard directly to an old pick up truck, and fature aims carocard artery to the Quinte Recycling Centre himself. As a result, his waste disposal costs have been cut by two thirds. At one time, his waste container was emptied weekly at a cost of $47 a week. Now he uses a smaller container, which is dumped every two weeks at a cost of $16 per week.

two weeks at a cost of $16 per week.

The radiator business is traditionally a dirty business, says Amodeo. At one time, fuel tanks often wound up in landfill and antifreeze went down the drain. Amodeo has been steadily taking steps to clean up his business, though.

When he started in 1978, he recycled copper, brass and solder. Later, he added aluminum, and then two years ago, he started recycling fuel Lanks. Antifreeze was next and cardboard is his latest addition. Now he has his eye on the bastic was that the antiference conest in add the offere more. plastic jugs that the antifreeze comes in and the office paper.

Ultimately, he plans to recycle the water he uses as well.
"We use a lot of water in the rad business," he says. The water has a lot of lead, dirt, grease, oil and antifreeze in it.
A lot of places in the U.S. have their own filtration system that allows them to reuse water. Left over dirt is picked up by a licensed hauler rather than dumped into a septic or municipal sewage system. That will have to come later, ever, because of the cost.

He has also taken other steps to clean up his business. A few years ago, he invited the Ministry of Occupational few years ago, he invited the Ministry of Occupational Health and Safety to come in and conduct a two day audit of his workplace. Based on the recommendations, he has introduced better masks for his workers, added an air filter system and changed some of the products he used. As well, he has switched from a caustic boil out tank to a high pressure steam machine that uses biodegradable chemicals. "Years ago, the rad business was bad, especially because of the heavy lead content in the smoke from melting solder," he says. Today, lead tests conducted twice a year indicate the steps he has taken have made a "big, hig difference."

He takes pride in the changes and says it has a bred a better attitude around the shop. And he has the satisfaction of demonstrating that even a ditry business can be cleaned up.

At age 18, McFadden, of Haskell, Texas, tried his hand at burglary. Two years, tried his hand at burglary. Two years, tried his hand at burglary. Two years, the was 24 he had reached a height of well over six feet and weighted a bully 230 pounds.

In 1972, big bad Jerry gradualed victoristy assaulted another young as pending.
In 1973, Jerry kidnapped an 18-year-old secretary from her office and kept her prisone for a full day. He raped the girl several times, finally choking her and leaving her for dead. The girl eventually regained consciousness. She was found running hysterically down the highway near the town of Lueders by a passing motorist. For this offense, McFadden was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment.
Once again, this vicious habitual criminal was released under the mandatory supervision program after serving one third his properties. He settled in Marchael and the strength of the serving of the dead of the serving of the dead of the serving of the dead of the serving of th the couple's car Obviously satisfied that they were telling the truth, the gunman lingered for some time, hinting at sexual escapades with the terrified woman. As suddenly as he had appeared, the giant of a man left in what the couple thought was a blue Ford Broncho. The young couple had been frightened out of their wits, but were otherwise unharmed. This incident had taken place only a half mile from where Bryan Boone's pickup truck was found abandoned.

Police attempted to trace the last movements of the three missing youths. They learned that they had caten at a restaurant in town before driving to the lake. At 9:30 p.m., they were observed parked at the lake. Then nothing until the pickup truck was found. Tragically, it wasn't long before the fate of one of the girls became known. Suzanne Harrison's body was found by a state cleaning crew in a recreational park near the town of Gilmer. Suzanne had been raped and strangled with her own panties. Her body had been found about 30 miles from where she had been parked with her two friends the previous evening.

The search for the other two missing young people was continuing when police learned that a wild bushy man had been siglated in a blue Broncho and had been taken into custody. The couple who had been terrorized regist before identified the man as their antagonist. He turned out to be the area's bad boy and parolee, The Weradden. McFadden denied any knowledge of Suzame Harrison or her friends. He was held in custody, charged with attempted robbery and parole violation.

The search for Gena Turner and Bryan Boone inten-sified. Hundreds of volunteers combed the area where Suzanne's body had been found. They interrupted their efforts only to attend Suzanne Harrison's funeral. The small town was devastated by the tragedy. Almost all the stores in town closed on the day of the funeral. A week after their disappearance, Gena and Bryan's bodies were found in a ravine a mile outside the small town of Ore City. Bryan was fully clothed, but Gena was nude from the waist down. She had been raped. Both had been shot to death. Once again, the tiny community had funerals to attend.

☐ JERRY McFADDEN — Wild man gave up.

Exam authorities went about building a case against. Jerry McFadden On May 22, 1986, the sheriff's office issued a statement that McFadden Meraden had been sissued a statement that McFadden had been convicted with the murder of Suzanne Harrison. Law on ment officials, as well as the general public, were enraged that a three time convicted rapist had been released after serving only one third of his sentence. Texas had the death penalty and McFadden, if convicted, was in real danger of paying the supreme penalty. But Jerry McFadden had not played out his vile string just yet.

alty, But Jerry increations in the first property of the String just yet. July 9, 1986, at 6:30 p.m., McFadden was cooling his heels in the Gilmer County Jall, as he had every evening since his incarceration in May. On duty that evening were jailer Ken Mayfield, 53; along with radio dispatchers and jailers. Mrs. Rosalie Williams, 24, and Mrs. Stacy Mullinix, 25.

In Texas, regulations at all county jails allow prisoners to be removed from their cells to make phone calls. McFadden had made several during his weeks in the jail. On this particular evening, he requested a call. Jailer Mayfield, following correct procedure, removed his holster and placed it outside the jail area. He unlocked McFadden's cell and escorted him to the phone. Suddenly, McFadden swing at Mayfield's head with a piece of sharp metal. Unknown to all, he had made and the second of the phone of the

The door was not locked. In a split second they were facing wild Jerry McFadden. Barking commands, McFadden ordered the two women to drag Mayfield into a cell. After this was accomplished, he had Rosalie Williams lock up Mayfield and Mullinix McFaden, acting as wild as he looked, propelled Rosalie to a strongbox where prisoners' money was kept. This strange man counted out $162, the exact amount he had credited to his name. Other cash was left

Down an elevator he and his hostage travelled five floors and out into the hot Texas night. Rosalie was forced into her own Datsun. With McFadden behind the wheel, the pair drove away. When officers radioed the sheriff's office and received no response, they sped to the jail. There, locked in a cell were Stacy Mullinix and Ken Mayfield, who was slowly regaining consciousness. Mayfield was taken to hospital, where 66 stitches were required to close the wound in his head.

Convicted rapist and suspected triple killer Jerry McFadden had a female police officer as a hostage. Rosalie was married to State Trooper Eddie Williams, who took an active part in the search for his wife. The Williamses had a three-year-old child. One can only imagine Trooper Williams' thoughts as he hunted for his wife and a man with McFadden's record.

Road blocks were thrown up. Helicopters scanned the area from the sky. Prison bloodhounds were pressed into service. As the search intensified, yellaw law enforcement officers were actively engaged in the hunt.

McFadden had made one mistake. He had escaped from jail in his stocking feet. He and Rosalie left the Datsun at 6 a.m. the following morning near the town of Big Sandy. As they slogged through the woods, they could hear helicopters overhead, but the choppers didn't sight McFadden and his hostage.

As the morning wore on, the heat became oppresive. The terrain was rough. Sometimes they walked through poison ivy. McFadden's feet were taking a beating. Rosalie felt that sooner or later her capt her wits about her. She was terrified, but kept her wits about her. She had recently completed a course on hostage taking, never dreaming that she would have a first hand experience so shortly after finishing the course.

On an isolated railway siding. McFadden spotted an empty boxcar. Near exhaustion, with his feet a horrible mess, the wanted man took refuge in a box assached the day wore on, he and Rosalie could soon and captive were and the proposed the proposed of th

Rosalie weighed her chances. When she felt McFadden was far enough away from the boxear, she decided to make a run for it. At that exact moment do accosted McFadden. As the dog snapped at him, as attempted to ward it off with a stick. Rosalie made a dash out of the boxear and ran down the railroad track to a house some distance away. She rushed through the unlocked door of the farmhouse and was met by the occupant of the house, who recognized her immediately from photos he had seen on TV.

Police were phoned with the startling and welcome news that Rosalie Williams was alive and unharmed. The wanted man's location was now known, but he still managed to stay at large for two days, when he was finally sighted by two deputies in an abandoned house. He gave up without a struggle.

Jerry McFadden was tried, convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of Suzanne Harrison. He presently resides on Death Row in the Texas State Prison at Huntsville, Texas.

"It is news to our community ... that in this affluent, comfortable community that there are many people -- many of them children -- who go hungry on a regular basis," Ed Bentley, pastor of Eastminster United Church and a member of the task force, told a community forum luncheon last week.

Members of the task force unveiled results of a door-to-door survey of 110 households in low income neighbourhoods of the city, stressing that the results were only preliminary. Interviews have also been conducted with clients of various aid organizations, and analysis of the results all the surveys will take another three or four months, they said. Petitioners press city council for park designation

Belleville residents who live in the north Coleman Street area are petitioning city council to retrofit a piece of vacant land into a neighbourhood park.

Approximately 100 residents of the neighbourhood have signed a petition requesting the land be converted into a park. It will be presented at an Oct. 7 city council meeting

Just the opposite is true, however, for Telecare's 65 volunteers, who man the telephone 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

In 1990, Telecare volunteers fielded 3,123 calls from callers with problems ranging from contemplating suicide to simple loneliness — the number of problems are as my as there are callers.

Unfortunately, volunteers move, change jobs or burn out and eventually have to opt out of the Telecare network.

That's why Telecare holds its annual Telecare Week, scheduled this year for Sept. 29 to Oct. 6.

Public awareness is a feeder for the constant demand for more volunteers, says Telecare coordinator Helen Klein.

"Right now we have 65 volunteers. That sounds like a

"We don't give our callers advice," says Klein. "What we try to do is give them suggestions or refer them to professionals who can help them. Most importantly, however, is the fact that we are there to talk to. By just being there, we are providing a badly needed service in the community."

For seniors, confined to their homes and perhaps without family, an additional service by Telecare is welcomed.

Called the Reassurance Program, Telecare makes daily calls to registered seniors or other people who live alone.

"We call these people every day to make sure they're okay and also just to let them know there is someone to talk to. These people are always happy to hear from us and really appreciate just being able to talk to someone," says Klein. "It's also very rewarding for the volunteers."

Klein says that, to solicit more volunteers, Telecare will be actiting any directors in the corporative to sevice more directors.

A modest proposal to save Canada

With all the interest in the future of the country and Quebec's desire for independence, Quinte Weekly News has come up with its own modest proposal for keeping the nas come up with its own me country together.

This is not a plan designed by politicians behind closed doors. No, this plan has been the product of a great deal of thought, discussion and negotiation with the people of Canada, notably those found in coffee shops.

We think we have a one-point proposal that would be acceptable to all Canadians and will break through the constitutional deadlock.

Quebec can have anything it wants.

Anything.

The right to override the charter, to ban English, to control immigration, to be a distinct society — anything up to and including becoming an independent sovereign

But they have to take Ottawa, too.

They have to take the prime minister and the House of Commons and the Senate, whether elected or unelected. Commons and the Senate, whether elected to indicate on the They have to take John Crow and his interest rates policy. They have to take the post office and its poisoned labour relations. They have to take the Public Service Alliance and its strike threats.

If they want to have their way, then they have to pay a price and our price is Ottawa.

They can have the civil servants and the GST and Question Period and red tape and everything else that Question rerrot and red tape and everypting case that comes with owning a national capital. It's a no-lose proposition for the rest of Canada. Either Quebec takes a deep breath and stays in Canada as an equal partner of everyone else, or they take Ottawa off our hands and the rest of us can breath easier.

DO A TRADE

DO A TRADE

Alternatively, we have a second proposal, one we're surprised didn't occur to Constitutional Affairs Minister Joe Clark: we'll trade them Eric Lindros in exchange for giving up Quebec's claim to be a distinct society. The feds could include it as a rider in back-to-work legislation for civil servants and have it done in a week.

Whatever happened to common sense?

Whatever happened to common sense? The NDP government of Ontario is proposing legislation that sets out procedures for obtaining consent to treatment for patients who aren't considered legally competent. It is also setting up an advocacy system for these patients.

The idea makes theoretical sense and the legislation is well meaning. It just doesn't make any sense in the real world.

Some background first. Technically, anyone who touches a person without his or her consent has committed an assault. Thus, every time a doctor treats someone who is technically incompetent, he or she is vulnerable to assault charges.

And the range of people who might be technically incompetent is wide, including not just the senile, the developmentally disabled, the brain damaged or people suffering from psychiatric disorders. The list also includes people who are injured and incapable of understanding (someone who comes into a hospital unconscious from an accident, for example, or is in shock), drunks, children under the age of 16 and some categories of the elderly.

Let's say that your four-year-old doesn't want his vaccination because the needle scares him. The doctor couldn't legally go ahead with the shot, not even if you insisted as the child's parent.

The doctor would have to stop the procedure, explain to the child he's incompetent because he is under the age of 16, put that in a memo to the child and call in a government advocate. The advocate would then explain to the child that he could appeal to a board asking that he not be

Sounds ridiculous, doesn't it. But that's what the new legislation would require.

And believe it or not, the new legislation isn't as tough -- or as silly -- as it could have been. Apparently, this proposal is a compromise from the original proposal that would have required a court order

According to the government, common law on the issue is confused, leaving doctors in a very vulnerable position. That's why the government is proposing this legislation. But to us, the legislation looks just as confused.

Chamber of Commerce opposes labour law proposals major revision. The act is

Premier Bob Rae:

We are writing to oppose the recommendations in the Ontario Labour Relations Act Reform Committee

The Belleville District Chamber of Commerce has been the representative voice of business in Belleville nce 1864. Our membership approx-imately 550 including manu-facturing, retail, profession-al, financial and service industries.

Our mandate is represent business and its ncerns and suggestions relative to the promotion of trade and commerce in Belleville and District.

It has been the chamber's view that the Ontario Labour Relations Act has required based upon an outdated principle that business and abour are adversaries and the best results can be obtained by allowing large unions and business to conduct economic welfare.

In order to be competitive, business and labour are striving to become less adversarial and co-operate at all levels to ensure future competitiveness The proposals, in our view, will foster further adversarial relationships between employee and

The proposed changes will be perceived by employers as unfair. Future investment Ontario will discouraged.

competitiveness and because investors deem other jurisdictions as more favorable places to do business. The proposed amendments are one more factor which will contribute to relocation of Ontario businesses outside of this

We encourage you not to implement the recommendations, we encourage further review of labour relations laws in general. The clear division of management and labour representative on the committee itself indicate these proposals will not be easily accepted in Ontario.

Bilingual signs costly

The Editor:

About 40 municipalities along the Ontario/Quebec border have declared themselves bilingual while across the connecting bridges Quebec insists on unilingual French signs.

What are those Ontario municipalities using in place of common sense? Most Quebecers pride themselves on being bilingual. Why the expense for unnecessary signs?

The signs are offered to the municipalities "free of charge." Who are they charge." Who are they kidding? We are footing the bill and I for one resent it. Let's stick to English while we still have a choice!

Registration forms are available at the plaza administration office. There is still room for more walkers, so come out and

Lunar lore is just moonshine OCTOBER 1

October's full moon is the travel moon. Every month's has its special name. January's is the wolf moon, February's the snow moon, March's the Lenten moon, and They're appropriately named, and one of our calendar months, June, even honours the Roman goddess moon and marriage,

September's harvest moon of song fame is the best known. Perhaps travel is what farmers do in October when the harvest

October when the harvest fails in September ... or what stockbrokers do when the market fails. The other popular moon of song fame is the blue moon. It occurs when airborne particles block out light at the yellow and red end of the spectrum. It happened during Canadian forest fires in 1950 and after the Krakatoa nonth. It appears but once in a blue moon.

So the blue moon doesn't come annually in its own

Lunar fascination is commonplace. Wolves howl at full moons like drunks in an Ontario Housing complex when the welfare and mothers' allowance cheques arrive.

Meanwhile, people do strange things too.

In Greenland mythology the moon is a young man who pays amorous visits to young women careless enough to sleep lying on their backs. New Zealand's Maoris believe marriage between a man and a woman is unimportant marriage between a man and a woman is unimposed because the moon is the permanent husband.

Such beliefs probably start with animal lore. Apis, for example, the sacred cow of Egypt, was said to have been sired by moonbeams falling on a cow. Obviously there's some bull in that one.

But obviously there's some bull in the complex too. The leques keep getting bigger.

With Juno the goddess of both moon and marriage, June which sum the goddess of both moon and marrying month.

June brides, after all, can't be too pregnant not to help with the harvest, and by the time they have their babies, they're ready for the next harvest, too.

And that may be lunacy, but it's no bull.

It dates back thousands of years when North American Indians traded something they had for something they needed.

The same principal applies to what's called The Alliance, a group of about 50

Biennials largely ignored by gardeners and growers Page 10 Quinte Weekly News, Tuesday, Oct. 1, 1991

Biennials are probably one of the least understood of the flowering garden plants. While everyone accepts annuals as plants that grow, lower, set seed and die, all in one as piants that grow, lower, set seed and die, all in one season, and applaud perennials as the permanent ones, (in spite of the fact that some perennials such as holly-hocks are very short lived), they are lerry of a plant that grows foliage the first year, flowers the second and in the third year, becomes compost fodder.

As a result, biennials are usually by-passed when it comes to planning the garden, which means they are usually ignored in the nursery, (two exceptions - the Pansy and the Forget-Me-Not), and since nurseries only stock the best sellers, their stock of biennials is either often sparse or non-existent. Which is really too bad, because the biennials (including perennials that should be treated as biennials), offer some of the most delightful flowers to ever grace the garden, such as: Canterbury Belles, Forget-Me-Nots, Foxglove, Hollyhock, Iceland Poppies, Mulleins, Pansies, Sweet William and Siberian Wallflowers.

Fortunately, there are easy ways around the biennials idiosyncratic growth habit so that, like perennials, they can be given a permanent role in your gardening scene and whichever method you choose depends on whether the biennials of your choice are hybrids or botannicals.

Gardening and Growing with Ross Hawthorne

Very simply, hybrids are plants that have genetically altered by man, mainly to improve their flowering habit. The only problem is, they are often unstable and will not come true from seed. (Good example - pansies.) But since botannicals have escaped sexual interference, they come true to the parents' characteristics. (Good example -

Nurseries and catalogue companies offer a generous supply for biennials seeds. Best seeding time - late Spring . All you need are: seed, soilless mix, nursery flats, (make sure they have drain holes), clear plastic covers, four-inch pots and 10-52-10 water-soluble fertilizer.

pots and 10-52-10 water-soluble fertilizer. Fill the flats to the top with a quarter-strength solution of 10-52-10 fertilizer. For fine seed, scatter over the surface and top with a fine dusting of soilless mix. Larger seed can be planted in place. Cover with the clear plastic covers, and set flats in bright open shade. After a week start checking the flats for signs of germination, (tiny specks of green) and when you estimate that 10% of the seed has germinated, remove the covers to avoid the plants growing week and eninfly.

Check daily and water at least every three day whether they seem to need it or not. Once four leaves have developed, transplant to four-inch pots, set them in the flats and transfer to light or dappled shade. In late summer, transplant to the area they are to flower the following year.

TASK FORCE STUDY:

Many go hungry

significant problem here. Of the 110 households in the door-to-door survey, 41 said they ran out of money for food -- two thirds of them as often as one to five times per month.

The households comprised 150 people, including 75 dependents. Most were single, separated or divorced families.

Just over half of the households were working poor, including an adult who was employed.

But the households that regularly went hungry are almost invisible in their neighbourhoods. survey found no significant differences between those who went hungry and those

The 69 households that didn't run out of food money were also mainly separated or single, divorced families.

Nor did there seem to be any correlation between education level and hunger, said Ingrid Crowther, a Loyalist College student and task force member.

The survey also exploded some persistent myths about the poor, task force members said.

One would have expected more single mothers in the households that reported regularly going hungry.

In fact, the reverse was true. Twelve females and 29 males were represented in the category of hungry households.

Forty females and 29 males were represented in the other category.

Another myth is that the poor mismanage their money, but Crowther said that's irrelevant since half the adults in the survey were unemployed. Nor did the survey show a large number of immigrants or people who recently moved to Belleville from other areas. Only two of the households surveyed were not Canadian citizens and only one had lived in Belleville for less than a year.

An Open Letter to All Canadians.

Tuesday, September 24, 1991

My fellow Canadians:

Today in the House of Commons, the Prime Minister is putting forward proposals to renew the Canadian federation.

The proposals are not fixed or final. They are a basis for discussion.

Canadians are encouraged to debate them vigorously and openly and suggest how they can be improved so that every Canadian can feel welcome, understood and respected in our own land.

A Special Joint Committee of the House of Commons and Senate will seek the views of Canadians on these proposals. Please participate actively in the Committee's work. It's an opportunity to forge the kind of Canada that can best serve the interests of Canadians now and in the future.

The process of renewing the Canadian partnership will not be easy Canada was born and built because previous generations understood that unity is the key to prosperity and that the keys to unity are tolerance, compromise and goodwill.

In difficult times, these characteristics are often in short supply but that is when we need them most.

Canadians have the opportunity as never before to create a Canada in which all Canadians can feel at home. Together, we have the opportunity to strengthen this country to make it more prosperous and more responsive to the aspirations of all its people.

I urge you to take part in renewing Canada. It's our country that's at stake.

The Right Honourable Joe Clark President of the Privy Council and Minister Responsible for Constitutional Affairs.

Sarret was a practising lawyer in Marseilles, France in 1924, when he met two guilible and willing sisters, Philomene and Katharine Schmidt. The sisters Schmidt were 20 and 21 years of age, while Georges was 44.

The girls quickly fell under the influence of the suave but evil Georges, Being frivolous and with no special attributes other than their extreme good looks, they made their living as teachers. Deltreuil, sick as a chien, co-operated perfectly. He died a few months later and the insurance company paid off to the tune of 100,000 francs.
It had all been so very easy. Georges decided to go into the business of crime on a full-time basis, informed the sisters that Pere Chambon, the spoil-sport, was blackmailing him, threatening to expose the insurance scheme. They had to get rid of Chambon and his mistress, a loose lady named Ballandreaux.

The diabolical lawyer had Kathy rent a villa near the town of Aix. Sister Phil was told to purchase a balhtub, which was a strange request, considering that the villa was not equipped with running water. Georges personally purchased 100 litres of sulphuric acid.

The three conspirators left the villa for Marseilles. Pere Chambon and Mile Ballandreaux were missed by absolutely no one.

By 1931, Georges and his two lady friends decided to take another step along the treacherous murder trail. Preparation for this scam would take time. For starfers, the sisters became charity workers in the slums of Marseilles. In reality, they were looking for desperately ill women. They had no trouble finding such unfortunate creatures.

Mme Lorenzi fit the mold the sisters were seeking. She was dying of tuberculosis. Her identification documents and those of her sickly husband were in time turned over to the sisters. Kathy was seen by people who knew her as Magali's sister and, at the same time, but a surface of francs, general man of Katharine Schmidt. Some bushody smelled a rat and called police.

Those gendarmes didn't display an ounce of sympathy towards Katharine. They questioned her extensively until she confessed to posing as Magali's sister. True to most conspirators, Kathy put all the blame on Georges, who, it should be pointed out, was satisfying both sisters, sexually speaking.

Philomen was picked up and corroborated her sister's yarn. Both pointed well manicured fingers at Georges. He, in 'urn, attempted to blame everything on the two girls. patients. In fact, without consent, just touching a patient uld be deemed an assault

The general rule of thumb used by doctors in the past has been to ask relatives to give consent. But that isn't satisfactory for the Ministry of Health.

The ministry wants to set up procedures for obtaining consent and to introduce government advocates who would intervene on behalf of those deemed incompetent.

Under Bill 109 (consent to treatment) and Bill 74 (an act to establish an advocacy system) relatives won't be able to consent for the incompetent until the patient has been advised of his rights by these (still to be appointed) government advocates.

The doctor would first have to advise in writing that he feels the patient is incompetent and then call in the advocate. The advocate would explain the rights to the patient. Only if the person in need of medical attention agreed he was incompetent, could a relative consent to treatment.

Until the procedure is carried out, no treatment can be administered nor can the incompetent person be admitted to hospital.

For example, a 10-year-old child could reject a blood transfusion or stitches if he didn't want it, even if his father demanded the health care be delivered.

If it sounds bewildering, that's because it is, say practitioners. Word of the proposals has stirred up consternation at every level of the medical profession in the province.

"It really strikes me as wrongheaded. We couldn't possibly function here at Belleville General Hospital if these bills were passed as they are now," says McDougall. "We couldn't wade through the bureaucratic paper work. We absolutely don't need legislation that needs to protect people that much. This goes way too far."

McDougall says it could cost the province as much as $40 million to administer the advocate system into Ontario health care.

Barbara LeBlanc, Ontario Medical Association policy co-ordinator is equally stunned at the proposed legislation.

'All this is going to do is create a layer of bureaucracy between patients and doctors which will cause unbelievable delays in treatment," she savs

And the increase in paper work will not be allowed to be delegated by doctors to registered nurses or other assistant staff. The doctor must personally fill out these forms, says LeBlanc.

"What it comes down to is basically disruptive," LeBlanc says. "These proposals will hurt those they're intended to protect."

The Ontario Hospital Association (OHA) remains tightlipped about the proposals for the moment.

Carolyn Shushelski, general manager of legislative services for OHA, refused to offer comment on the proposals but did say an OHA task force has been working on the issue.

A position paper from the task force will be submitted to a Queen's Park standing committee in the months ahead, said Shushelski.

The bills are expected to receive third reading at Queen's Park next spring.

Families are facing tough times

The Canadian family is in trouble.

Corby's helps former employees find new jobs

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

It's been a week and half since Corby Distilleries closed its doors, throwing 180 people out of work in the Belleville area. To date, 30 have found new jobs, but the task of finding suitable employment for the remaining 150 is still in the lap of a special Corby committee formed to assist in the job search.

The task, however, may be a little easier in the days or even months ahead for the employees and committee members, following the opening Oct. 1 of the Corby Employment Resource Centre in Belleville.

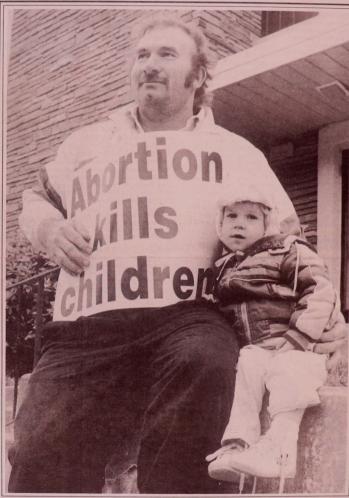

Located at 26 Victoria Ave., the centre offers a variety of Support services and job-search assistance. The centre is funded by Corby's and the provincial and federal governments. The centre will operate until March, 1992.

Cancer patients are like family to drivers

By David Botting QWN Editor

Volunteers for the Belleville and District Unit of the volunteers for the Believille and District Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society drove the equivalent of almost 14 times around the world last year, taking patients to treatment in Kingston and Toronto. Volunteers made 751 trips to Kingston and 55 to Toronto last year, clocking approximately 175,000 km.

In September, the society honoured some of its longterm drivers, some of whom have been driving for up to 15 years.
"They really are fabulous," said Jane Mulligan, co-chair of patient services for the unit, at a recent press conference to honour the drivers. Present were Beth Mason and June Howe, convenors responsible for organizing trips to Kingston and Toronto respectively, as well as drivers Ralph Petrie (three years), Beryl Rowsome (three years), Ivan Rollins (five years) and Howard Thomson (15 years).
Typically, one of the drivers being honoured couldn't make it. Boyd Moore, a volunteer driver for five years, was on the great driving a natient to Kingston.

Families are under pressure

The family unit is perhaps the single most important institution in our society. That is where children -- the next generation -- learn the values that will shape and mold not only their lives but the lives of their own children.

But increasingly, other institutions are competing with families for the loyalties of their children. No longer can parents count on schools to support the values they teach their children society no longer shares a common base and schools reflect the new splintering of values.

Mass media brings other competing values directly into our living rooms in a flood that is hard to resist. And families that do try to resist look laughable and out of touch to the media.

At the same time economic pressures have increased. It is increasingly difficult for either parent to choose to stay home and raise children. More and more women have started working outside of the home, not just because of self esteem, but also to help support a standard of living that appears to be eroding away.

Marriage no longer carries the weight it once did. Our attitude seems to be: if it doesn't work, don't fix it. Just start over again.

Can we undo the damage? Probably not. But we have to try for the sake of the future.

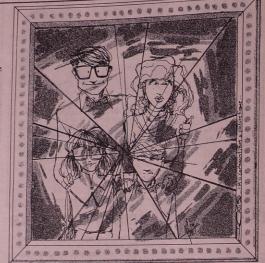

During Family Week, we can start with our own families. How do we make our choices? Does the nurture and care of our children come first no matter what?

But it has to go beyond families to the other institutions of society, including schools, the media, businesses and government. When making policy, we have to ask: do our policies enhance or hinder the family unit? If we don't, the failure of the family will come back to haunt us all.

Sending a message

On Sunday, as many as 600 members of local churches lined Dundas Street from the police station to Zeller's and on to Bayside, holding signs to protest our country's abortion policies, which allow for the abortion of over 70,000 babies annually. Their simple but powerful message should give us all pause for thought as we start National Family Week.

Who is destroying Canada?

The Editor: Brian Mulroney: We watched you waving your arms and screaming at the people of Canada on the TV National program. You said, in essence, that anyone who contributes to the destruction of our beautiful country, Canada, will suffer dire consequences.

I would respectfully suggest that you arrange yourself and your French cabinet to be lined up in front of a very large mirror, as though you were being photographed by the press.

Having gotten into position you will then be able to see clearly, without any doubt, just who is responsible for the responsible for the destruction of Canada as a

Thank you for allowing us the space to reply to Rev. Arthur Durnan. It was with pity that we noted that this man has once again seen fit to launch an attack on another religion. The sad part is that others may be injured when a person who has little knowledge and an evident lack of understanding begins to publicly expound his points of view on a given subject. Mr Durnan probably wrote with the intention of saving many souls who might otherwise go astray, but in doing so perpetrated on public his own personal and biased interpretation of another's beliefs.

Contrary to what Mr. Durnan would lead us to believe, we are a most Christian church. We believe in the principles and procedures as taught to us by our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ during his earthly ministry, and as explained to us in the old and the new testaments of the Holy Bible. Our church bears His name, and our Book of Mormon is simply another beautiful and exciting witness of Jesus Christ's ministration to other peoples, including those who migrated to this continent.

Good luck with 'lunge reported this fall as musky start feeding

Cooler fall temperatures have turned on the feeding instincts for many fresh water species as they begin to fatten up for the

This is especially true for muskellunge which become almost voracious this time of year. Stoco Lake has been the happy hunting ground for many anglers, including Belleville's Steve Hough, who hooked four lunge on a recent outing, including one that eared the 20 pound mark. Moira Lake at Madoc has also been productive as evidenced by a group of American anglers who landed, filmed and released some 14 musky in those waters a few weeks ago. They filmed a five-minute

Make an investment in Canada

Looking for a sure bet to invest your hard-earned money? A Canada savings bond could be a good investment not just for you but for the country.

Anyone can buy a Canada savings bond, which is guaranteed by the Canadian government. The government guarantees a set interest rate for a one year period, ensuring that the value of the bond never falls below the actual cost. This year's interest rate will be announced mid-October.

The sale of bonds starts Oct. 17 and runs until

Nov. 1. No bonds are sold after that date, and if bond pay interest every November until the bond sales are heavy, the government could halt sales before Nov. 1st.

The bonds can be found at any Canadian bank as trust company as well as some investment brokerages

Not only do are the bonds safe and secure, but they leave you flexible because you can cash them in at any time.

The interest on bonds can be paid yearly or compounded over the life of the bond.

Regular interest bonds

Compound interest bonds re-invest the interest

The interest earned on compound interest bonds must be declared annually for income tax purposes The Bank of Canada will mail T5 slips to holders of bonds. Once a bond reaches maturity, it no longer earns interest. The life of a bond can vary and is set by the government. Compound bonds start at $100 and are sold in $100 increments. Regular interest bonds start at $300.

Apple orchards have graced Quinte's cape for centurie

Year after year, local growers have tended to their orchards, vying for the best possible crop come harvest time. The apple crop has become an annual tradition in the

In fact, the commission is predicting a banner year — the biggest apple crop in provincial history: 11.7 million bushels. The success is based on strong consumer

Local apple growers are equally enthusiastic. Quinte growers are already reporting a bumper crop this fall with harvest beginning early due to a dry growing season.

And, despite a dry growing season, the quality of apples is exceptional this year.

"There's no question this an exceptional bumper crops this year. For some reason nothing really bad happened to my crop. I heard others in the area, however, were hurt from the hail and dryness if they couldn't irrigate enough."

Gerry Grills says he had a tough time fighting the dryness and ended up with smaller apples. The dry season also pushed up picking time by almost two weeks, he

Getting pickers, however, hasn't been a problem as is usually the rule for many farmers. The recession has forced many to "Usually I have a hard time getting extra pickers. But, this year I've had to turn people looking for work away because I didn't need them," says Grills.

Apples can be bought at a variety of orchards, food stands and, of course, the Farmer's Market in Downtown Belleville. Prices range from $12 to $20 a bushel.

Market celebrates 175th

By Dèrek Baldwin QWN Staff

Many businesses have come and gone throughout Belleville's long and colourful

But, true to its strong-spirited farming roots, the Belleville Farmers' Market has weathered all of the storms and this year celebrates its 175th anniversary

Since its inception in 1816, the farm market has continued a local tradition of offering the freshest produce from local harvests to passers by in downtown Belleville. Today, it's the oldest surviving business in the city.

"This year is truly a milestone for the market," says Shirley Wright, director of the Belleville Farmers' Market Association. "It's truly a milestone the market," says the present the serviced consideration.

truly a miracle it's even survived considering it's almost been expropriated three times." Miracles deserve special celebrations,

"It's our 175th anniversary and we want to make this a memorable occasion. Queen's University is only celebrating its Sesquicentennial (150th). What do you call 175?"

To mark the market's heritage birthday, the association has been working diligently towards a truly fitting celebration Oct. 12 in the Market Square behind Belleville City

Minister of Agriculture Elmer Buchanan will be joined by other MPs and MPPs in a parade around the market at 10 a.m. to kick off the celebrations.

The public is invited to witness the many displays by Bishop Seeds as well as demonstrations of spinning, weaving and carving. A large birthday cake will also be on hand for those with a sweet tooth, says Wright. Musical entertainment will complement the large itinerary.

Lews For Seniors

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Getting an influenza vaccination could save your life -- especially if you're age 65 and over.

The Hastings-Prince Edward Health Unit is urging seniors, even if they're healthy, to come out for their free flu-shot.

Acting Medical Officer of Health Dr. Alban Goddard Hill says the Ontario government-funded vaccination program has reduced the number of deaths due to the viral

"Last year, the province was able to demonstrate this program works by reducing the number of deaths from pneumonia that resulted from influenza," says Goddard-Hill.

"This program really is an excellent idea to prevent contracting Type 'A' and Type 'B' viral illnesses. When you're younger, your immune system can help you get over it much easier.

When you're older, however, the immune system is weaker and often pneumonia can be life-threatening."

Influenza is one of the most contagious viruses known to medical science. Just being in the same room with someone who has it means you can easily get it.

When a flu victim coughs, sneezes or even talks, the virus is sent into the air where it can easily be breathed by someone else. And since the flu is active in our bodies days before we're even aware of it, we can be spreading it around unknowingly.

Linda McCarey, communicable disease supervisor at the health unit, says the vaccine arrived in Belleville Sept. 16 to coincide with Flu Awareness month.

The vaccine is also open to anyone under 65 but is not distributed free of

Seniors planning to spend the winter in Florida should make sure they are covered by private medical insurance

As of Oct. 1,, the rules for health coverage outside Canada have changed. The provincial government now limits payments for out-ofcountry hospital

According to the Ministry of Health, this means that anyone who plans to be out of the country should buy additional health coverage through a private insurer to cover any medical emergency that may arise.

On Dec. 15, the Actors' Benevolent Fund cut off funds to Prince. That same day, Prince bumped into Terries on the street. The idol of millions pressed some money into Prince's hand. Unknowingly, William Terriss had financed the instrument of his death. Prince went directly to a store and purchased a long bladed filleting knife.

Next day, patrons lined up in front of the Adelphi Theatre hoping to purchase the few remaining tickets for that night's performance of Secret Service, starring William Terriss.

Later that evening, Terriss made his way to the theatre. Prince lurked in the doorway of a restaurant at the rear of the building. It was a cold night. Prince was hungry. He had used his last shilling to purchase the knife he now fondled in his pocket.

Blade found

Terriss approached the private door reserved for stars, authors and financial backers. Accompanying him was a friend, John Graves. Terriss inserted his key into the door's lock. At that precise moment, Frince struck. He stabbed Terriss in the back, plunging the blade through winter clothing flush up to the handle. Turn out for the day-long celebrations of the Belleville Farmers' Market 175th birthday Oct. 12 and you'll more than likely see Margaret and Clifford Foster, pictured on the right. The Prince Edward County farmers bring their fresh produce to the market three times a week from their 550 acre farm in "The County." A Thanksgiving to think about This column is being written the day after the jobs since last Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving holiday.

Thanksgiving holiday.

Many of us have much for which we can give thanks—loving spouses and children, our health, jobs, businesses, our cars and homes and more than enough toys for anyone to play with.

Yet, I have a feeling that for many Canadians Thanksgiving is just another holiday. A day off from work. A day when the kids don't go to school. don't go to school.

Did you remember to give thanks?

CAN YOU STILL GIVE THANKS?

Thanksgiving is a day that sets you thinking about what you have, but it's also worth thinking about what you don't have or might not have.

What if the things for which we give thanks were taken away:

You have your health -- but cancer or a heart attack can strike with the snap of a finger.
You have your house -- but we all know people who had to walk away from it when they lost their job and couldn't keep up the mortgage payments. And many have lost their

And what if your business is on its last legs, thanks to the recession, and your wife is putting up barriers and your kids break your heart because they don't want what you have to give them -- what then?

Can you still give thanks when your own heart is breaking and it seems you have nothing for which you can give thanks anymore?

We sang Now Thank We All Our God in church Thanksgiving morning. Now there's a guy who could still give thanks even though everything he had in this world was destroyed.

The song was written by a pastor during the Hundred Years War in Germany in the 1600s. The countryside was devastated by savage warfare. Refugees flooded his city until the gates were barred because there was no food. Hundreds of thousands died of plague and starvation. Every day, this pastor buried hundreds who had died, including his own wife.

How he must have wept.
And yet, he wrote a song of thanksgiving.
It must have come hard, but for him, thanksgiving wasn't something that came cheaply and easily just because he Could you do that? Could I? Now that's something to chew on along with the turkey at Thanksgiving.

Teachers better equipped to handle drug problems

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Teachers and administration in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties may breathe a little easier

That's because they'll be better equipped to handle drug use incidents in the school system thanks to policy upgrading and the drafting of new steps by education boards to address substance abuse, says Michael Piercy, consultant

Research Foundation branch in Belleville.

Piercy has been working with the Prince Edward County Board of Education and the Hastings-Prince and the Hastings-Prince Edward County Catholic Separate School Board to better address substance abuse in the classroom. Although the latest reports state drug use in schools appears to be declining, action is needed to eliminate drugs from the education system. Piercy

He has been acting in an advisory capacity to help steer future drug policies ser to more workable solutions. Some of the forthcoming solutions include stronger disciplinary action, counselling, suspension and a range of resources and seminars for teachers on

Changes in curriculum from Kindergarten to Grade 13 will also teach children to 'say no to drugs'.

The changes will include establishing stronger ties with community agencies that deal daily with substance abuse. Agency personnel visiting schools to pressay the 'eye you are to present the 'say no to drugs' argument to students is expected to be emphasized even more than in the past. But making teachers more aware of drug problems in their own schools is the first priority.

"What we want to do provide teachers with the them to make informed decisions when he or she thinks a student is abusing alcohol or drugs," says

"For example, when a student is behaving in an unexpected manner in the classroom and has bloodshot eyes — with the proper information a teacher can assess the situation and act accordingly. That student may be experiencing side-effects from medication he's taking for allergies, but may look like he's using drugs," says Piercy. "Each case is very different." That's why teaching the teachers how to to conduct in the state of the same of the same case is very different.

initial screening is fundamental "When teachers learn how to detect a student who is abusing a substance, they because they will be able to intervene in the situation much more positively. In the end, it helps students and teachers."

Wrapping up the garden after fall

This week, as promised, we are wrapping up the subject of wrapping up the garden, beginning with... the harvesting of

6. DON'T TAKE SEED ... harvesting seeds from old time botannicals such as feverfew, four o'clocks and portulaca is O.K. but taking seed from hybridized plants can be a disaster. When new varieties have been produced through hybridization, (controlled cross breeding), they often have dozens of differing ancestors. And when bees have their way with such plants, bringing pollen from goodness knows where, the genetic make-up of the seed gets all mixed up sometimes weird and most often, pale imitations of the parent plant.

Gardening and Growing with Ross Hawthorne

It's much better to pay the price for a packet of seeds than pay the price for a whole season of disappointment.

7. DON'T USE A SPRING FORMULA FERTILIZER... I am a great believer in feeding fall lawns but I'm not a great believer in feeding fall lawns but I'm not a great believer in the newly touted practice of using a high nitrogen fertilizer. The practice is supposedly founded on a university study, but if you read the study carefully. What it really says is something like this.

It's all right to use a high nitrogen fertilizer after your lawn has gone fully dormant (after freeze-up) and then it may be there in the spring so your lawn can green up

I feel the facts have been misrepresented and until I'm shown otherwise, I'll stick with the low nitrogen, higher phosphorous and potash formula for my fall application.

8. DON'T FORGET FOUNDATION EVERGREENS. 8. DON'T FORGET FOUNDATION EVERGEENS.
Evergreens never go totally domant but continue to take up and expire moisture through the winter and that is why moisture around their roots is essential. Evergreens out in the open are usually well provided by late season rains, but evergreens next to the foundation are a different story.

Often they are shielded by an overhang and can go into Often they are shielded by an overhang and can go into winter with the roots quite dry. And when the furnace comes on and the heat leaks through the foundation, that soil can go as arid as the Sahara, resulting in summer browning off. As a precaution late in the season as possible, dribble the hose around their bases until the ground is soaked. And in winter, don't hesitate to shoved your lawn and pile the snow around them. Your neighbours may think you're strange, but your evergreens won't.

9. DON'T EORGET WEETS: In the same way that

9. DON'T FORGET WEEDS... In the sane way that S. DON'T FORGET WEEDS... In the sane way that lawns love the conditions of fall, so do lawn weeds, especially the insidious annual chickweed. That's when it forms extensive mats of prostrate stems and shiny green leaves, all the while, dropping seeds by the thousands. And its also a time when the fall hawkbit thrives, the weed that looks or much like or hour chard-like and the work of the chard-like and the sale of the sale o looks so much like robust dandelions, but isn't.

If your lawn is heavily polluted with weeds, then use a fall weed and feed fertilizer, but be careful using a rotary spreader that you don't broadcast the mixture into the gardens. But if weeds are minimal, mix your herbicide in a spray boutle and walk your lawn, spotting weeds as you go.

10. DON'T STOP PLANTING... Fall is one of the best times to plant trees, shrubs and evergreens. And often they can be obtained at late season sale prices.

Even though decidurent trans, and shrubs have dropped.

can be obtained at late season sate prices.

Even though deciduous trees and shrubs have dropped their leaves, root systems are still active and will continue to grow in the warm fall soil. And since they were likely planted in those containers last spring, the root systems will be well developed so that transplant shock will be minimal. And next spring they will be off to a soaring start.

School children of all ages in the Ontario school system are becoming more violent, both verbally and physically, suggests a study released by the Ontario Federation of Teachers

Several years in the undertaking, final survey results show physical and verbal assaults are rising at an alarming rate, says the study.

Harry Marrisen, president of the Ontario Public School Teachers' Federation Hastings, says the survey was issued to Hastings schools in 1989.

Provincially, a total of 441 major incidents of assault ranging from biting, kicking and punching to knives and firearms were reported by the 881 schools responding to the survey

(about one in five schools across Ontario).

Minor incidents were even more common, with 6,342 incidents reported in the survey. Minor incidents ranged from verbal assault and profanity directed at teachers to crank phone calls to teachers and damage to teacher's cars or

But, says Poste, the violence problems are being created by a great the same that the same t created by a small percentage of student in all levels of elementary and secondary education.
"Out of 280 students, for example, 275 of them are super kids with five of them being the problem," says Poste. "But, in many cases it's not the children's fault. I think the main se behind violent children is they have no support from home

There is a lack of concern shown by the courts and Young Courts and Young Offenders' Act. Attitudes by some in the media encourage rather than discourage antisocial behaviour.

The study, says the federation, has provided tangible evidence "that action to safeguard our schools is not only critical, but urgently needed." Poste adds that action should include re-organization and coalition between education boards and agencies, social services and the police. "I don't think the education system should have to do it alone and I'm sure my principal colleagues would agree. colleagues would agree.

Hasting County Board of Education is already two steps ahead of the call for action on the violence issue, with the inception of two recent reports calling for similar action in county

Plaza walking to better health

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Walking is a step in the better mental and physical health, says the Hastings-Prince Edward Lung Association.

And, the association adds, the more you walk the better the benefits.

They're co-sponsoring a program called Mall Walking, held daily at the Belleville Plaza.

In its second year, Mall Walking draws an average of 40 people per day to the Belleville Plaza to complete their daily laps. Last year, 119 walkers registered in the walking program.

Dianna Oliver, plaza promotions director, says the program has really taken off as have similar walking programs in Edmonton, Ottawa and 'I think the success of the program is due to a lot of things but mainly because people want to get into better health these days. And it can be pretty hard to walk or jog when the weather gets rough in late fall or winter," says Oliver.

"Here at the plaza, we have climate control, enjoyable music, lots of walking space. Lung association Executive Director Jan McKinney is a strong contributor to the

She visits the walking tours to instruct walkers how to warm up before tackling the Belleville Plaza walking course.

It's not just seniors who turn out, stresses Oliver. About 50 per cent of those participating are seniors — the remaining 50 per cent consist of young couples, pregnant mothers, and teenagers.

It was another era, another world, really; almost 35 years ago that January 15, 1957, when it happened. Under the byline of a young Toronto Telegram reporter named Douglas Creighton, Torontonians first heard of the disappearance of four-year-old Carol Voyce. St. hours after the youngster disappeared, her body was found, beaten and sexually abused, under an archway of the Prince Edward viaduct in Toronto's east end. On that fateful January day, Mrs. Bernadetle Woyce decided to visit her friend, Mrs. William Auld, who lived only a few blocks from the Voyce residence. Bernadetle gathered up Carol and together they set off for the Auld home at 1085 Danforth Ave. When they arrived, they met four year-old Johnny Auld. Carol stayed outside to be found stitutionally the state of the stitution of the Auld home at 1085 Danforth Ave. When they arrived, they met four year-old Johnny Auld Carol stayed outside to be found would live and Carol Woyce would die. As Johnny watched, the nice older boy pecalled away down the road with Carol. Johnny then ran into the house and told his mother that Carol had taken a ride with a boy on a bicycle. The two women, sensing that something was amiss, ran outside. Carol was nowhere to be found. They met Constable Earl Newman, who reported Carol missing. The search for the little girl was on.

Hours later, her body was discovered near the Prince Edward viaduet. Her blood smeared snowsuit, along with other clothing, was found nearby. Carol had been attacked and literally mauled by some sadistic monster. The child's face had been pressed down into mud. An autopsy revealed that the cause of death was apphysiation. Several children had been attacked during the previous 18 months and scores of teenagers had been questioned in the course of these investigations. Now police had a description of the wanted boy and his bicycle provided by little Johnny Auld. They also had impression of bicycle the tracks leading from the scene of the course of bicycle the tracks leading from the scene of the little gift as body and had proceeded by way of mearby railreaks. Detective James Crawford, who picked up Woodcock so many years ago, remembers well the slightly built youngster with the horn-rimmed glasses. Crawford recalls, "Woodcock was responsible for the deaths of three children and several other attacks. Some of his victims were sexually attacked, strangled and left for dead, but regained consciousness and liver. We have dead, but regained consciousness and liver. He was dead, but regained consciousness and liver. We have he had killed the hallette child. The boy who had been incarecared for six months was released.

Peter Woodcock stood trial for the murder of Carol Voyce. There was no doubt whatever that he had committed the murder. The tire tracks, teeth marks on the body which matched an impression made of Woodcock's teeth, as well as his contession, left only his sanity in question. Woodcock was found not guilty by reason of insanity and incarcerated at Oak Ridges, the maximum security unt of the Penetanguishene Mental Health Centre.

"We will show people how they might be able to make useful items with a little thought, some elbow grease and raw materials from appropriate sources," they stated in an outline for the publisher

Projects will include bird houses and feeders, toy chests, play houses, picnic tables and chairs, slides and jungle gyms, a garden shed, closet organizers and other useful projects for around the house both indoors and outdoors --including a design for an out house that can be built in just two hours!

Tools required for the projects will be divided into three 'kits', ranging from the simple tools that nearly everyone has around the home to more expensive tools that only serious hobbyists would own.

The projects stress their sense of environmental responsibility. Mike says they marry the old and the new, using old fashioned ideas with the latest technology.

For example. Mike and Carolyn encourage wood workers to use solid materials and to paint the wood so it will last longer. It isn't maintenance free -- that doesn't ork, Mike says. But it lasts

"You have to accept the fact that every five or six or ten years you will have to paint," he says. "But then it will last

And paint is a good example of marrying technologies to an old craft. They recommend latex paint because it is environmentally friendly.

Similarly, they recommend new latex glues, which are safer to use, especially inside, than the old toxic glues.

The book is a family project for the Russells.

"That's what they (the publisher) really liked -- a family doing this together in the age of the family," Mike

Mike and Carolyn plan to build or have already built all the projects themselves. They plan to illustrate the book with black and white photos of the projects taken in a rec room they will build in their workshop.

As well, their daughter Elizabeth, who turns seven in November, has been creating drawings for the book and they have tested some of the projects on her."She's quite the little wood crafter too," says Mike.

The book would not be their first.
They self-published a book on kitchen abinets that was later reprinted by TV Ontario to go with a four-part television series the Russell's did on the subject.

As communicators about wood crafts, Mike and Carolyn Russell are becoming well known in wood working circles. Their wood crafting demonstrations have been featured in many home shows, including at the fall 1990 National Home Show in Toronto where they built a kitchen and the spring 1991 show where they built 15 projects in 10 days.

"We enjoy building and talking to groups," says Carolyn. She takes an active part in the demonstrations and on kitchen cabinet series they did for TV Ontario, seeing herself as a female role model in an industry dominated by men.

"I have heard time and time again that it was really good to see me building kitchens on the (TVO) show because it gives females the idea they can do it to," she says. Mike and Carolyn regard themselves not just as teachers but as entertainers, taking a lighthearted approach to their craft.

"We bring a little fun to it," Mike says of their book. "Woodworking books are so dry and boring. We take a lighthearted approach.

They admit they are natural 'hams' when it comes to demonstrations. They enjoy joking together as they work on television or in a live demonstration.

And they don't mind challenges. Mike, for example, has put together a kitchen cabinet in three minutes flat on Steve Anthony's Breakfast Television on CITY TV in Toronto. Mike also dreams of the day he can demonstrate the strength of quarter-20 bolts by suspending his Suzuki jeep from one.

and Their sense of humour and entertaining approach to cabinetmaking must be a success. Their TVO series recently finished third out of 7,000 entries in a competition for general home educational videos in the

On Saturday, the Belleville Garden Club continued an annual tradition of digging up the chrysanthemums at Riverside Park in Believille for sale to the public. Don Lumley, a club member, balances a mum on his shovel. He said about 3,500 plants were sold Saturday morning at a cost of 50 cents each. People came from as far away as Port Hope to purchase them. The money from the mum sales will help fund the city's floral displays at Riverside Park next year.

ay re-open new year

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

The Regional Hospice of Quinte Inc. may be re-opened in future following the completion of a feasibility study in January of next year.

In addition, the hospice board of directors is weighing the possibility of establishing palliative care in people's homes starting early 1992.

The aim of the hospice is to provide care and services for terminally ill.

The hospice closed its doors in April 1991 due to lack of operating funds. It was the only free-standing hospice in Canada operating without government funding. All funding was donated publicly.

But, in order to run a hospice and, perhaps, home care services, volunteers are badly needed.

The hospice board of directors is seeking more volunteers for the proposed re-opening of the hospice and the home care palliative care.

For more information on becoming a volunteer contact Cheyanne Cooney at 969-1700 or Barbara Rowe at the hospice house, 966-6610.

Women's Centre nears completion

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

A year-and-a-half of elaborate planning and legwork is coming to fruition for the Women's Centre Committee.

They've secured a future site for the centre offices and have tentatively scheduled the official opening for January, says committee treasurer Anne Graham.

The Women's Centre will be located at 256 1/2 Front St. in downtown Belleville above Greenley's Bookstore. Its mandate, says Graham, is to provide "women a place to gather, share ideas, educate each other through increased wareness and empower each other.

A lot of work has gone into establishing the centre since the idea was first pursued by a steering committee in April 1990. Part of that work has been planning events to raise awareness among women of the centre including a "Celebrate Summer" pot luck and music celebration, a first meeting last fall with women from Kingston's Queen's Women Centre and in May of this year the "Women's Weekend" at Zwick's Island.

Belleville mayoral candidate Shirley Langer wants to restore faith in local Public confidence in all levels of government is at an all-time low, contends Langer, a one-time registered nurse who holds a B.A. in modern languages from Queen's University. One way to regain the trust and confidence of local voters is to open the doors to the public and encourage Langer has some political changes in store for the way things run at city hall if she is elected mayor Nov. 12. She revealed her platform at a campaign kick-off Sept. 25.

Make better use of hard-earned tax dollars in city projects. A five-storey bus terminal, for example, is not needed, she says, when you examine the costs involved.

The variety of issues facing taxpayers when they vote are clear, says Langer, and when it comes time to put the 'X' beside a candidates name, remember it isn't a

"An X beside someone's name Nov.12 indicates your consent to be governed by that person," she says.

Zegouras points to his record as he seeks 5th term evenings and making deputations easier.

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Belleville mayoral incumbent George Zegouras will seek his fifth term as mayor when the polls open Nov. 12

Zegouras, 51, has served on city council since 1974 where he served as alderman until his election as mayor in 1980.

Although Zegouras had some "serious reservations" about running this term, he says, friends and family urged him to run for yet another term. Now, he has serious intentions of getting re-elected, and his track record is this year's platform

The list continues, says Zegouras. But, there are many issues to be addressed. he says, including: the South Hastings Waste Management Plan, reduction of taxes, where Belleville's water will come from in the future treatment plant or a superplant in Prince Edward County, Greater Quinte Area Growth study and traffic and even in Canada -- have been full of those who had to make a choice the news and aftershock of sexual harassment charges made by law professor Anita Hill against Judge Clarence Thomas during hearings into his appointment to the U.S.

Women's Centre sponsors festival of films

So who's telling the truth?

Supreme Court.
Who do you believe?
Even in Canadian coffee shops, that has been the question floating around many conversations.

Who do you believe? I don't know.

It's really a question of personal credibility. One of the two is lying and there are no other witnesses to throw light on which.

Anita Hill appears to me to believe what she says. So does Clarence Thomas. Even a polygram test might not reveal anything except that both believe what they say—the human capacity for self-deception is greater than most

But I resent the immediate conclusions some people leap Tresent the immediate conclusions some people leap to because of the axes they have to grind. I resent the feminist columnist who spilled over the front pages of The Toronto Star her disbelief that anyone could ever believe a man in a charge of this sort.

And I resent the clear belief of some U.S. senators -- and some men gathered around tables in Canadian coffee shops -- that sexual harassment is a joke and that a woman who waits ten years to go public is an opportunistic liar. So who do you believe?

I know who I would like to believe, but liking to believe is not the same as knowing. I don't know and I don't envy

REAL PERSONS

So ask me what I believe rather than who I believe.

I believe that most men can't relate to the problem of sexual harassment because they simply don't face that problem in their workplaces

I believe that the world has changed a lot in the last generation and that many men are confused about how they should relate to women.

And I believe that some women are also confused about the changes and send mixed messages about how they

And I'm not referring to the attitude of some Queen's University students that 'no' means try harder. No, I'm referring to women who want to be treated equally -- but confess that they would like a man to stop and change their flat tire and they're not sure they should feel that way.

I believe that men and women have to look past sexual and stereotypes to see real persons.

Men have to learn to see women as real persons rather than as merely objects of desire -- which is hard in a society where sex sells everything.

And women have to learn to forgive men -- especially older men who grew up in a different environment -- who genuinely try to see them as real persons but sometimes

'Genuinely trying' is the key phrase here -- men who deliberately harass women or don't try to see them as persons deserve everything they get.

People who are trying to be real don't harass. And people who are trying to be real know when to forgive.

Hard' issues

What to look for in a municipal candidate, Part I In the same way that computers have hardware and software, you might say that municipalities have 'hard' issues and 'soft' issues. We're going to start this week with a look at some of the 'hard' issues, including taxes, capital spending on roads and facilities and growth and development.

Everyone hates taxes -- that's a given. Another given is that taxes are needed to fund the services we receive. Taxes are never too high if you believe you are receiving value for your money

So you're going to have to ask yourself some questions: what services do I want -- or need -- as a resident of my municipality? What services do my neighbours need? And am I willing to pay for them or am I going to have to set some priorities?

Ask your candidates to justify the taxes they either imposed or are going to inherit. And if a candidate tells you they're going to cut taxes, ask them to show you where.

Capital spending on roads, sewers, water, arenas, etc. is where we see our tax dollars at work most visibly.

What is the state of your roads? Are your sewage and water systems adequate both for today and for tomorrow? If they aren't, don't be fooled by promises to cut taxes or hold down increases. And even if your municipality's facilities are in good shape, your candidates had better be thinking about the future. Putting every upgrade off until tomorrow will just settle your children with a tax burden for things that needed doing now

Do your candidates have any idea of what needs to be done now and do they bring a long term perspective to it? Alternatively, do they want to build facilities more as a glorification of their own egos than because your municipality needs them? Ask your candidates

Finally, everyone loves growth and development - but have we thought through the long term implications? Industry adds tax base and jobs -- but it also adds the need for services. Have we thought about the implications of increased traffic, rising demand for water and more load on the sewage system? Should you be imposing lot levies to help pay for services or will they strangle home building? Does your official plan need an update to handle changes in your community? Ask your candidates how they intend to handle development.

Why elect 3 francophone trustees?

I understand that there will be three new trustees added to the Hastings County Board of Education this year. These three new will francophones elected by francophones.

According to Grimson, superintendent of business for the board, the calculation of the number of trustees eligible is based on population. According to the figures, the number of francophone trustees should be only one, but the act says will be a minimum of three francophone trustees.

Also the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte will appoint one trustee to sit on the Hastings County Board of Education

So, if I understand this properly, the Mohawks and the English-speaking English-speaking taxpayers of Hastings County are allowed only one trustee for a certain size of population while the francophones with the same population are allowed three

Thank you Premier Bob and ex-premier David Peterson for the level playing field for all English speaking Ontarians. Thank you for Bill 8.

I must be tolerant. I don't ant to be called racist or a bigot so I must not say anything nasty or unkind I must praise our fair minded and fearless leaders for giving special rights and privileges to the minorities of Ontario.

Trustees are paid $665 per month. For the two extra francophone trustees, that's only $47,880 over the next three years. Hey, it's only tax money. The good people of Hastings County don't mind it one bit of our municipal taxes are raised over the next three years to pay for something as necessary as this. Let's face it, we are generous to a fault.

A big thank-you to our MPP for Quinte riding, Hugh O'Neil, who's been a champion for Bill 8 the French Language Services Act over the years.
The writer has heard Hugh say that one of the proudest days of his life was when Trenton and Belleville to declare themselves English only. So, I would have to take it for granted that another proud day for Mr. O'Neil was when three francophones were added to the Hastings County Board of Education to do one

Council to close library

I am a senior alone and don't drive, but I have a wonderful neighbour who does. She always takes me with her to the Thurlow library. I live alone and always spend the evening have speading. hours reading.

Now we heard last night the Thurlow council is going to close it up! Can you imagine just how many went to it and the children with their activities there during the holidays? summer

I am so angry I can't describe just how I feel. I always belonged to a library when I lived in Toronto (and it was quite away). I walked there and back because I couldn't afford to go on the street car.

When my late husband and I moved to this lovely village of Foxboro, one of the first things we did was to go into Belleville and joined the library. But when my husband took ill we had to stop going. Then it was my neighbour who invited me to go with her to Thurlow. Now I understand we will have to pay more at Belleville as we live outside of the city. This I think is most unfair. Our librarian was always helpful and cheerful with a warm smile for us old timers!

In time I expect they at Cannifton will tell us next that we really don't need our good streetlights!

I will not go to vote for any of council members come election. We always went but my, how time changes things

This whole thing makes me sick, there is just isn't any justice!

A 1918 worldwide flu epidemic peaked today. It killed 20 million people, including 400,000 to 500,000 Americans, Not your wimpy 24-hour flu after a wild bash, eh? Nor your Mepps No. 4 fever common come walleye

I could believe labs today syphon millions earmarked for heart and stroke research to artificially manipulate Aspirin-induced effects in rats and monkeys. After all, the drug pushers must be concerned that acetylsalicytic acid, not a product of animal research, continues to prove effective but remains "over the counter" ... and cheap.

Perhaps arthritis researchers even drown guinea pigs and green monkeys in WD-40 ... so eventually we'll need a doctor's prescription countersigned by a Class A mechanic to buy a can from Canadian Tire.

Green monkeys, lab favourites, gave us AIDS. How? Our most intimate contact with them comes through research.

Animal research defenders should wake up. Sweet almonds kill foxes and chickens, Parsley poisons parrots and penicillin, discovered through a microscope, murders guinea pigs. POLITICAL NOVICE CHALLENGES TRENTON INCUMBENT FOR MAYORAL du Lude wants to bring a citizen's approach to Trenton council

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Trenton mayoral candidate Claud'or du Lude knows the difference between an aspirin and an operation.

Unfortunately, too many governments on all levels go ahead these days with expensive operations at the cost of the taxpayer when a simple, inexpensive aspirin will do the job, says du Lude.

That's why he wants to parachute into the mayor's chair from a citizen's perspective, he says.

As a citizen, he says he has watched too such money thrown away by governments who don't realize the taxpayers worked for it.

du Lude, 35, has lived in Trenton since 1985 and comes from a restaurateur He studied his trade in

Because he has no past political experience, du Lude contends he owes no favours and is completely on all

'I'm not a merchant or in Challenger Claud'or du Lude big business and I don't have any particular ties to any one group. I simply want to do the best job as mayor as possible to best serve the citizens of Trenton," says du Lude of his candidacy.

He also refuses to issue platform statements on issues affecting Trenton. "I'm not making any grand statements about what needs to be done here and there in Trenton. I'm not promises either. I just want to serve as mayor," says du Lude, who actively promotes physical activities and is a serious cyclist.

He was also the organizer behind

Trenton's first triathlon this year.

"My neutrality will really help me on my job. There is too much backscratching in politics these days that goes on behind

"I won't be hindered by promises or connections and my occupation won't conflict with the duties of mayor."

A new injection of blood on council is needed to give Trenton a fresh outlook on the future for Trenton, he says.

Robertson has built his reputation on keeping taxes down

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Trenton mayoral incumbent Neil Robertson has only one policy that he lives

It's a policy that has earned him the respect and popularity of his Trenton constituents, he says, for the past four terms

He's confident his "don'tbilk-taxpayers" attitude will get him elected come Nov. 12.

"We municipal taxes here than in any other municipality in the area. Sidney has the highest average at $1,448 a year. Belleville residents pay $1,303 and in Trenton

we pay $1,096," says Robertson. "I think that speaks for itself. We don't put our taxpayers on the line to create Neil Robertson pipedreams. We're realistic and when we do something we don't go into immense debt."

Robertson briefly entered politics in 1969, serving as councillor for a year, and then stayed out of the political arena for seven years, putting his time and energy into his insurance business

In 1978 he entered the arena again to be elected as alderman before being elected,by council to replace Trenton Mayor Duncan McDonald after his unfortunate death in February 1982. He has served ever

If re-elected, Robertson says his priority for next term will be getting the sewage plant upgraded. The project is expected to cost between $20 to $30 million dollars

Other issues that need addressing include the establishment of a new generating station on the Trent River at Dam No. 1, the formation of some type of m in the city or in Quinte, revamping of Trenton's marina and revitalization of the municipal airpo

"I'm sure we can accomplish this in future because we really do have an excellent council," Robertson says.
"Although we seldom agree on all issues and do argue, the best thing is the fact that when something is voted on, it's done. We don't gripe about it. That attitude gets things done quickly.

Accessibility and openness would also continue under a Robertson municipal government.

"We've always had an open city hall since I've been here. My door is always open and if someone needs information it's all right here. We have nothing to hide.

"People really are getting tired of red-tape, procedure and closed doors. Especially when they're paying for all of this to frustrate them. We're getting taxed to death," he says. "You can largely blame the province for the mess. We're appalled at the direction in which the the NDP government dvice.

The band will be allowed to harvest 100 moose and 175 deer in their land-claim area, which will be restricted to the northeastern area of the park

Lakeport, located just south of Colborne, has been displaying some good catches as well as the mouth of Shelter Valley and Hortops Creeks. Spawn bags floated above a weighted, sliding leader has accounted for the brunt of the fish taken.

The break-wall at Wellington has also been a productive

Don't overlook the dock in Wellington either as some salmon have been taken there with small spoons such as Cleo's and Pickard Specials as well as Tadpollys and other plugs. Chartreuse shades get the nod.

Big news at Trenton is the enormous amount of whitefish being taken at the No. 1 dam. Randy Turner relates that a 64-inch sturgeon was landed, measured and released at the same location. Another fish story you say? Not so, as two other anglers witnessed the catch.

The mouth of the Trent has not yet turned on to walleye anglers. Unusual that area is usually a hot spot in the fall. Another week or two perhaps.

Renovation revives luxurious living at city's historic Bellevue Terrace

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

In the late 1800s Bellevue Terrace offered luxurious living in the heart of Belleville.

More than 100 years later, that tradition is being revived with the $1.7 million refurbishing of Bellevue Terrace, now a historical structure as designated by the Ontario Heritage Society, Bellevue Terrace cost $12,000 to build in 1873.

Owned by David Hurst of Caledon, Ont., the 18-unit building will again be a premier residence in the city when it is completed in October, says project manager Dale Welsh of Pinnacle Property Management.

"This building is on its way to becoming a premier residence once again for professionals who want something exceptional. Just like the original builders, we're creating a very respectable residence in Downtown Belleville. It's history repeating itself," says Welsh.

No reasonable expense has been spared to return the stone structure close to its original splendor.

Heat from the ground

In -30 Celsius winter weather, many Canadians depend on ground source heat pumps to heat homes and provide hot water.

While the idea of getting heat from frozen ground sounds improbable, it is a viable and growing reality.

Ground source heat pumps, or earth energy systems as they are known in Canada use loops full of antifreeze that circulate deep in the ground under a home, absorbing low grade ground heat that emanates from the earth's crust.
The first 30 m depth below typical Canadian single lot of 20 m by 30 m contains enough energy to heat, cool and provide all the hot water for ten homes all year. The absorbed heat is transferred to a heat pump inside the house and exchanged and pressurized raising the temperature. The hot refrigerant is then fed into a second exchanger where air is blown across it and forced through ducting in the home.

As many as 12 anufacturers and distributors exist in Canada. Up to 10,000 installations ere operational by 1988, say the manufacturers.

The benefits from the heat

The benefits from the heat systems are numerous. The GHSP operates efficiently and its source is constantly and naturally replenished, because ground heat is a research. heat is a renewable energy source. Since the energy sources of heat are free, compared to electrically heated homes, it delivers up to $3 worth of heat for every

S 3 worth of heat for ever $1 used to run it. And, the heating system can be reversed to provide reliable, inexpensive air conditioning in the summer months, saving more than 20 per cent in average air conditioning costs.

The Ultra thermo-masseur bath is the latest in therapeutic technology that's available by John Q. Public.

Originally invented as a therapeutic bath for the medical world, the bath has garnered an excellent reputation in hospitals, health care centres and homes for their therapeutic efficiency, sanitary protection, safety and easy cleaning.

Unlike regular whirlpool baths, which force water through only a few jets usually two to six — the Ultra thermo-masseur bath uses an energy efficient air turbine to send a stream of massaging bubbles through to 32 to 84 air jets pending make and model.

The multitude of jets clean and soften the skin, activate blood circulation, provide an important muscular relaxation, relieve back aches and strengthen relaxed

And the baths are hygienic because only fresh water is used rather than using chemically treated older

Safeguards to prevent poisoning

Home is supposed to be a haven. It's supposed to be a place where your child is safe from harm, but, there are more hazards in the average home than most parents realize.

Some hazards can be deadly unless parents or caregivers take precautions to guard against them.

Each year, thousands of poisonings involve household chemical products, many used in home renovations, and young children who have ingested them, report poison control centres. Many safeguards can be implemented and maintained in the home to prevent poisonings:

☐ Store all chemical products and pesticides well out of the reach and view of children

☐ Ensure the cap is on tightly before you buy any product and again after you use it.

☐ Always replace the cap before you set it down even if it is just for a moment when you are called away to the door of phone.

☐ Check that child-resistant containers are functioning properly and remember they are not necessarily 100 per cent child-proof.

Leave all chemical contents in their original containers because the labels provide vital information in ☐ Teach children the dangers involved with chemicals and ecnourage them to recognize symbols such as flammable (FIRE) poison (skull) corrosive (skeleton ☐ Always keep phone numbers and addresses of the posion control centre, your doctor, police and ambulance handy.

Be prepared to 'dicker' when buying and selling sports cards

perhaps the most often asked question that I answer related to cards is "What's it worth?"
Most of the time, probably because of some Irish blood in my system, I answer that question with another question.

What's it worth to you?"

By James Hurst

Naturally, if you are planning to buy some cards, you'd like a reasonable idea of how much to pay. Consult one of the many guides on the market - most dealers use Beckett or Tuff Stuff. Secondly talk to someone who knows about the value of cards - either another collector - or even a card dealer. Always keep in mind the guides aren't religiously followed by the dealers . They may charge more or less then the "book value".

If you have some cards you are planning to sell, you should have a definite figure in mind which you would like to receive when you sell them. Be prepared to take a few lumps -- most buyers will attempt to get you to lower your price by denigrating your cards, usually by criticizing their

Most dealers who buy cards have to keep in mind they will eventually have to sell them; consequently, they may not be interested in all cards you have. They will certainly not pay fall "book" price - likely 20 per cent to 50 per cent not pay tan book price - likely 20 per cent to 50 per cent of the guide price.

Be prepared to "dicker" whether buying or selling. Most of our parents grew up dickering on most products they purchased; however, it has become a lost art. Brush up on your "negotiating" skills.

Factors affecting a card's value include A. Age of the card.

- B. Popularity of the Player. C. Number Printed.
- D. Condition.
- E. Availability of the Card.
- F. Player's Performance.
- G. Manufacturer.
- P.S. Keep those cards in numerical order! Off the dining room table!

To you are planning on murdering a friend or neighbor, don't transport the body in a baby carriage. This primitive method of body transportation lacks speed, requires a great deal of effort and is noticed by all and sundry. Besides, the entire scenario displays a singular lack of class.

She had brown hair, bused to say before they comed the threat of the tale and the sand was allowed the threat of the tale and the sand was allowed the threat of the tale and the sand the sand and the sand the

Mary Pearcey stood trial for the murder of Phoebe Hogg and her baby. At the trial, prosecution attorneys attempted to trace the journey of Mary Pearcey wheeling a carriage containing a body through the streets of London. Sarah Butler took the witness stand and told of bumping against a carriage in the hall, blocking the front door of her home. When Walter Butler came home from work, Mary told him to watch his step as there was a carriage in the hall. A few minutes later, Mary and the carriage were nowhere to be seen. These encounters took place around 6 p.m. A few minutes later, a neighbor. Elizabeth Rogers, saw Mary pushing the carriage at the end of the street. Slowly, the events were pieced together. Mary had bludgooned and stabbed mother and daughter to death in her own apartment. Using the carriage, she transported Phoebe's body to Crossfield Rd., where she dumped it on the pavement. Unfortunately for her, several people saw her wheeling the carriage. They recalled that the carriage that appeared to be overloaded. That took care of Phoebe. Planting for spring

Nurseries usually stock only two-year biennials, ready to flower and this allows you to take immediate advantage of the you to take immediate advantage of the botanicals profuse seed production. Once seed pods have matured, simply scatter the seed and remove the mother plants. These seeds will germinate the following spring and flower in year two. years in a row and truly be forgotten. Plants with pink blossoms have emerged in the nursery, but in my experience revert to blue the second year Foxglove ardent weeder doesn't destroy the spring crop. Plant the same species in the same location the following year, follow the same process and from that point on, your biennial crop will be permanent.

Some Selections

Not all of the plants listed below are true biennials. For example, Hollyhocks are really short-lived perennials. Mulleins have erratic flowering patterns, some flowering the first year, some flowering the second year and others continuing to flower for a number of years. Both are best treated as

Canterbury Bells

The Canterbury Bell is a magnificent biennial species of the perennial Campanula or Peach Bell Flower. During the second year of its growth, it sends up 1 1/2 to 3 foot flower stalks that produce bell-shaped flowers in white, pink or purple. some varieties show a bell with in a bell. Others are called "Cup and Saucer", an appropriate name for the shape of its flowers. Propagate annually from seed.

Forget-Me Nots

A delightful little alpine with profusions of sky-blue flowers every spring. Since it self-seeds profusely, it can be planted two

The common purple foxglove, while native to Europe and Great Britain, is also grown in Canada and will come true to seed. But North America has produced some magnificent hybrids (Shirley and Excelsior strains for example) that are well worth growing annually from seed. Plant in dappled shade and they will produce masses of large bell-shaped flowers (sometimes spotted) on four or five foot stems and in a wide range of colours. Holly Hocks

Really a short-lived perennial that is best grown as a biennial. The old botanical will self-seed on a mass basis, producing masses of flowers almost every colour except blue on towering stems. The newer hybrids (powder Puffs) should be seeded annually.

Iceland Poppies

A sub-arctic native, the Iceland Poppy is one tough plant for all of canada but resents soaring summer temperatures and high humidity. Creped, saucer-like blooms in orange, yellow, salmon pink or white are produced all summer and are great for cutting. They will flower in late summer from seed planted in the spring and like the Forget-Me-Not, are yours forever when sown two years in a row. Full sun or dappled shade

Mulleins or Verbascum are really short-lived perennials that, like the Hollyhock, are best treated as biennials. The common Mullein seen in late summer along roadsides has attractive silvery foliage and a column of yellow flowers on six-foot stems and will come true from seed. But there are many other strains that are well worth growing from seed, e.g. Cotswold Beauty, Cotswold Gem, and Gainsborough, they love full sun and sandy soil.

Magnificent hybrids produce a burst of welcome spring colour and will in many instances, self seed. But the second year flowers are usually tiny but in their defense, produce some of the most unusual colour combinations in the garden. If these don't satisfy, grow your own from seed or buy new plants every spring.

The best way to get started in biennials next season is to head this winter to your library or a nursery that has a good selection of gardening books. What you are looking for is a perennials text that features a section on biennials. Once you decide on the species you want, you can look forward to a new gardening adventure next spring.

A preliminary hearing into complaints of professional misconduct and excessive force against the Trenton Police Department has been completed.

No decision, however, has been rendered by mediators Ontario Civilian Commission of Police Services.

Commission chairman W.D. Drinkwalter and advisor Gordon Hampson met with complainant Doug Little and members of the Trenton Police Department last Tuesday at Trenton City Hall. Mayor Neil Robertson

Drinkwalter said the complaints will be weighed during the next month to determine whether a full hearing will be conducted into the matter.

A report will be issued to Little and Trenton Police in late November. The complaints stem from an incident Jan. 8, 1990 in which Little charges he was hit several times in the back and that officers acted outside their authority.

Teaching literacy: gift of learning

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Teaching someone to read entails more than just explaining word association and spelling. It's a belief strongly held by Gwyne Foster, chairman of the Literacy Link of Eastern Ontario, an umbrella organization of which Quinte Literacy is a member

According to Foster. tutors are empowering their students with the gift of learning, expression and self confidence in a world becoming that is increasingly communicative.

Foster spoke at the Quinte Literacy annual meeting last Wednesday night at Belleville city hall.

"Tutors are responsible not just for teaching literacy, but also for creating an awareness in the student of the ramifications of their new new-found ability to read and write," said Foster.
"Reading and writing, especially one's signature is very important in a world where your signature means everything. Empowering someone to read and write is a very positive and powerful thing. You literally change that person's life. Once they can read and write better they're a freed person."

Foster is a firm believer and advocate of plain, readable English.

'We really have to be careful when selecting the material. If it's too complicated they won't be able to learn properly," she says. "On the other hand, if the subject material is easy to grasp the student can learn valuable things at the same time as learning how to read."

Literacy groups across the province are realizing the advantages of simple, plain English material.

Quinte Literacy, mean-while, has done a lot of learning on its own from May 1990 to Aug. 1991, reported past president Michael Chomey.

"The period ... was one of enormous change for Quinte Literacy. From a fledgling association with one delivery program, one paid staff member and a total operating budget of less than $40,000, we grew to become a well-structured corporation encompassing three delivery programs, five paid-staff members and a current budget in excess of $130,000," said

Chorney attributed the success largely to committed coordinators Chris Marks, Cathy Mates and Pat Melling.

New board members elected at the annual meeting for 1991-1992 are as follows: Frank Bemben, Annette Keogh, Silvia Langer, Dennis Luther, Anne Madill, Mike Moore, Mary Lou Ross, Helen Thompson and Don

And maybe he would finally find a use for his muchvannted negotiating skills. The skilled negotiator image never cut much ice here, maybe because Canadians sensed he seemed to be starting with the wrong premise — that Canada wasn't so much a country that needed to be held together by a common vision as a group of nations that could pragmatically split the constitutional pie in behind-the-doors wheeling and dealing.

And finally, he would never have to run for re-election again. No more polls at 12 per cent and sinking!

BALONEY

A few years ago, the world Olympic organization registered the name 'olympic' for their own exclusive use. Since then, they have threatened lawsuits against anyone who uses the word in any other context. Which is why, for the purposes of this column, we will use the word 'baloney' whenever we want to use the word 'olympic'.

It seems the Baloney committee doesn't like other people to use the word because they are afraid it might be misleading, causing people to mistake that baloney for the

'Soft' issues

What to look for in a municipal candidate, Part II. In the same way that computers have hardware and software, you might say that municipalities have 'hard' issues and 'soft' issues. This week, we will turn to some of 'soft' issues, which include social issues, the quality of life and the manner in which government operates.

Social issues include hunger and homelessness. At a recent meeting of the Community Development Council, it became obvious that many of our elected officials simply don't know that some people in their communities go hungry or even homeless. Ask your candidates if they know if they want to serve their community, then they had better have some understanding of the people who live in it, including the disadvantaged.

Social assistance is another issue that has cropped up in Hastings County. Reeves and deputy reeves are your local representatives to county council. Ask them if they agree with county council's attempt to disclose the names of people receiving social assistance despite rules that enforce confidentiality

Quality of life covers a wide range of issues, including the environment, the arts, recreational programs and parks. These issues often tie into 'hard' issues of facilities.

For example, upgrading sewers is expensive but necessary if we want to improve water quality in the bay. And water quality ties into development -industries often look for communities with a good quality of life that will help them attract and hold workers

Parks are a similar kind of issue. In Belleville. some city council members were ready to give away waterfront property to private developers rather than follow their own plan to develop it as parkland for all citizens

Ask your candidates specific questions about issues that have an impact on the quality of your life. Do they care about quality of life? Or do they have other priorities? Ask them.

Finally, your local government should be open and accessible to every resident, regardless of status. As well, your local council should work in harmony as a group and with other governments. Are your candidates open and accessible? Are they team players that will cooperate with others? Ask

Generosity tested

The Editor:

While starvation and natural disaster afflict millions of people worldwide, residents of Belleville have helped show that Canadian generosity is not running dry.

In 1991, tragedies ranging from the Gulf War to a volcano in the Philippines have drawn heavily on charitable giving. People have begun to talk about donor fatigue, and wonder whether Canadians can really make a difference.

Bangladesh, one of the world's most impoverished nations, suffered the most lethal storm of the decade earlier this year. It killed over 125,000 people. Canadian-funded shelters saved thousands from the cyclone. Food and medical supplies sustained survivors in the chaos after the winds died away.

I am glad to report that 24 Bangladesh Bangladesh children, supported through World Vision Canada by sponsors in the vicinity of Belleville, have survived the recent tragedy. The monthly donations provide food clothing, education and medicine for the children, as well as helping their communities become selfsupporting. Without this help these communities would have been illprepared for the cyclone and the casualties in Bangladesh would have would have been much higher.

At a time when Canadian generosity has been tested, l wish to commend the people in your community who e shown that goodwill is still in good supply, by helping ensure a future for children in Bangladesh.

Don Scott President World Vision Canada

Depressing business

depression; we move me neighborhoods.

Depressions bring out compassion, concern, and deep human feelings in people. For instance, we do things with our old clothes we've never done before ... like wear them.

In a recession we tighten belts. In a depression we have no belts. But that doesn't matter if we have no pants to hold up anyway. And when the Great One took the wind out of up anyway. And when the Great One took the wind out of our sales, it certainly caught us with our plants down. But it wasn't immediately apparent we were in a depression. The market had already plunged through the weck leading up to Oct. 29 while bankers and industrial leaders assured us business was "fundamentally sound."

As late as March 7, 1930, President Hoover boasted "Prospertiy is just around the corner." That corner wasn't exactly a hairpin curve. The Great Depression finally troughed in 1933, and most argue it never ended till the Second World War began.

At its peak, 16 million Americans were unemployed—about a third of the available work force. Canada fard somewhat better with one in five jobless.

Amid such wholesale poverty Siamese twins would have had trouble making ends meet. Yet no matter how bad things got, we went on living ... even if it killed us.

That's the funny part about thigh costs of living. It's a popular activity, so we gladly pay. Now if the poor could die for the rich, we'd all make a decent living.

"With The Richmond's reputation, we knew we could feel confident."

"When Mum decided to move to a retirement home, I wanted to make sure we found the right kind of place. Fortunately she'd heard about The Richmond. It's great to know that such a well-managed facility is so close to home. The Richmond has a seven-year track record of excellent service to the Belleville-Quinte area.

"The Richmond is perfect for retirement living. They offer spacious rooms, 24-hour security and a convenient central location. Housekeeping service and delicious, well-balanced meals mean she'll be

What to look for in sports cards

In last week's article, several factors were noted that affect the value of a card. Today, we'll look at some other factors.

1. Age, Much like coins and postage stamps, a card's age is a determining factor. A common card from a 1911 hockey set is worth 550 whereas a common card from a current set is worth less than two cents.

2. Player's Popularity. Perhaps the prime example is Brett Hull — once he broke the 50 goal barrier, his rookie card (the 1988-89 OPC and Topps cards) increased in value dramatically.

Brett's marketability is second only to Wayne Gretzky's in the United States. His card values reflect his popularity with the fans (look for the new video release called Brett Hull: Hockey's Top Gun). The most valuable cards from the 1950s are also the most popular players -- Bobby Hull, Gordie Howe, Maurice Richard and Terry Sawchuck are prime Number Printed. To the best of my knowledge, card companies have never disclosed the number of cards they issue. Naturally, fewer cards were printed in the 1950s and

Only the manufacturers know for certain how many cards are printed, and since they do not release such information, we have no idea about the scarcity of

4. Condition. A card's condition has a great influence on its value. Most guides have a reference code from mint to poor to determine a card's condition. The in-between grades are debatable -- and negotiable in a sale. Be careful with those corners. The less handling the better!

5. Availability. Local interest will affect a card's availability. However, most cards are from a dealer, either local or in a big city.

6. Player's Performance. Last year, Jaromir Jagr had such an outstanding season and showed such promise that his rookie card shot up to the $5 to $10 range quite quickly. He is electrifying audiences in Pittsburgh again this ye with his spectacular play, so don't be surprised to see his card value double in the next six months.

7. Manufacturer. Collectors prefer certain cards for many reasons -- quality, style, price, prospective characteristics.

Upper Deck's 1989 baseball cards were a cut above the rest and sales skyrocketed. Pro Set seems to be somewhat less in demand although their PLATINUM editions are best

O Pee Chee, the Canadian manufacturer, has always dominated the hockey card market. Score, Fleer, Topps and Bowman are all competing for the collector's dollar Whatever the collector chooses is a winner.

ARTHUR AND REVILL CHALLENGE SIDNEY REEVE NOBLES

"I've noticed during the past year that the council chamber in Sidney has been filled with people who are very concerned about the direction in which their home is being taken," says Arthur, a Sidney Township councillor in 1983 to 1985 before assuming the reeve position in 1985

They're mad, fearful and distrustful of the new push to make the township into a metropolis. I want to protect our open, suburban-rural home from this," he says.

Arthur says Sidney voters are also very angry about the large amounts of money being spent on big ticket items such as the approved Bayside Water Treatment plant

"Right now, Sidney and Township, and particularly those in Bayside and Montrose Road areas, should be getting water from the original $10 million plant that was cancelled in 1989 by today's council," says Arthur, "and yet, there are still delays supposedly up until 1993 and with double the price tag. We should have went with the cheaper but just as effective water plant."

☐ Must get council working again as a cohesive group, with each member thinking on their own.

☐ The reeve has to get back to the point where he is coordinator and not dictator, where he speaks the least and not the most. Remember, he says, the reeve has no more power, in effect, than any other member of council. He too, only has one vote.

More open and accessible government is needed. You can't run a public operation hind closed doors with speakers coming through the back.

• More cooperation is needed between neighbours, namely to resolve problems such as getting water to Marshall Road and

Revill vies for unified council in Sidney

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Sidney Township Reeve candidate Alan Revill says he's anything but a "yes'

He likes to do his homework before voting on any issue that affects taxpayers and their hard-earned tax dollars.

An experienced consultant with seven ears municipal councillor experience in Haliburton, Revill believes he has the "stuff" to assume leadership of Sidney Township. Revill has also just completed a municipal administrative course at St. Lawrence College in Kingston. Revill moved to Sidney Township seven years

And Sidney doesn't need a giant water plant for a population of 5,000 that is expected to only grow by 3,000 in the next 20 years, says Revill.

'Not only are people in the immediate area going to pay for this, but so are the Ontario taxpayers for the $16 million plus in grant

Other issues Revill supports:

☐ Councillors should be more open to rigorous debating rather than passing the wishes of a reeve or letting the reeve position dominate the system.

☐ Councillors should divy committee responsibilities between themselves rather than all sitting on the same committees to avoid overlap and "burnout".

□ Keeping taxes down by becoming more efficient. For example, rather than adding on to the municipal office space by building, the reeve's office could be relocated to the basement to create more room for the township staff

The Sidney Township incumbent as reeve, Nobles says Sidney Township has emerged as a growing and prospering municipality in the Quinte region, municipality in the Quiline region, particularly in the past three years under his leadership and township council.

He wants to continue that progress after Sidney Township voters hit the polling Stop winter kill in garden: 5 tips how don't feed until new growth is well under matter of fate. And successful growing from harvested seeds and cuttings is more that a matter of luck. Both are by-products of proper preparation and that's what the five don'ts (and do's) that follow, are all about.

Some are a matter of common sense, other go against popular practices. But all will work in minimizing winter kill in your lawns and gardens and maximizing your propagating success.

1. DON'T LET YOUR LAWN GO LONG... Once the trees, shrubs and evergreens have packed it in, the temptation evergreens have packed it in, the temptation is great to pack in the power mower as well—but don't. Long after most garden plants have nodded off, your lawn, under the urging of the Fall rains and-cooler temperatures, is still undergoing a surge of grouth.

2. DON'T TAKE CUTTINGS... It's too 2. DON'T TARE CUTTINGS. Its up.
late in the season for taking plant cuttings for indoor propagation. As soon as temperatures started to drop, plants started to harden off just for the sake of survival. Tough plant tissue is the last thing you want in the plants to propagate pew plants. in your attempts to propagate new plants from old plants.

You can take whole plants, but don't try to take them with the root/soil ball intact because garden soil in indoor climates soon goes the consistency of concrete.

Instead, cut back the tops by at least half, shake the roots free of dirt (even wash them), and cut them back as well. Re-pot the plant in a soil-less mix and set in a cool dark place for a week. Them set in a sunny window or under fluorescent lights and don't feed until new grown is well under way. And watch your success rate climb. 3. DON'T RAKE LEAVES... While gardens should be sent into winter clean and neat (to deprive bugs of winter homes), lawns should not be raked clean. That is a Gardening and Growing with Ross Hawthorne good waste of the organic matter for which most lawns are starved. Instead, pulverize most tawns are starved. Instead, pulverize those leaves with your power mower, even if it takes two or three passes, and by spring there will be little or no sign of them. When you add a high nitrogen fertilizer next spring, those leaf bits will break down and add a cooling, water-retaining mulch that grass plants love so well.

And don't worry about thatch. Unless your lawn has low, wet patches or is in deep shade, thatch is the last thing you have to be concerned about.

4. DON'T FEED ROSES... Late season feeding encourages the growth of soft new tissue and the last thing you want is roses going into winter fat and flabby. Rather, allow Nature to take its course and let your roses harden off naturally. If you feed them any later than mid-summer, then just before mounding, cut them back by at least one

What you should do is spray them with a good fungicide and remove all dead leaves, especially those decorated with a dusky spot surrounded by a bright yellow ring. That is the deadly black spot and all affected leaves

5. DON'T TOP DRESS WITH TOP SOIL... Or manure either, for that matter. Rather, close the book on those old wives' tales and turn to the soil-less mixes. Manure doesn't contain enough nutrients to be classified as a fertilizer, but what it does classified as a fermizer, but what it does contain is weed seeds by the hundreds of thousands, plus fungus and disease organisms galore. Top soil, coming as it probably did from well-manured farm land, is not much better. And it also has the unpleasant characteristic of smothering grass roots. The soil-less mixes are porous, lightweight and are totally free of unwanted ingredients. Where your lawn is sparse, scatter and fan-rake a 5.5 cu. ft. bale over every 1,000 square feet. Where your lawn is thick, use half that amount. And it's arould idea to be part and for exemple. a good idea to seed and feed as well.

The other Canadian is Belleville air gun sharp shooter Mike Deveraux, Patterson's shooting companion and training buddy.

Price leap angers independent taxi drivers

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Angry independent taxi drivers in Belleville say an 86 to 90 per cent increase in radio air time payouts to parent company Central and Checker Taxi could force them into the soup lines.

Or at the very least, thrust them into 60 to 70-hour work weeks just to cover the cost of doing business.

Checker and Central Taxi owner Grant Devolin says he has to either increase the air time rates or 'the entire business goes down the tubes

However, Checker and Central Taxi owner Grant Devolin says he has to either increase the air time rates or "the entire business goes down the tubes." The rate went into effect yesterday for the 50 owner-operator taxi drivers in Belleville

In an interview, one independent owner/operator who requested anonymity for fear of his job said 10 to 15 owner/operators are considering giving up their cabs on the heels of the increases. He said six had already quit.

The results of Quinte Weekly News' voter survey are in and they aren't pretty if you're an incumbent politician.

A total of 93 surveys were received, and while they don't offer anything like a scientific poll of public opinion, they do give a good snapshot of what at least some

The overall mood seems to be one of anger in a variety of areas.

As well, survey after survey said that the single most important quality in a politician should be honesty. But the respondents were often cynical about the honesty displayed by their politicians. As one voter said in response to the question: "honesty -if it is possible in our society." ANGRY ABOUT TAXES

Most of the anger centred on taxes. A total of 75 per cent said they thought municipal taxes were too high for the services they received. The same number said they weren't satisfied they received top value for their tax dollars.

Similarly, 68 per cent said they didn't think their local schools provided good educational value for their tax dollars. Fully 60 per cent weren't satisfied with the education their children receive or received.

And that theme came through repeatedly when voters said what they thought the top issue should be: taxes, they said, again and again. Especially school taxes.

TAX COMMENTS

Here are some of the things you said

"The municipal portion of taxation is being fairly spent and providing good services, but the county portion is too high and the school tax portion is outright theft with teachers and administrators being grossly overpaid for the number of days they work, benefits received, job secutiry and pensions," argued a Sidney Township voter. "Yet, school boards keep giving them higher wages and benefits each year while the average taxpayer struggles just to keep trophy won't be easy.

"I hope to take some sportsmanship to Florida and that, win or lose, Canadians don't take a back seat to any other country," says Patterson, sitting in his living room, cradling his British-manufactured Daystate 2000 air rifle, the only one of its kind in Canada. His prized woodstock air rifle, equipped with a Leupold-premiere scope, will travel with him. Team member Deveraux:

"I really hope that we can convince our competitors that we're in the running, even though there's only two of us and that we're from Canada. I know we can rank right up there with the best in the world."

Patterson championship organizers are "delighted" with the Canadian entries: "Our involvement brings even more of an international flavour to the competitions."

He expects that Canadian flavour to continue as the sport grabs a toehold in Canada with more and more air gun enthusiasts. Canada lags far behind England, where interest in the sport erupted eight years ago. sport first hit the United States about four years ago. it continues to grow there.

"I think you're going to see air gunning in Canada grow in the next five years. It really has a way of growing on you," says

Deveraux increasingly restrictive gun laws with more regulations on the horizon may force gun enthusiasts into air gunning.

"There has been talk that gun laws will be getting stricter and I can see it getting more troublesome to own or transport big rifles down the road," says Deveraux, who likes to hunt when time permits. Patterson, on the other hand, is strictly a target

Innovations and designs Innovations and designs for much larger calibre pellets — up to 30 calibre — are making air guns and pellet guns better guns for hunting small quarry such as rabbits and partridge.

Large-bore air guns, however, aren't new. In fact, the air gun was first invented by Austrian watchmaker and inventor Bartholomeo Girandoni in

He used 50 to 60 calibre lead balls that could be shot quickly compared to the muzzle-loaded musket of the day. Austrian snipers used the repeating pneumatic rifles to snipe at Napoleon Bonaparte's French troops, striking terror into their adversaries.

A French soldier could be killed at 150 yards in relative silence, without any boom, flash or smoke to give away the sniper's position. The Austrian air un sharpshooters were hanged when caught.

The origins of the air gun, however, date even farther back to a time when no one kept records.

The first air guns were poison air guns invented by native peoples of South America, Africa and Pacific Rim regions, says Pattersor

"Blow guns were really the very first guns of any kind. They're still used today," says Patterson.

Perpetrating a fraud on the princess

What's wrong with Canada? Why do we feel we have to perpetrate a fraud on the Princess of Wales?

Because we did, you know. When the princess visited the new wing of the Ottawa Heart Institute last week, she chatted with patients, commiserating with their Except that they weren't actually patients. The new wing doesn't have any

DEBT COLLECTING IS NO SWEAT!

Great news for hard economic times: you can collect your bills with just a little bit of sweat!

Apparently a British company has discovered that a whiff of a man's armpit is a powerful persuader. A pheromone called adrostenone (got that? there'll be a qui later), found in the sweat men produce in their armpits. seems to have a magical effect on debtors. The company found that 17 per cent more people receiving bills treated with the odor paid up than those who were sent odor-free

You think that's a joke? The company is marketing the substance to debt collectors at $6,000 (U.S.) per gram. Hmmm. Might be cheaper to use our own. Maybe we'll have to get all the men together here and run the bills through before mailing them.

Yes, that's a threat. Pay up or else!

Good people

What to look for in a municipal candidate, Part III. This is the final editorial in the series.

You've found a candidate who agrees with you on every issue and you're ready to head off for the polling booth to pencil in an 'X' next to his or her name. Hang on a minute, though. There's still one more area to take a look at: the candidate's personal qualities. Having all the 'right' answers is not the same as being the 'right' kind of person.

Candidates need to have some organizational and management skills. They have to have an ability to see the big picture as well as details. They have to have a sense of public duty and responsibility

But the bedrock bottom line for any candidate is

Honesty is one of the meanings of integrity, but integrity means more than that. It suggests a 'wholeness' about a person. An honest politician won't lie to you, but a politician with integrity will tell you the truth. There is a difference: an honest politician won't cheat you, but a politician with integrity will actively seek your best interest.

Someone who has integrity lives a certain way there is no difference between their public and private life, no sense of an act, an image or a mask between you and them. Their public and private lives are woven from the same cloth.

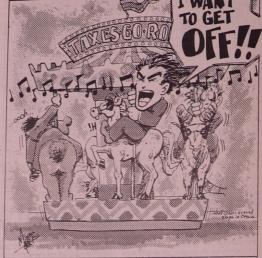

Integrity suggests someone who is willing to genuinely listen to people and someone who has compassion. Why? Because he or she believes that other people have worth Integrity suggests a certain toughness, too, a willingness to stand up for a principle no matter what the personal cost.

How do you find out whether a candidate has integrity? If you don't know a candidate personally, find someone who does. If you can't do-that, then watch them in action. Watch for how they act before or after they go 'on stage'. Do they act the same in the spotlight as out of it?

One final word before the election. When looking for a candidate, you could do worse than apply the words of the Apostle Paul on love found in the famous passage of I Corinthians 13:"Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It is not rude, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, it keeps no record of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth. It always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres.'

Questions raised by Tricom Developments land flin

At a Monday, Oct. 21 Belleville city council meeting At a Monday, Oct. 21 Benevine cry council meeting. Theresa Kellaway revealed new evidence obtained under the Freedom of Information Act about the issuing of cheques in the land flip that saw Tricom Developments earn windfall profits of $306,000 in the purchase of land the city wanted for industrial park just days after Sears decided to be least benefits. decided to locate here.

We have been asked for our views on this issue First, we agree with Mrs. Kellaway's lawyer, who told her At this time, it is impossible for us to make any determination as to whether city official divulged information or whether they acted with deliberate lack of haste in taking steps to acquire the property in question so that Tricom Developments could acquire an interest and resulting economic advantage."

Tricom appeared on the scene almost immediately after Sears notified the city that it planned to purchase property here for its warehouse operation. That information could however, have come from any number of sources both here in Belleville and Toronto and is not necessarily proof that someone at city hall improperly notified the company of the transaction. In the absence of any facts to the contrary, we assume that city officials acted with propriety

We do, however note two areas of concern: first, the manner in which the cheques were issued by the city and second, the speed with which the city concluded its offer to Second, unsequent to the more and the property.

The city issued two cheques, both dated for the lune 15 closing date. One for $100,000 was issued to Tricom while the balance of the purchase price was issued to the city solicitor in trust. This is not an illegal procedure and Mrs. Kellaway's lawyer notes that City Administrator Cliff Belch's explanation appears satisfactory.

However, the city clerk appears to have stated categorically several times in open council later that both cheques were issued in trust to the city solicitor. That would appear to have been misleading, to say the least.

Moreover, the $100,000 cheque happens to be identical to the amount that Tricom Developments had to put up in trust for its June 15 closing date. In effect, issuance of the cheque directly to Tricom meant the company could purchase the property without committing any of its own funds towards the sale. In effect, the city was underwriting Tricom's $100,000 down payment that was being held in trust until the June 15 closing trist until the June 15 crossing.

Second, when the city made its original offers to purchase the Lindsay farm, it set a closing date of Sept. 29, saying that the offer had to be subject to formal approval by city council and by the Ontario Municipal Board. Furthermore, it offered three payments spread over two years.

Yet, when the city made its deal with Tricom, it set a closing date of June 15 and came up with every cent of the offer on that date. Again, the rush to conclude the deal, in our opinion, enabled Tricom to purchase the property with little or no cash flow implications for itself.

To conclude, we do not believe that anything illegal took place in the land flip -- but we have serious questions about the city's handling of the transaction that allowed a private company to make $306,000 profit with little or no investment of cash itself.

Kerry Soden Kerry Soden will be seeking his fourth term as alderman in Belleville this fall.

A chartered accountant. Soden views his financial experience as essential to his job as a council member. He and his father Ken operate Soden & Co., a Belleville accounting practice.

Soden says he has a number of concerns for the coming term.

He supports the building of a new water treatment plant in Belleville rather plant in Belleville rather than in Wellington, saying a new plant in the city would save taxpayers millions of dollars. The cost of a pipeline from Wellington would only serve to increase the city's debt, he says.

Council must lead by example, he says, noting his proposal to limit the next council pay increase to 3 per cent.

As a member of council. Soden is chairman of the civic square committee. He is also a member of the planning committee and the recycling committee.

In the past, he has been chairman of the economic development committee and a member of the parks and recreation committee.

He has also served on the YMCA board and was the organization's president.

Soden supported the citizens' committee that opposed development of the Meyer's Pier land, arguing instead that it should be zoned for parkland. He also supported a citizens' petition to set up a ward system in the city.

The fact sheet on the Ford Explorer looks like this: It's powered by a 4 litre, 155 horsepower V6 engine that provides a good amount of grunt both on and off road, and it's available with push button four wheel drive or with rear wheel drive only.

Transmission choices are a four speed automatic or a five speed manual, and brakes are disc up front and drum on the rear with an anti-lock system that works only on the rear wheels. The interior of the Explorer is spacious, airy, and well designed. and well designed. Thoughtful touches like a strap to help yank the rear assigned to that task don't have to get their hands dirty.

Cargo loading is easy not only because the rear door swings up but also because the rear window can be opened and swung up out of the way separately. The spare tire doesn't occupy valuable cargo space or hang out on the rear door -it's stowed underneath.

The only complaint about on-road handling is that the Explorer does have a bit of a floaty feeling when negotiating potholes. The four wheel drive version is priced from the low to high twenties, depending on options. The Explorer rates an 8.7 out of 10.

Taxes top anger list for voters

"If money was managed the way most household budgets were, we would get a lot more done for our tax dollars."

You can hardly get stopped in time for the traffic light, it's so bumpy. Some country roads are smoother than our streets in the city."

"The roads in the Parkdale area have had only 'patch jobs' since 1960."

☐ "Traffic flows during the afternoon are abysmal (in Belleville). Traffic lights are not co-ordinated. A good solution would be to ban parking in Bridge Street between Church and Cedar Streets during afternoon rush in order to improve downtown area

"Belleville has something no other city in Canada has -- roads in the worst possible

CRIME WORRIES

Crime is definitely an issue - fully 80 per cent of those who responded said they were afraid of rising crime in their community. Front Street at Victoria in Belleville was called "scary" at night by one reader.

On the other hand, another Belleville reader was more afraid of "crime in the

SOCIAL ISSUES

Social issues stirred up a particularly wide variety of respons

As one might expect, 54 percent said social assistance benefits, a favourite whipping boy, were too high and too easy

On the other hand, 52 per cent said we need more affordable housing in the community. And a surprising 62 per cent said they thought hunger was a problem in thier community.

Comments ranged especially widely: "Trenton has an abundance of housing, why should tax dollars be used to provide new housing for people, many of whom are too lazy too work. Welfare recipients should be compelled to work when jobs are a "A common mistake of blaming those

☐ "I know too many young families that are not surviving. The food bank alone would attest to this. Violence on the streets and at home are increasing due to financial

"We have many young women and children alone, no fault of their own in many cases, trying to live on maybe $1,000 a month, which is impossible with the rents being charged as they are. Some are dumps and someone should be checking them."

☐ "A lot more is needed to help the handicapped people."

GO GREEN

The environment was definitely an area of concern. Fully 89 per cent said they worried about the quality of their drinking ter, one respondent noting that they drink only bottled water. Some felt the city of Belleville should get its drinking water from Lake Ontario. Others felt differently:

☐ "It is not necessary to spend $25 million on a pipeline to Lake Ontario -- and there is no guarantee on the water from Lake Ontario

Another noted that the environment should the number one issue: "The green plan requests that individual communities must clean up their act. The present (Belleville) council is too concerned with

One reader, however, disagreed: "Don't let environmentalists have so much say in the community! Enough is enough with

DEVELOPMENT

An open and accessible council is one of the hottest issues, judging from comments made by many respondents. And the issue revolves around the handling of development and growth.

While 32 per cent felt their council was

Similarly, 25 per cent thought development and growth were being handled wisely with an eye towards what is best for the long run -- but 58 per cent

The number one issue in Belleville is "accessible, responsible government with more numbers of elected officials

The number one issue in Belleville is "honesty, integrity and openess of government."

SCHOOL ANGER

But if voters seems alientated and cynical about their local council, they seem even more alienated and angry with their schools -- 55 per cent didn't think schools adequately supported the values they teach at home while another 22 per cent didn't

The distance voters felt between themselves and their schools came through when they were asked if teachers and administrators were generally open and responsive to the concerns of parents. Only 29 per cent said yes, while 29 per cent said no and 42 per cent didn't know. Opinion was split over whether teacher

EDUCATION COMMENTS

Here are some of your comments:

What is the number one issue i this election? Education dollars, because we're not getting our money's worth."

□ "Our school system has gotten out of control. The education tax we pay is ridiculous and most of it goes to support inflated salaries of teachers, principals and others who have been getting exorbitant increases for the past decade. The increase they are being given this year is an absolute they are being given has year is an absonute crime compared with many others getting zero per cent. I think they have been given far too many perks and benefits as well."

Overwhelmingly, voters are saying they long for a return to values in government -- and they don't seem to sense them much in the way governments currently operate.

An example is the cynicism expressed by one reader who urged honesty "if it is possible in our society."

Readers want to see elected official practice what they preach — "walk the talk" was the pithy comment of one reader

Air time rate hike angers taxi drivers

Story Cont. From Front Other owner/operators in his fleet understand his position and are just thankful that they have a job, he says.

"I can't make everyone happy. I keep telling them this isn't a bank and we're in a serious recession," Says Devolin. "We had to increase the airtime because our auditors found we were $80,000 in the red last year and that we weren't charging enough."

Up until yesterday, owner-operators were charged $5.50 per hour, which amounted to $220 a week

Owner/operators can't believe the rate has increased to a flat rate of $410 for night operators and $391 for daytime drivers.

"How the hell are we going to pay Mr. Devolin-$1,600 a month when we're only grossing $800 a week on average?" demanded the anonymous independent.
"We still have to pay for our gas, oil, car maintenance and our car payment and the rest of our bills out of this money and still pay airtime.

It's impossible."

He continued: "That's hy so many of us are talking about giving up the business. I can promise you, a pile of us are going to quit very soon because we just can't do it."

But, counters Devolin, if it wasn't for the Checker Taxi and Central Taxi, the owner/operators couldn't survive the overhead on "It costs anywhere from $4,000 to $5,000 a year just for insurance on a taxi. We're lucky because we've been in the business for 36 years and we get a fleet cost. But our company still doesn't like to insure us," Devolin says. "And when a driver comes into our business, he's reaping the benefits of a taxi business that 36 years old and that everyone knows in everyone Belleville."

The anonymous owneroperator, however, contends Devolin is grabbing for more money from business he's "monopolized too long."

the city in the hands of Devolin?" he asks. "If I wanted to go down and get a licence for myself I couldn't, and that's not fair. Someone should call an investigation into this. Nobody should be allowed to corner a market in a city the size of Belleville."

But, Devolin says, he doesn't own a monopoly.

"You can't call this a monopoly," he contends. "When Bluebird closed, I got their licences. This really is a tough racket, and when I hear talk like that I could throw the towel in. What really makes me mad is that I have $250,000 lent out to my owner/operators so that they could buy my cars without a down payment, and this is how some of them return the Devolin is inviting the Police Commission to audit his books.

"They're more than welcome to see that this move is justified," he says. "I had to increase the airtime or I wouldn't be in business anymore.

inter-department

Staff Sgt. Jack O'Donnell to Belleville Police Chief R. L. Begbie supports Devolin's comments. Oct. 2 and 3 testing of the taxi meters recently by Belleville police showed meters registered accurately.

And: "The exemplary condition of taxis both internally and externally, along with favorable comments from owneroperators indicate that the overall operations continue to be excellent," says O'Donnell in the memo.

Taxi drivers request action

By Derek Baldwin

Mayor George Zegouras has asked Belleville Police Chief Bob Begbie to compare Belleville's Central and Checker Taxi airtime rates to those in five other municipalities.

So who's really raising the kids?

A recent federal education study revealed that school-aged Canadian youngsters spend more time watching television than going to school. According to the study, youngsters spend an average of 1,040 hours per year in front of the tube versus about 900 hours in the classroom.

While educators struggle with the issue of how to teach values, youngsters actually learn them from the Bundy's and Homer kids

How much time do the average parents spend with their children compared to the time children spend being shaped in school or in front of the television?

Let's say an hour every weekday morning, shaving and showering and fixing breakfast and school lunches. Not top quality time, maybe, but still a chance to model values for your kids.

In most families today, both parents work, so nobody's home when the kids get there. Except the TV.

So, let's say one of the parents gets home at around 5 p.m. Dinner has to be gotten ready, the table set and then what? Drive the kids off to a hockey practice or music lesson or maybe just crash together in front of the TV.

When's bedtime? Maybe 9 p.m. on average, shall we say? Earlier, of course for younger children, later for older, but then, when they get older how often are they around the house anyway?

So far, we're up to an average of five hours a day, 20 hours a week.

On weekends, we'll let you sleep in until 9 a.m. You've got errands to run, housework and odd jobs around the house to catch up on, not to mention meals to fix and dishes to wash

The kids probably go to bed a little later -- 10 p.m. maybe? So now we're up to 46 hours a week. Multiply that by 52 weeks of the year to total 2,392 hours. About 500 hours less than your kids will sleep this year. Not much more than they'll spend in school and watching television

And don't forget that some of the television watching takes place while you're around. Maybe you all veg out and watch a show together, glued to the screen. Or maybe the adults check out their own shows in the living room while the kids take over the family room.

How much television time is like that — maybe half of the 1,040 hours? If so, that would mean your family time is down below 2,000 hours a year. And we're not talking a lot of quality time, are we.

Is it any wonder that we wonder sometimes where kids are getting their values? We don't have time left to parent anymore, so we leave it to their teachers and the Bundy's and Homer Simpson.

Scary thought, isn't it.

est we forget

Every year their numbers diminish and every year the memory of their great battles seems a little more dim, especially to younger Canadians.

This year, though, Remembrance Day should have had a special significance for Canadians. This year Canada took part in its first war since the end of the Korean Conflict nearly 40 years

It was a war unlike any other. During the days that the actual fighting took place, Canadians remained glued to their television sets, worrying about their young men and women overseas, rejoicing at their accomplishments, angered by the parading of captives, saddened by the tragedy of the victims.

The experience gave new meaning to the phrase "Lest We Forget" because, once more, we were asking our troops to put their lives on the line for our policies and beliefs.

But there is more.

It was easy to forget, as we watched the computerized images of missile hits, that real lives were at stake. The losses to allied forces weren't great. The losses to the Iraqis, both among the hapless and demoralized military and among the frightened citizens, were horrifying. The true scope of their losses still are not clearly known today, but numbered in the hundreds of thousands.

Wars are inevitable in this sad and broken world. But just as inevitably, when the Horsemen of the Apocalypse ride out to war, people suffer and die on both sides.

Lest we forget -- the human cost of war is incalculable.

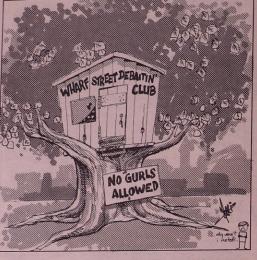

It is not for nothing that we commemorate our soldiers on the day that ended the First World War, known hopefully then as the 'War to End All

It wasn't the end of all wars. Nor was the Persian Gulf War. At this very moment wars are underway elsewhere around the world -- little wars maybe, but real wars with real human

We long for the day when the lion shall lie down with the lamb, when wars shall cease and swords shall be beaten into ploughshares, when crying and tears shall be at an end.

Until then, let us remember.

et's cut spending

Three years ago, during the November elections at that time, all candidates from Sidney Township and including Hastings County school trustees clearly stated that if voted in by the Sidney Township voters that they would keep taxes down and that they would not substantially increase

Well, would you believe that my taxes over the last three years have increased by 35 per cent for Sidney Township! Where was the promise that they made to the voters of this township during that election year?

The federal public servants went on strike to show the federal government that they were not happy with what the government had offered to them during their union contract negotiations.

The public servants were legislated back to work with the conditions of their pay increase as follows: 1991 - No increase

1992 - 3 per cent increase 1993 - 3 per cent increase

Why doesn't Sidney Township follow the federal government's example on raising our taxes as such: 1992 - 0 per cent

1993 - 3 per cent increase 1994 - 3 per cent increase.

municipal politicians should take the federal government's example and increase our taxes to what I mentioned in this letter.

Where does the buck stop? Do Sidney Township citizens have to keep oting the bill for our politicians who want to spend...spend...spend and increase our substantially?? taxes

Family is durable institution

The Editor:
The planning committee wants to thank Quinte Weekly News for helping to promote National Family. Week Oct. 7-13, 1991 (Vol. 6 No. 40).

I wish to explain that, contrary to the content of the article, it is not the position of the committee that "... the breakdown of the family unit is having startling effects on Canadian society -- violence, drugs and crime."

It would be more accurate to note that the family is a durable social institution despite the increasing incidence of "violence, drugs and crime." All social institutions, including the family, are impacted by social trends. Celebrating Family Week encourages our focus on the positive role and place of family in social life.

Also, to clarify for your readers, the protest of Canada's abortion policies that occurred on Oct. 6 in Belleville was not associated with or planned by the Family Committee.

Thanks individuals, organizations and businesses who helped stage events during Family Week. Your support was truly appreciated.

This letter was sent to Mr. George Seames, president of the Wharf Street Street Debating Club in Belleville.

Dear Mr. Seames:

Thank you for invitation to attend the 1991 Annual Bun Feed on the night of Nov. 6, 1991 at the Wharf Street Debating

After consideration and talking with the citizens of Belleville, I have decided against meeting with ribald* candidate grillers and those that revel in the raunchy* in a club where females are decidedly unwelcome (as mentioned in The Intelligencer, Sept. 24, 1991). Cont. on Page 5

Celebrating Sadie Hawkins Day NOVEMBER 12

Since Sadie Hawkins Day falls on the first Saturday after Nov 11, today is its earliest possible date. Popularized by Al Capp's Li'l Abner, it's purely a North American celebration.

Most European women are still servants. It's usually American women, the best 'yessed' in the world, who ork husbands to death, then go on cruises with the Always after Nov.11, Sadie Hawkins Day can't fall on and be confused with Remembrance Day. Old soldiers and old maids are different. One faced powder, the other does that make 'woman'? All of it! She might be taken for granted, but she never goes without saying.

On Sadie Hawkins Day anatomy is destiny, and modern Freuds finally get the answer to, "What does a woman want?" The trouble is, when smart women chase smart problems of the same cookies too hard, they often catch just crumbs.

Woman was the last thing God made. He was obviously tred. If not it hard to believe, though, that she came from a rib. More likely a funny bone!
The humor list in her even wanting to chase a man still available by the time she becomes an old maid. Surely she'd be better off remaining one than wishing she still was.
Women are cursed, and according to Roseanne Barr, 'men are the proof.' But they do have imagination. They need it to tell men, especially those who start at the bottom and lose ground, who give failure a bad name and therefore would make perfect strangers, how wonderful they are.
When God made man She was just fooling around, so why not a Sadie Hawkins Day ...for the ultimate in flirting? A woman will flirt with any man as long as someone is watching.

55 Alive program teaches mature driving ski

Community Care Belleville Inc. is offering a 55 Alive Safe Driving Program on Thursday, Nov. 28 at the Belleville Recreation Centre, 116 Pinnacle St. Cost of the oneday program is $20.

The 55 Alive Safe Driving Program is sponsored by the Canada Safety Council as an innovative driver refresher course for Canadians 55 years or older. It is designed to improve their driving skills and help maintain driving licenses longer while driving more

According to the Canada Safety Council, it is an inescapable fact that as we grow older our reaction times decrease, hearing may become slightly impaired and vision is no longer as sharp.

Because these changes occur only gradually, mature drivers may not be aware of the changes and the effect they have on their driving ability.

The six hour course is usually given in two segments in a classroom

The sessions will show drivers the latest and safest driving techniques for coping with today's traffic

The first session features a description of the characteristics of the mature driver while the second session looks at how physical changes of aging affect the mature driver and his or her driving performance.

Session four continues the theme with entering and exiting highways, parking and backing.

Session five deals with accident prevention, adverse weather and other drivers on the road.

Caring for flowering house plants

Gardening

and Growing

with Ross Hawthorne

If you have stopped buying small flowering house plants, it's understandable. Few things are more discouraging then carrying home a little gem in full bloom, giving it a place of honor on the coffee table, watering it, nurturing it and watching it with a sinking heart as it goes out of bloom and slowly degenerates into an unresponsive mass of leaves.

But don't be disheartened. There are small flowering house plants readily available that will, under home conditions, either flower for long periods or can be brought back into flower season after season knowing where to look.

Don't look in such outlets as food chains, produce stores or department stores. Most of the small flowering house plants they sell are meant to be enjoyed for their brief period of bloom and then discarded. A large proportion are "one-timers" that flower only once and then start to deteriorate. Others have light, temperature or humidity requirements that can't be met outside of a greenhouse.

By contrast, there are a number of small flowering house plants that will prosper under home conditions, that will either flower continually or have long blooming periods and can easily be brought back into flower year after year.

The best places to find them are in outlets that specialize in house plants, such as flower shops, plant stores or nurseries, where you can be sure of good advise as well as a good quality plant. The six plants that follow are listed in alphabetical order rather than in order of preference.

AFRICAN VIOLET - There's a good reason why the African Violet is North America's most popular house plant: Its prolific flowering habit. But contrary to popular belief it will not flower in dim light nor will it be at its best in anything less than the veak winter sun of a south window and in summer, the bright light and early morning sun of an east window. Because of its tight rosette of leaves, the best way to water an African violet is from the bottom and the best way to test a violet for watering is by

Set the plant in a bowl containing about two inches of water for about half an hour then heft the pot and get a feel of the weight of the plant when thoroughly watered. Continue to heft the plant every two or three days and you will soon become expert on your violet's watering needs. Once a month, substitute a solution of high-phosphorous fertilizer, (10-15-10), diluted to one-quarter strength of the

MOVE OVER NYLONS AND MAKE WAY FOR JAZMIN

Acapella quintet forms in Quinte

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Move over Nylons and make way for Jazmin, Quinte's only acapella (without accompaniment)

These five soloists are determined to sing their way into the hearts and minds of area music

Admittedly, they've only been humming and doo-wopping for the past six months, but already they've worked up a 40-minute chorus line that has won them stand-up encores at several coffee houses in the Spearheaded by bass-baritone Paul Melling and baritone and music director Andy Rush, Jazmin has as many as 15 tunes down pat. Lead Paul Moorman, tenor Al Muack and bass-baritone Dave Adams complete the vocal complement.

Melling is confident Jazmin's harmonic sound will be readily accepted in Quinte despite a decade of digital, synthesized music.

In the past year, he notes, many artists have been returning to natural voice restricted by the very strict rules and arrangements of barbershop quartet styles. We all sing different parts and arrangement at various points in all of our songs. That gives us more flexibility."

They sing many styles: semi-classical, Motown, spiritual and contemporary.

"The Lion Sleeps Tonight, Higher and Higher Northwest Passage and Dream by the Everly Brothers are some of the songs we like to do," says director Rush.

But, accomplishing the pure and unfaltering sweetness of vocal harmony is difficult, requiring a lot of determination, patience and sticking power.

"We're very serious about this," says Dave Adams, former Trentone, while sipping a coffee at a Wednesday night practice.

"We meet every Wednesday night and work very hard to get our sound right. Although we all have day jobs and aren't even thinking about breaking into the music business, it's still important to us," says

But, keeping everything in perspective is also part of the seriousness."For me this is a musical dream come true. I've always wanted to be in something like this. But we can't get too serious. We just want to have lots of fun and entertain people with our music," he says. "If we work hard enough at it, it may just happen."

Tercel gets makeover for 1992

Toyota has struck styling paydirt with its dramatically reworked compact, the Tercel. Who would have though this little bread-andbutter econo-car could receive such a fine make-over? Gone is the hatchback, and Tercel is now available only as a two or four door, four-person sedan.

Part of a package of amendments to the act, the amendment that has raised concern would remove Section 50, which deals

Dedication, determintion, skill and a love for the sport is what it takes to be a good figure skater.

That's what seven local girls will take with them after recently qualifying when they compete in Canadian Figure Skating Association, Eastern Ontario Sectional Championships, slated for Nov. 14 to 17 at the Nepean Sports Complex in Nepean

The Sectionals-which will have approximately 400 competitors- are the first step of CFSA qualifying competitions.

Details of his gruesome crime received wide

With all these attributes, it is no wonder that she was convinced she was ordained by a higher power to bring holiness and all that was good to murderer James Cook. He invited Miss Payne over to the jail for a visit. Annie showed up with a basket of fruit, a tin of shortbread cookies, a stack of Bibles and a few place mats. James knew he was on to a good thing right from that very first visit. He made up the state of the state of Miss Payne no longer looked upon James as a murderer, but rather as a saint. In court, James didn't disappoint. He mumbled prayers, looked skyward, and in general acted like an all-round religious guy. Unfortunately for James, Mr. Justice Parker, probably an atheist, dismissed the geyzer of religious enthusiasm displayed by the defendant and went directly to the meat of the disabloical murder. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BREAKFAST

Ontario businesses go green

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Environmentalism is no longer a fad. It has permeated every level of society, including the mahogany board rooms of big Canadian businesses and corporations.

It's the "new reality of the 1990s" that's organizations like the Ontario Chamber of Commerce and its local affiliates to strive to strike a balance be-tween the environment and business, otherwise sustainable development.

Ontario Chamber of Commerce environment committee, Mike Gleeson is part of the greening of the Ontario business

Gleeson, also environmental policy manager for GM, shared his expertise and opinions as guest speaker at the fall kick-off Belleville and District Chamber of Commerce breakfast at Ramada Inn last Wednesday.

"The business community should move from being reactive to becoming more proactive in keeping with the environment as we head into the next decade," said Gleeson

"It really is a grass roots issue and with 1.4 million businesses in Canada small task. Down the road our children will

In an effort to hack a clearer path through red tape and slow-footed policy implementation, several groups are consulting with the Rae government to avoid some of the pitfalls they predict, says

The Ontario chamber will be forwarding input from its local chamber environmental committees. Belleville's environmental chamber committee, chaired by Doug Law, is one of 30 such committees from among 165 chambers throughout the province.

"We've been successful getting chambers up and running on these committees. We're encouraging input from the Belleville chamber's eventual input into the provincial legislation," said Gleeson.

New chutes could have prevented injuries in Arctic rescue

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

CFB Trenton 424 Search and Rescue Squadron Commander Keith Gathercole says a parachute newly approved by the Canadian military will make airplane crash sites more accessible and rescue missions much safer.

The Department of National Defence in Ottawa is phasing in the C-SAR4 square parachute over the next three years to replace the out-dated "round chute," used by the forces for the past 20 years.

The new parachute will make search and rescue missions more efficient because of its manoeuverability. Manufactured by Irving Industries in Fort Erie, Ont., it uses modern design principles to quicken forward speed and cut through high winds, offering jumpers much more manoeuverability.

The wing-like parachute has a "much lower rate of descent"and has been equipped with a mechanism to slow the rate of speed during landing.

The new parachute could have proven useful in the Oct. 30 crash of a CF-130 Hercules in the Canadian Arctic, says Lt. Col Gathercole

The military transport plane was enroute to a Arctic military station when it went down 20 kms south of Alert.

New foundation will help children at risk

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

The newly-formed Quinte Regional Children's Foundation is taking to heart the needs of troubled children -- after all,

"little ones" are our future.

However, providing the best possible care and nurture in their development is no small task — proper care and small task — proper care and supplementary educational materials cost money, often more than allocated to provincial ministries or agencies who deal with these youngsters at risk.

It's a dilemma that prompted members of the Hastings County Children Aid Society to strike a steering committee in mid-1990 to investigate alternate means of providing complementary programs outside of existing legislative frameworks.

The end result was the recent establishment of the Quinte Regional Childrens' Foundation and its nine-member board. The foundation was officially publicized at a press conference yesterday at CAS offices in Belleville.

Chairman Ted Belyea says the group has nine project goals, three of which, will receive immediate attention: child abuse education, parenting manuals and parenting courses.

"These three areas demand assistance that agencies like Children's Aid can't provide: paying for child abuse education books, videos, etc, for the prevention and treatment of child abuse," says Belyea. "Other things like court kits (for kids who spend hours in courtroom waiting areas before court appearances) complete with books, games, puzzles could also be purchased to help them deal with the anxiety of the situation."

he new Legend

By Jim McLean Car Review

The Acura Legend sedan rovided Canadians with their first taste of Japanese up-market styling, performance and size back in 1987.

Since then Toyota's big rear-drive Lexus and Nissan's Infiniti have stolen some of front wheel drive Acura's thunder. The new Legend is an attempt to steal it back.

The styling is more aggressive and muscular than the previous model and also provides a level of clear distinction: the new Legend, with its clear-lensed oval headlamps and mid-grille headlamps and mid-grille Acura badge, will not be mistaken for a swotlen Honda Accord, something that might have been the case with the previous model.

The fact sheet on the Legend sedan says it's powered by a new 3.2 litre powered by a new 3.2 litre V6 that pumps out a hearty 200 horsepower: That's 26 percent more power than the previous 2.7 litre model, yet the new engine weighs the same as the smaller, less powerful one.

Transmission choices are a five-speed manual for sports sedans fans or a four speed automatic. Disc brakes and an anti-lock brake system are standard features

The interior of the Legend is refined, luxurious and driver friendly. Instruments and controls are all in the right place and both the driver and passenger will find more room than in the previous model.

Cloth seating is standard, Cloth seating is standard, leather is an option. Either way, the seats are comfortable and the front ones power adjustable. Air bags are available for both driver and passenger up

Driving the automaticequipped Legend imparts a sense of security, but those who order the 5-speed may find the clutch action rather touchy and unpleasent. At highway speed, both wind and road noise are very minimal indeed.

Prices start at just over $40,000. making the Legend a bargain compared to its Infiniti and competitors, which are up in $50,000. and $60,000. territory respectively. The new Legend sedan rates an 81 out of 100.

When you're finished reading, eat it

It's a newsprint fact: When you're done with your newspaper ... eat it.

Cows do. And look how contented they are Apparently, agricultural researchers at the University of Illinois have found the recipe: soak the newsprint in hydrochloric acid, add a pinch of hydrogen peroxide and heat to 200 degrees F.

Yummy, eh? Cows can chow down as much as 10 pounds of old newspapers a day in place of some of their normal hay. Okay, so the findings are only "preliminary," but you have to admit it looks promising as a "supplemental energy source," as the researchers describe it.

Talk about eating your words.

The tragedy of Magic Johnson is that his story is repeated over and over again by people who think it can't happen to them. By people who think there is such a thing as safe sex.

There isn't, of course. And anyone who says otherwise is telling something less than the truth.

Condoms, universally recommended for safe sex, fail around one time in ten. That means that if basketball star Wilt Chamberlain has slept with over 20,000 women, as he claims in a recent book, then his condoms would have defense

We never thought we'd have to defend our competition, but we feel we should because of the furor caused by the endorsement of candidates by The Intelligencer in the recent municipal election.

Stu Meeks blasted the newspaper for endorsing candidates, and we have heard a lot of rumbles from the community at large. We even had a call from a reader who wondered if it was ethical.

In our view, it is ethical for a newspaper to choose to support on its editorial page one or more candidates in an election.

Read The Toronto Star -- at the same time that our local daily was publishing its picks, The Star was doing the same for the metro Toronto area. And that is usual. Especially in larger centres such as Toronto, newspapers have a longstanding tradition of endorsing candidates in federal, provincial and local elections.

Certain ground rules apply, of course. A newspaper's editorial stance had better not come through in the news coverage of the paper. In the news pages of a newspaper, readers have a right to expect fair, balanced coverage of all candidates and on all issues. But the editorial page is a place for a newspaper to announce its own stand on candidates and on issues.

Call it cowardice if you will, but we have always shied away from endorsing candidates. So, traditionally, has The Intelligencer. After all. this is a relatively small community and we have to live together after the election.

You may argue with the newspaper over their choices, you may argue that such endorsements may be politically unwise -- but you can't argue with the fact that a newspaper has the right to make such endorsements or the fact that such endorsements are a long-standing newspaper tradition in North America even if it hasn't usually been exercised here in Belleville.

And as a postscript, we'd like to tackle those who say there is no alternative to The Intelligencer. Granted, there is no other daily newspaper here. But there is an alternative newspaper. You're reading it right now.

Quinte Weekly News is not the newspaper of record and printing schedules make some types of news coverage impossible for us. But we are open to your opinions and your views. And that's a door we'll never close to you.

Preserve parental rights

The Editor

Many of my friends, my wife and I are alarmed that our provincial NDP government is quietly attempting to drop from the Education Act the legal right of parents to decide the type of religious education our children will receive in our public schools.

Since before confederation, Ontario parents and students have had legal rights entrenched in Section 50 of the Education Act. Section 50, which the government proposes to drop, has read:
"(1) Subject to the regulations a pupil shall be allowed to receive such religious instruction as his parent or guardian desires, or where the pupil is an adult, as he desires.

(2) No pupil in a public schools should be required to read or study in or from a religious book or join in an exercise of devotion or religion, objected by his parent or guardian, or by the pupil, where he is an adult." Bill 125, which is soon to receive its second reading, would entirely drop Section 50 from the Education Act in Ontario without public consultation. This is an abuse of the Minister of Education's powers. Without our parental rights and responsibilities recognized in the act, these rights cannot be appealed to by parents or enforced by the courts.

The primary responsibility to nurture and educate our children must remain with their parents, If Bill 125 is passed, even our independent Christian schools will be potentially subject to direct interference by the Ministry of Education, which could veto their specialized religious curriculum. The Minister of Education -- not the students, or their parents, or the boards education -- would become the superior power in decision-making about our children's religious instruction in our public schools.

Dropping Section 50 is more than mere legal more than mere legal "housekeeping". If the NDP wants to change the only section of the act that specifically recognizes a parent's or student's religious conscience, let's look at it together. Let's make sure its application conforms to the Canadian Charter or Rights and Freedoms by making relevant additions to it.

Precious rights so dearly won are easily forfeited and lost by saying and doing nothing.

Why can't we share Canada in peace?

The Editor:
The letters to the editor that you often publish from Dave Switzer from Frankford are offensive to me as a Francophone who considers herself above all a Canadian.

Canada is a fragile, almost a broken country.
Why take pleasure in dismembering it further?
Why seek to hate?

Today I observed my dog Fido (a Francophone name meaning 'faithful'). Fido, who is a large Springer Spaniel crossed with St. Bernard, shared his meal with Skid Row (an English name for a well marked tabby cat who adopted us).

If Fido and Skid can share a dish, why can we not peacefully and lovingly share this large country? love Canada!

If you again publish Mr. Switzer's letters, I will consider your publication hate literature. Surly there must be other interesting letters to the editor, who offer something constructive.

Danielle Valentik

Editor's Note: While we personally share your view rather than Mr. Switzer's, he is entitled to his views and to a forum in which to express them. While we regret that you view Quinte Weekly News as hate literature, the paper will continue to be open to a diversity of views.

Nursery School Cookbook

ood is something every child can relate to -- children like food and each has his or her own favourite recipes. But what does food look like to them? How do they think it is prepared and what ingredients do they think go into their favourite recipes?

We decided to ask the children at four local nursery schools: in Belleville the First Adventure Child Development Centre, the YMCA Child Care program and Belleville Day Nursery, and in Trenton the Dufferin Pre-School and Toddler Food takes a special place at Christmas time, so many but by no means all of the recipes are related to the season. We hope you will enjoy them as much as we have!

The following recipes were collected from youngsters at the YMCA Child Care program.

The Belleville Family YMCA's Child Care Program offers more than a simple babysitting service or a standard child care centre.

Not only are the youngsters looked after by trained professionals, but they have the additional support of a multiservice organization dedicated to strengthening family life, personal growth and development.

Each child's natural curiosity is stimulated and personal expression is encouraged so that each child can develop into a happy, confident and self-sufficient individual.

The following recipes were collected from youngsters at the Dufferin Pre-School and Toddler Program in Trenton.

Programs are planned specifically for pre-school and school-aged

The YMCA offers a nursery school and day care for youngsters aged two and a half to five years old from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. five days a week, closed statutory holidays only. Children can attend on a full time or part time basis, depending upon the needs of the parent or

In the Dufferin Centre Building, need for a qualified child care program for children under the age

In the Dufferin Centre Building, located on Dufferin Avenue on the west side of Trenton, there are two licensed quality care and learning programs for young children.

The pre-school program has been in operation since 1982. This is a half day program with morning and afternoon sessions for children between the ages of two and a half and five. The program was developed to meet the unique, individual physical, emotional, social and cognitive needs of the pre-school age child.

The toddler room opened its doors in 1986 when a survey of the area showed that there was a definite need for a qualified child care program for children under the age of two and a half who have not been toilet trained. It is also a half day program (mornings only) Monday through Friday.

Both child care programs encourage the growth of all the children's developmental skills through participation in many exciting and fun activities and special events. One of our most important goals is that the children grow, learn and mature at their own pace within a nurturing, warm, safe and stimulating environment under the care of loving, responsive, and enthusiastic role models.

Belleville Day Nursery encourages children

Operated by Hastings County, Belleville Day Nursery offers a fullday subsidized program five days a week from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

five days for up to 64 pre-schoolers. Belleville youngsters aged two to five whose parents are either working or in school are eligible.

The children are guided by early childhood educators who give them the opportunity to experience many different activities.

Education in the early years is very important. Each child is a special individual who should have every opportunity to develop at his or her own rate. Skills as socialization, speech and independence are very important. We encourage children to think for themselves, and to feel their own worth in order to develop good self-esteem and a sense of security.

The following recipes were provided by youngsters at Belleville Day Nursery.

Remember when we told you Blue Box Plus was the most comprehensive waste diversion program in Ontario? Well, that was last year.

Our new program, Blue Box²⁰⁰⁰, with all the new materials that can be accepted for recycling, is the most comprehensive waste diversion program in Canada. For now.

As of November 18th, you'll be able to put out for recycling these new materials:

- ♦ Foam Plastics
- ♦ Aluminium Trays and Foil
- ♦ Plastic Bags
- ◊ Textiles
- ♦ Magazines
- ♦ Mixed Household Paper.

How best to bind, box, or bag each item will be detailed in a set of instructions delivered to your household, called "Beside and Inside".

The expanded residential recycling program is just one part of a larger recycling program called Blue Box²⁰⁰⁰. Under this new program, Centre and South Hastings will attempt to reduce the household waste flow to landfill sites by fifty per cent in the next twelve months. That's eight years ahead of the target date set by the province. Other parts of the program will include backyard composting, waste reduction activities, and industrial and commercial initiatives.

The Stevens family was one of the wealthest and must respected in that part of New the Halls got along awimmingly. All that chaged in 1922 when Eleanor Mills, a 34 year old blonde who sang in the toring the chor; and Rev. Hall teamed the careful follows and the chor; and Rev. The bodies had been neatly arranged and letters had been neatly arranged and letters had been scattered around them. The letters found with the bodies were love letters of the most intimate rature written by the reverend and Eleanor to each other. Eleanor's husband was questioned by police. He told them that on Thursday might his wife had left their home at about 7.30 p.m. When he asked her where she was going, she replied, "Why don't you follow me and find out?" He wen't to be daround midnight, but savice had not me to discover that his wife had not me to discover that his wife had not me to discover that his wife had not me to the church. This time he me! Frances Hall. She told him that her husband had not returned home the previous night. Upon hearing this, Mills remarked that his wife had also failed to return home.

Unholy urd

When Frances Hall was questioned, she informed police that her husband had left home at 7:30 Thursday evening and had never returned. She had reported him missing to police.

A night watchman came forward and told police that about 3:30 a.m. on Friday morning, he had seen a woman enter the Halls' home. When Frances Hall was told of the watchman's statement, she admitted that she too couldn't sleep that night. At 2:30 a.m. she had dressed and fetched her brother William. Together they went to the church to find her husband, but the church to find her husband, but the church to find her husband, but the church was in darkness. She told the story of following the corn thief which she had told so many years earlier. She now identified William Stevens, Henry Stevens and Frances Hall as the three individuals she had seen on the night of the murder. The Pig Woman's evidence, coming as it did from a dying woman, was very convincing.

One by one, the defendants took the witness stand. Henry Stevens at Lavallette at the time of the murders. His evidence was in direct contrast to that of several people who swore they had seen him in New Brunswick on the days perceding the murders. William Stevens admitted owning a .32

William Stevens admitted owning a .32 calibre revolver, the same type of weapon as that used to dispose of Eleanor and Edward. He elaimed he had last used it to fire blanks on the Fourth of July. William recalled his sister waking him tog to the church in the wee hours of the morning and continuing on to the Mills' home before returning home. He claimed he had no guilty knowledge of the murders.

Frances Hall told her life story from the witness stand. She claimed her marriage had been a happy one. She was aware Eleanor Mills wrote her husband letters, because he had often shown them to her. Mostly they concerned church business. While many knew of the torrid affair being carried on by the deceased, she had been totally oblivious of the fact that they were anything other than warm friends. Eleanor repeated her tale of searching for her husband, but vehemently claimed she knew nothing of the murders.

Three Oaks plans move back to city

Story Continued From Front Page city bylaws that forced it out of town in 1984. It is the only one of 82 shelters for abused women to be located Outside of its primary service area, the two women say.

The rural location makes it hard for women living there until they can get their lives back on track, they say.

Typically, women will stay at the shelter for an average of six weeks, dealing with the crisis that drove them to the shelter and deciding whether to return home or to find an apartment on their own.

"Moms are really isolated," says Hoskin, because they can't hop on a bus and go shopping or go to a park for a

Visits to doctors, lawyers and police, often involved after a crisis incident, are also hard to manage from a rural location. Maintaining a job in town can also be hard, especially if the woman has to rely on public transportation — and a job may be essential if the woman decides to launch a new, independent life.

decides to launch a new, independent life.

In fact, Martinello says, some women decide not to go to Three Oaks for help because they can't afford to leave their job but can't find a way to get there from the shelter. Others have left the shelter because they feel too isolated.

As a child support worker, Hoskin also notes that the move to a rural shelter can be hard for the children, who usually have to change schools because of transportation problems. And children are a major factor. Many women coming to Three Oaks have three or four children that they take with them from the abusive situation. From April 1 to Oct. 31, 1991, for example, Three Oaks provided rom to 69 women and 76 children.

And despite the province's denial of a request to increase the number of beds from 14, the need for the centre doesn't seem to be dropping. From February on, Three Öaks has been full nearly non-stop, Martinello says. Martinello and Hoskin say Three Oaks hopes to move into Belleville sometime in 1992, pending a decision on a request for Project Haven funding through the Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corporation. They say Three Oaks is holding its first ever fund-raiser because the foundation wants to make a contribution to the cost of the move, which is estimated at $700,000. As well, they are encouraging the public to make donations specifically designated to assist in the move.

Tickets to the dance are $10 and can be purchased at Eco Mart, Briar Patch and Louis' Take Out, all located in Belleville; at Smoker's World in Trenton; Stedman's in Stirling; The Oasis in Frankford; or at the door. Dance participants are also being encouraged to dress in costumes from the 50s and 60s.

Wines without alcohol:

A thoughtful way to provide a special treat for your non-drinking wedding guests

As you plan your wedding feast, you've probably made special food arrangements for those who have unique dietary requirements. Perhaps a vegetarian plate for Cousin Sally who is a vegetarian or fish instead of prime rib for Uncle Moe who has a chloresterol problem and can't eat red meat.

As you prepare your menu, you should also take into consideration your non-drinking friends and relatives. There are many of them one out of every three North American adults don't drink alcohol. The reasons may range from pregnancy to medication that can't be combined with alcohol, but that doesn't mean they can't share in the Offer them something more sophisticated than water or soda pop -- de-alcoholized wines.

De-alcoholized wines are real wines from which the alcohol has been removed. Even champagnes are available.

Guests can enjoy these sophisticated nonalcoholic beverages during the cocktail hour either by the glass, in a festive wedding punch or mixed in drinks the same way as beverages containing alcohol.

During the wedding meal, these beverages can be offered along with regular table wines.

The de-alcoholized wines can be purchased in many local grocery stores and come from a variety of countries around the world.

Parachute will improve rescue safety

Cont. From Front Page Critics contend the military was ill-equipped to handle the search and rescue mission in the Arctic.

Many SAR technicians agree, saying the out-dated round chute delayed response time and endangered SAR technicians parachuting into the crash site amid a blizzard and winds of up to 30 kms

High winds made landing for the SAR techs comparable to "jumping from a third-storey building," says Lt. Col. Gathercole. Several SAR techs, using the round chute, sustained injuries during the mission.

"This issue has received more priority since a number of our SAR techs were injured," says Gathercole. "We hope this will be an impetus to speed up the replacement of the round chute."

Gathercole is confident implementing the new C-SAR4 square parachute will greatly reduce injuries for SAR techs tackling search and rescue missions.

"Last June we conducted 400 jumps here at Trenton using the new chute in almost every simulation possible: into water, onto land, using different weights — it proved very successful. We were very pleased with the results," says Gathercole.

Foundation aids children at risk

Continued From Front foundation could realize financial assistance for parents who need parenting manuals, videos and parenting courses for troubled times shared by all parents.

Close to $5,000 of the foundation's initial goal of $10,000 has been raised through a one-time bingo night, organized by Mary-Anne Sills and volunteers, and through high school students in Belleville.

Student councils at Centennial Secondary and Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School raised $600. Student representatives made their donations yesterday at the press conference, marking their first-ever donations to the foundation.

R. Larry MacDonald, executive director of CAS was also on hand at the official kick-off yesterday welcomes the efforts of the foundation and says it will benefit children a great deal.

"We've had an enormous increase in demands for service but our funding at the same time has been restricted," says MacDonald.

$16 MILLION DEFICIT EXPECTED

Province slashes OPP budget

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Ontario Provincial Police are singing the recession blues District 9 Superintendent Marty Robins says all 10 detachments in his district will be slashing expenditures to help quell an anticipated $16 million OPP provincial

Since September, OPP have been instituting mea-sures throughout the province to avert unnecessary spending, cutting the 1991 OPP budget to the quick.

At a time Ontario's population has exploded by 25 per cent since 1984, funding for crucial services like policing hasn't been keeping pace. More cuts aren't helping the matter.

Robbins concedes the cutbacks will "prevent officers and civil staff from providing adequate service."

Several items have already hit the chopping block with more cuts expected in the days ahead

Red tape hinders annual toy drive says Boomhower

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Red tape is discouraging people from asking for help this Christmas, says Ralph Boomhower, chairman of the Belleville Professional Firefighters' Toy Drive.

Under the new Freedom of Information Act, people now have to register in person with the Christmas Sharing Pro-gram to be eligible for a food basket and a toy box for their Registrants must produce one piece of identification and a pay cheque or pay stub when registering for the program.

But, says Boomhower, too many recession-battered families won't get the desperately needed goodwill assistance because mom or dad refuse to register in person. In the past, names were just added to the Christmas sharing

Bringing these new rules in has really hindered the toy program. I'm not going to be able to reach the people that need it because many people are very uncomfortable about coming forward. I can understand their apprehension. A lot

Separate board monitors teacher absenteeism

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

The Hastings-Prince Edward Roman Catholic Separate School Board is monitoring teacher absenteeism for 1991 and 1992.

The board is concerned that teachers are away from their students on too many days, ultimately affecting students who depend on a regular con-nection with their teachers.

In a memo from Superintendent of Education Ken Barrett to all principals in the separate school system, Barrett says there has been a "noted increase in absenteeism" and that the board will be "closely monitoring staff attendance in 1991 and 1992."

Absenteeism, however, doesn't strictly mean personal days off from illness or personal matters, says Bar-

"We're not cracking down on teachers who are taking too many days off. What we're looking at here is how many times a teacher is taken from the classroom because of seminars, work-shops and committee work," Barrett

"What we want to do is cut back on the days in class a teacher misses to make a better education system for our children," he adds.

Recommendations from the monitoring intiative will be forwarded to separate school board trustees. The process is expected to be completed in 1992.

The mountains move and the earth shakes

Is there such a thing as job security?
We used to think so, but not anymore. Not for most Canadians. For example, what could have been more secure than Corby's? They made money, they worked efficiently, they had been in existence for more than 150 years -- and they closed for good this Production rationalization. The company had two plants and one of them had to close to make the other more

And so the mountains move and the earth shakes beneath our feet.

But now it appears federal civil servants will have what their leader calls virtually ironclad job security. What he calls 99.5 per cent protection from being laid off.

How do you suppose that makes other Canadians feet?

The fact is, the rest of us work for Canada too. We just don't have job security. The average Canadian works until sometime in August to pay taxes to various levels of government. We don't start working for ourselves until after the first seven months of the year. Assuming we still are working.

And when, in all this, do business owners start working for themselves? December, maybe?

FRAGILE HEALTH

FRAGILE HEALTH

One of the first things that people discover when they go into business is the fragility of a business. They discover that they can do everything "right" and that everything may still go wrong.

It's like farming. You can till and plant and do everything right. But someone else has to send the rain at the right time and in the right amounts or there won't be a harvest. And you don't have any control over that. Even seemingly sound and secure businesses can suddenly sicken and die.

Employees usually don't realize it, but businesses are like people. One day, they develop a bit of a cough. They don't think anything of it, but the cough doesn't go away. Suddenly it turns out they have pneumonia and they're in the hospital with tubes attached everywhere, wondering if they regoing to make it. ney're going to make it.

And that can be true at any time, not just in hard times

Ask a business owner sometime about just how secure they feel. And how they feel about someone getting guaranteed, 99.5 per cent ironclad job security.

There ain't no such thing in real life. Not even in good

Parental rights

When 700 people turn out for a public meeting, you know that something or someone has struck a nerve. And that's just what the NDP government has done with its plan to drop Section 50 from the Education Act.

Essentially, the section protects the right of parents to chose the kind of religious instruction they want for their children or the right to exclude their children from religious instruction with which they do not agree.

According to the minister of education, that right is irrelevant in our society, thanks to the Charter of Rights, which was used by the courts to rule mandatory indoctrinational religious instruction unconstitutional in Elgin County.

In some ways, the minister of education is right. Originally, the public school system was expected to be religious in nature. It was clearly established as a Protestant school system in sharp contra-distinction to the Catholic separate schools.

That, of course, is no longer true and hasn't been true for years. Removal of the Lord's Prayer and Bible reading in the schools in recent years has been simply the removal of a Christian veneer that had long since lost its significance in the public school system.

But the minister of education is missing the point of the court ruling. The court ruled that Elgin County's religious instruction was unconstitutional not because it was indoctrinational but because it was mandatory. Nor did the court ever suggest that Section 50 was unconstitutional.

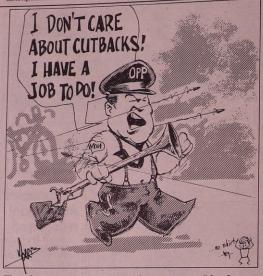

In today's climate, perhaps the government is right. Perhaps the trend of court decisions would eventually throw out Section 50.

But the government is missing a further point. The assumption in Section 50 is that parents, not governments, have the right to decide what kind of education their children receive. That principle is also supported by the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights signed by Canada in 1948

Schools don't exist for the sake of the state. They exist for the sake of parents. Schools do for parents what they cannot do at home -- but only as long as they have the permission of the parents and support the values taught by parents in the home.

The principle of parental rights in education is fundamental to education. Next week, we'll look at some of the implications.

Drivers couldn't earn living

The Editor.

As the story in your paper states, some of the owner/operators of Belleville taxis have given favorable comments to the increase of air time cost because they are being fooled or fear the loss of their standing with Mr.

Devolin.

Mr. Devolin is painting a picture that he is the victim. The only victims of this increase are the drivers, who lost everything in this overpriced raise in air time.

Customers are also going to be victims because fewer drivers means less service or poor service.

Most of the drivers who gave up did so because of the length of hours they would have to work. Some had health problems that limit-the length of time they could work.

Also, Also, why should anybody have to work that long just to get by? People with families would lose too much family time, which is very important to lose.

The six owner/operators who quit before the increase were not considering leaving but were forced out by dispatching that they believed favoured certain drivers and not the rest.

How could we afford to pay a week's air time to him when we are sick and at home for three days out of five? He expected us to pay a week air time even if we are not there. That's totally unfair!

His excuse is that his expenses still go on. "So that's your problem," he said!

It's a shame he expected me to feed a family on what little I made. I could not afford to pay my air time. Sometimes, I had to borrow from family or friends and pay it back when I could.

He has a monopoly in this city because there is no other company here and no other company could get in. So do not be fooled, there is more here than meets the eye.

Ex-owner/operator

The law of napkins

NOVEMBER 26

On Nov. 26, 1882, Bill Nye wrote in Laramie, yoming's The Boomerang, "The law of napkins is Wyoming's The Boomerang, vaguely understood."

He explained it's bad

He also said, "No matter what their religion or race,

That's better advice than I ever got from National Enquirer. Great use for napkins, too.

The colour of paint can affect our feelings

Have you ever visited someone's home and thought to yourself that you could never live with that blue sofa, or those mauve walls?

Yet the owner obviously liked them enough to select them. That's because everyone responds to their own favorite colours and is affected by them in different ways.

That's also why, with so much doom and gloom in the world, it's increasingly important to be surrounded in our homes with colours that will make us feel positive about ourselves and give us the greatest feeling of well-being.

"Luckily, colour is the easiest and cheapest form of change in the home, especially when you and relaxed. There are colours that are welcoming, and colours that stimulate. Colours can also make covers a wide range of associations: aggressive, revolutionary, a warning; and strong Colour has the power to make one feel happy and cheerful, or calm and relaxed. There are colours that are welcoming, and colours that stimulate. Colours can also make you feel gloomy or sad and really drag you down.

think in terms of paint, which today comes in literally every colour of the rainbow," says David Beech, manager of colour and design, Para Inc., manufacturer of paints and coatings.

Colour has the power to make one feel happy and cheerful, or calm you feel gloomy or sad and really drag you

What we associate with colour often affects our reaction to it as much as its appearance, and this may be cultural or religious.

Red, for instance.

sexual and religious overtones --- red light district, lady in red, blood, wine.

The Chinese consider red a very lucky colour. In the home, it can be welcoming in a traditional hallway with dark furniture, or soft and feminine in ne lighter shades of ink.

Yellow has great symbolism — sunlight, growth, gold — a stimulating colour that adds warmth to north or east exposures. But it also has negatives: i.e. cowardice jaundice, yellow journalism.

Green, today goes with out saying," states David Beech. "it represents nature and the environment. tranquillity, peace and relaxation, also health and luck (four leaf clover).

But it also has its negatives, as in green with envy, and the association many people have with the ubiquitous post-war 'hospital' green. However, it's very popular in interiors today in all shades."

Blue has lots of both positives and negatives — blue skies, sailing the ocean blue, but also singing the blue, but also singing the blue, but also singing the blues, blue mood, etc. Blue, especially when used with white, will effectively cool a south facing room, and it is great as an accent colour

So look around your home and see how you respond to different rooms, If you feel somewhat gloomy in your dark wood kitchen, think about painting or re-staining the cabinets in a lighter, more cheerful shade.

Simple chimney precautions promote fire safety

The heating season is underway, and homeowners are reminded that the National Fire Code prescribes precautions regarding the safe maintenance of chimneys to avoid fire hazards. These precautions include annual inspections of the interior and exterior prior to each heating season.

Under certain conditions, the deterioration of a fireplace chimney can result in the development of a hazardous condition.

Most fireplace chimneys in use today are of two types:

☐ Factory-built chimneys built from two or more concentric metal tubes with an insulating material, either air or mineral fibre.

☐ Masonry chimneys built from brick, stone or concrete, with or without clay tile liners. While factory-built chimneys are required to use metals that are highly corrosion resistant, it should be recognized that under certain conditions corrosion may develop.

Cont. From Page 7 factory-built chimneys, when attached to fireplaces, may be particularly prone to such deterioration.

The reasons for this are not fully understood at this time, but the problem is under active investigation. It is believed that serious corrosion may lead to a safety or fire hazard.

Masonry chimneys may be subject to exterior erosion and leaching, exterior brick and mortar deterioration and to interior cracking of the tile liner, which may give rise to a safety or fire hazard.

It is highly recommended that annual inspections of all chimneys be carried out by a chimney sweep who is certified under the Wood Energy Technical Training program.

Upon detection of a potentially hazardous condition, the inspector should advise the homeowner of the situation and recommend that he or she either contact the chimney manufacturer for factory-built chimneys or a local contractor for masonry chimneys. Until necessary repairs or replacements are made the attached fireplace or other appliance should not

OWN Editor

Parents should have the education their children receive, two panelists told t week Monday night. Children belong parents and to guardians" --not to governments, Gerald Vandezande, a member of the Coalition for Religious Freedom in Education, told the appreciative crowd.

And that principle of parental control of schools and education is embedded in the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights signed by Canada in 1948, said Lyle McBurney, an educational consultant and a lobbyist for parental rights in education for the past 15

The statements, greeted by applause, were made in response to a move by the government to delete Section 50 from the Education Act.

Described by the government "housekeeping," Bill 125 to amend the Education Act would remove the only section of the act to enshrine parental rights to control the education their children receive in the public school system, McBurney and Vandezande told the crowd

Section 50 allows parents, guardians and adult students choose the kind of religious instruction they wish or to refuse to embedded in the act since 1843, according to a hand out at the meeting.

However, Keith Baird, a political adviser to Education Minister Tony Silipo, contended that parents don't have the right to the kind of religious instruction they want for their children.

When the courts ruled mandatory indoctrinational religious education unconstitutional in a case, involving the Elgin County Board of Education, the ministry had no choice but to drop the section, Baird

He said the ministry is working on curriculum that will teach about religions of the world, giving emphasis to none of them.

"Schools would have to teach students that all views are equally valid," he told the crowd. Parents would have to indoctrinate their children at themselves, he said.

Similarly, he said, the ministry has told boards not to allow religious groups to meet on school property over lunchtime. Schools are responsible for students during that time and would be seen as sponsoring religious indoctrination if they permitted such groups,

"The school can't sponsor religious indoctrination," he

McBurney and Vandezande challenged that view.

"The court did not say 'no' to indoctrination," stated Vandezande. "It said schools couldn't 'coerce' or "It said 'make mandatory

In their view, that means that school boards could offer religious education for various faith groups as long as it wasn't mandatory for other students

Vandezande said his organization represents not just Christians but Jews, Muslims, Sikhs and other religious groups who agree that they want their children educated in ways that support their values at home without imposing their beliefs on other faith communities.

Vandezande encouraged the audience to take both their parental rights and responsibilities in education seriously. And he challenged them to exercise rights responsibilities.

In my experience, too many parents have failed to exercise their responsibility in education," he said, leaving educational decisions to the government and allowing schools to Vandezande advocated more choice and alternatives within the public system of education. Ontario has "a plurality of faith values and the human right to be a constant of the const right to choose should be respected and protected," he said.

McBurney agreed, urging the promotion of religious and other alternatives in education as suggested by the Shapiro Commission report on education a number of years ago. But he said he has been repeatedly told over the years that the government doesn't have the money for it. If that is the case, he said, then maybe the government should consider privatizing education because independent schools have proven that they can provide quality they can provide quantry education at lower cost than the public school system.

A member of the audience pointed out that approximately 20 different alternative schools are offered in the Toronto area, a native school. including a native school based on native spiritual beliefs.

He asked what would happen if the local board of education decided to offer Christian education as an alternative within the public school system.

Baird stated that the ministry would not provide funds for it and might consider launching a civil

He conceded, however, that the Minister of Education would be willing to at least discuss such a possibility, saying that a lot of questions would have to be answered first. Funding religious alternative schools is a difficult issue, he said, and has been deferred to a later date by the ministry.

Quickert, chairman of the Constitutional reform is about many things.

But mostly it's about you.

As Canadians, we are now facing one of the most important challenges in our history. Proposals have been put forward by the Government of Canada to improve our Constitution. These proposals, for a more united and prosperous Canada in which all Canadians can feel at home, are currently being reviewed by a special parliamentary committee. They will also be considered by a series of conferences run by independent Canadian organizations.

Some of the proposals include:

· a Canada clause that speaks of our hopes and dreams as Canadians, our values, our diversity, our tolerance and our generosity of spirit

- recognizing the right of aboriginal peoples to govern themselves while being protected
- · ensuring recognition of Quebec's distinctiveness and of minority language groups
- · reforming the Senate to make it elected. effective and much more equitable than
- strengthening Canada's economic union so Canadians can work and conduct business anywhere in the country
- · guaranteeing property rights.

The floor and the bottle were carefully dusted for prints. Upon testing, it was discovered that the killer had abducted June Anne while in his stocking feet. The pattern of the stockings was visible after dusting. Everyone with access to the ward had their fingerprints taken and checked against those found on the bottle. After the nurses' prints were eliminated, Scotland Yard was left with several unidentified prints which they felt sure were those of the killer.

Scotland Yard wondered if this man had aroused himself to such a degree that, when he couldn't have an adult female, he had decided to molest a defenseless child.

Detectives, accompanied by the two nurses, patrolled the streets of the city in the off chance that the man worked or lived nearby and could be sighted by the universe. By coincidence, they did spot the wanted man. He was picked up and he admitted being on the hospital grounds on the night in question. Detectives were able to prove that this deranged individual was a confirmed Peeping Tom, but had nothing whatever to do with the murder of June Anne Devaney.

Despite the thorough investigation, the identity of the killer remained a mystery. Scotland Yard felt that their man might be slipping away. That's when they came up with the novel idea of fingerprinting every male in the city between the ages of 14 and 90. Municipal lists indicated that 123,000 men fell into this caterory.

children's wishes

'It really is a good cause helping terminally-ill children have their wishes granted. It makes a child happy in the end by allowing them to live out their life-long dreams.'

In the past five years, Quinte residents have donated $15,000 to the wish foundation to maintain a tradition of granting a child's last wishes.

Paul Miron, Belleville Kiwanis Club foundation coordinator says as many as 50 local volunteers work every year to raise the necessary funds. Last year, $4,000 was raised through the donation booth at Quinte Mall.

Likewise this year, those same volunteers are stationed at the booth, set up Nov. 18 until Dec. 13. The booth, located in front of the Bi-Way store, is the sole means of soliciting funds in Quinte for the foundation's terminally-ill children.

"We're hoping to meet last year's total of $4,000 even though we're still in a recession. Last year we raised that record amount and we were firmly into hard times already," says Miron.

"It really is a good cause helping terminally-ill children have their wishes granted. It makes a child happy in the end by allowing them to live out their life-long dreams."

"I really can't blame those who don't want to register. They probably feel it isn't worth giving a ton of information about themselves to strangers.

But, says Dianne Tedesco, coordinator for the Christmas Sharing program, those apprehensions are misguided even though she admits the application changes have kept some from visiting the Volunteer

The registration process is as painless as possible.

"These people have to come in and sign a consent form in order for us to give their names out to the various agencies. I know a lot of these people are shy or proud and don't want to come in, but all we're asking is for once piece of I.D. and a pay stub. People that have come in already have left wondering what they were worrying about," says Tedesco.

As many as 1,000 people have already registered from Oct. 1 to present and Tedesco expects more to come as the calendar nears

"We're right down to looking for cheaper gas, cheaper office supplies, a hiring freeze, no training and 10 per cent less driving. We're asking our officers to stay at different locations and observe to cut down on mileage," says Robins. 'We've had to cut our Golden Helmets Motorcycle Team and the OPP Pipe and Drums Band. We're even deliberating on cutting out the RIDE Program because we simply can't afford it when we need officers else-

A way to cut down on hours, says Robins, is to make fewer 'house calls', using the telephone instead.

Goal: Keep elderly and disabled in their homes

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Hastings and Prince Edward Counties seniors and physically disabled will be asked in the upcoming weeks what they think of long-term health care.

In fact, their input could lead to concrete changes in the way long-term care is delivered, promises the NDP government.

Premier Bob Rae has launched a consultation initiative to redirect long-term care away from traditional institutions and hospitals and instead towards communitybased services and agencies.

The main goal of the redirection is to enable elderly people and disabled to remain in their homes for as long as

In order to obtain accurate and thorough regional information, committees are being set up throughout the province to gather information from seniors, disabled, care givers and support services and agencies.

In Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, a 25-member committee has been struck to establish a community-based consultation process.

Spearheaded by community development coordinator Brian Smith, the committee is attempting to reach as many as people as possible through a variety of venues.

Lougheed says payroll deductions are definitely helping to boost the campaign. He says United Way will definitely surpass the S371,000 raised last year but the campaign remains short of the $421,000 goal. The campaign has been extended to Dec. 13.

But this car isn't for adults.

It's just one of the toys available for children this Yuletide season in a flood of new toys that makes buying for children, harder and harder.

Children, it seems, dictate what's popular and what's not, by the cash doled out by parents at a handful of Quinte toy

But often, parents get confused and frustrated in their quest for the perfect toys amid the annual Yuletide migration to shopping stores. They don't know what to buy, they're concerned about the toy's safety or they're wondering whether it's what their children want.

Church re-creates the real Christmas

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Christmas - commercialism, Santa

Christmas — commercialism, Santa Claus and glossy wrapping paper. Shoppers wrangle at mark-down tables, grabbing greedily for appliances, factory-knitted virgin wool sweaters and shiny tinsel for their artificial trees.

Overhead, large signs scream "X-MAS SALE", omitting the word "Christ", oblivious to the fact that Christ was the whole reason this time-honored tradition

It seems everyone has forgotten the true meaning of Christmas.

That is, until you spend a few minutes with Joy Martin and her dream — to re-create the Bethlehem marketplace right here in Belleville.

Hundreds of Quinte residents lined up outside Bridge Street United Church to witness Martin's dream-come-true last Sunday. As many as 70 volunteers helped build the marketplace in the gymnasium.

The event was as historically correct as ossible, complete with costumed market dwellers, tradesmen, a temple and rabbis and, of course, the stable occupied by Mary and Joseph.

Sights, smells and sounds of the experience complemented the touchstone to a more meaningful Christmas.

"People today are getting caught up in our Bethlehem Marketplace, maybe they'll realize what Christmas is all about," says

Finally, someone's speaking up for Canada

The other day, we were talking about inventions this world needs. Such as a remote control for kids similar to the ones we use for television. Tred of the little munchkins whipping around the living room? Getting a headache because of their arguments or fights?

Zap. Turn the power off for an hour or so.

Then there are the mood swings kids are so prone to -- funny, parents never have those, do they? Zap. Hit the channel

SPEAK UP FOR CANADA

Don't you get a little tire of Quebec always hitting at Ottawa with no one answering back?

Don't you get a little tired of Quebec wanting to pick and choose at the Constitutional Deli -- "we'd like a common currency, a common passport, citizenship, membership in the Commonwealth, pension cheques and economic union on rye bread with a bit of mustard to go" -- without anyone saying "no way, Jose, you can't have everything your way?" Haven't you thought to yourself, "com'on Joe and Brian.

Someone's gotta say it."
Finally, someone is. Finally, the prime minister seems to have realized that Quebec is serious and that a little stroking here and a little stroking there just isn't going to cut it. Finally, he's telling it like it is.

We're not interested in a part time relationship. Either get in bed or get out.

We've made enough apologies and explanations.

So here's the deal. We love you and we know you're different from us and we're not just willing to live with that but support it. But give us a little, too. A relationship has some give and take.

It's been a heck'uva ride since Confederation and it doesn't have to end. But no halfway deals. We're married or we're not. We'll split the house and the property and even the kids if we have to, but we won't settle for living half in and half out

No bungee cords for separatists, the PM told them on the

Parental rights

This is the second in a series of editorials on parental rights in education. Next week, we'll take a final look at parental rights, examining why some parents choose to leave the public school system.

If education flows not from the state but from the home, then our schools are going to have to change

We believe that much of the anger evident towards education today derives from the a sense of estrangement, a sense among many parents that they don't know exactly what is going on in the schools and that what they do see doesn't come close to the values they want taught and that they try to teach in their homes. And many parents feel powerless to change that.

So what needs to happen?

First, we'd like to see a lot more listening. How much do professional educators know about the parents of the children they are educating? In our experience, the farther one gets from the classroom, the more experts know about what parents "ought to want and the less they know about what parents actually and fervently desire for their children.

Second, we'd like to see a lot more choice in public education. The time is long gone when the people of Ontario shared a broad consensus on values. Today's reality is a pluralism of faith communities and value systems, especially in the more metropolitan centres. The choices in our schools have to reflect that. If parents have a right to see their children taught their values and if Quinte has a significant Christian community, then why shouldn't Quinte have publicly funded Christian education for those parents -- education that supports their values and beliefs?

But rights bring responsibilities.

If parents have the right to choice, then they have to exercise it in a responsible way. Parents have to be clear on what they want their children taught and have to be able to articulate it to the professional educators who are their partners in education.. They have to understand educational issues and the implications for their children. They have to ask teachers and administrators to explain what they are doing and why. And when schools ask for their support, they have to be prepared to give it.

The education of our children is too important to leave solely to professional educators.

Reader response amazing

The Editor:
I would like to take the time to thank you for the editorial of my new position with Hi Neighbour Welcoming Service in your

It was gratifying, to say the least, and I was amazed at the response from the readership of your newspaper. From just a single article, 11 phone calls from new people who had just moved into the Belleville area and one sponsor that called for my services.

Reader says beware of allergy surveys

If you receive a phone call and are asked to participate in an allergy survey, beware! It is a disgusting ruse

I participated myself early last month, I'm not infallible. I'm capable of doing stupid things too. I was thanked and my name was dropped in a hat for a "free" draw. Well, didn't I get a phone call the following week telling me that my name had been drawn. I told the caller that the only thing I had ever on in my life from similar draws in the past, was a knock on my door from someone carrying a set of carving knives in one hand and a $2,000 vacuum cleaner in the other.

"Oh, this is not a vacuum cleaner", the caller stressed. We want to demonstrate our air filtration system and ask for your comments. In fact, you can't even purchase this unit... it isn't even on the market yet.

We thought, well, what the heck. Nothing's planned for the appointed evening of our demonstration except Cheers. If we can't buy it, then let's at least humour the person.

This fellow arrives, goes into his spiel and pulls his machine out of the cardboard box. He calls it a purifier. It looks like a vacuum cleaner with a large gaping hole on the side begging for a hose attachment. And as the night wears on the assorted carpet and shampoo attachments make it look even more like a vacuum cleaner. But the machine is impressive Working on the principle of using water instead of a filter bag, it does an admirable job of filtering.

However, I'm not overly concerned about dust in our house, which my nose hairs have been programmed to was raised on a farm. I wrote the book on dust. I spent endless days on a selfpropelled combine without benefit of a cab until I was green with ragweed pollen; I baled hay until only my teeth showed through the filth and grime. I was exposed to every possible irritant imaginable. With my background in dust, I prefer to treat the dust in our house as I did on the farm - by ignoring it.

The November night air was crisp and still. He asks if I wouldn't like fresh air like that in my house. Actually we do -- first thing in the morning before I light the wood fire Water is cleansing, he says, referring to the concept of water in his machine. "like a rain shower, fresh enough to drink." Yes, I have seen my car after a cleansing of rain, and I wouldn't drink rain water on a dare. Quite frankly, I am more concerned about the air I breath outside than I am with the air contained in our house.

I sent the guy home with a few choice comments to pass along to his supervisors. About honesty and integrity, and how drawing names out of a hat which doesn't exist is a tactic that is wearing a bit thin. And how a machine that wasn't even for sale yet, is suddenly on the market once it makes it through our door, for a sum of money which is an insult to the Quinte area's economic state.

I find this type of strategy in direct sales very offensive. It is little wonder that doorto-door vacuum cleaner sales people enjoy such an unsavory reputation. They have certainly earned it.

Black to the basics

By David Botting QWN Editor

The first question that comes to mind when interviewing Arthur Black, the genial host of Basic Black, CBC radio's nationwide Saturday morning show, is: how did he get to be so funny?

aybe it's because he was terrible at everything else, he says with a laugh. Failing at 27 different kinds of jobs may have helped.

Which is how he got into radio in the first place. Fired by Imperial Oil from the company's magazine -- he made the mistake of asking for a raise after they had forgotten he was still there -he decided to either try for a radio job or replace telephones for Ma Bell.

They asked him at his CBC interview if he knew anything about agriculture and he said yes. On the strength of one farm-related story (he didn't tell them the whole story), he was hired to do the livestock report.

And the rest, as they say, is history.

Black was in town recently to plug his latest book, Arthur! Arthur!, a collection of comic sketches collected from his syndicated newspaper column, the Basic Black radio show and other

Despite the book, Black doesn't see himself as a writer. He's a storyteller, a

He doesn't try to get the grammar right, which drives some readers crazy. He really doesn't worry about dangling gerunds. That, as he remarks, is what editors are for. He just tries to write as if he were talking to someone else.

"I imagine myself in a beer parlour. I'm thirsty, I'm talking to somebody else and I want him to buy the next beer," he says.

He writes, in fact, exactly the way he sounds on Basic Black, which hit the air waves eight years ago and is still delighting listeners from coast to coast.

Like hiscomic sketches, his interviews on the show are a little offbeat. And that is by design.

You have to be strange. It helps not to be famous --we're not interested in people who have been on 55 other shows," he says. Instead, he likes "people who are innocent and have something to say.

Although the show is taped and edited, every effort is made to give it a live feel. The editors make the people interviewed look good – but they don't worry about Black. They let him, as he says, look like a fool at times.

But one doesn't get the feeling that looking like a fool bothers Black. It just akes for a more interesting

Many of his newly published comic sketches deal with Canada. His sense of the country is that it never ade any sense -- but that is Canada's charm.

And he doesn't buy the notion that Canadians are quiet, sensible people. If we were, he says, we would have all moved somewhere warmer, say to a model community in North Carolina.

Right now, he senses a tremendous amount of anger in the country against a government that he says "all but sold us down the river." Canadians aren't very flamboyant or very articulate, but right now they're frustrated and angry with no place to turn.

But he also can't believe how "dumb" Canadians are. Cross border shopping just doesn't make sense to him -goods may be cheaper but shopping out of country just puts Canadians out of work.

'We may be the first country in history to shop ourselves to death," he says in amazement.

Flowering house plants you can depend on

We have lauded the African violet as one of six flowering house plants you can depend on. Here are five more.

BELAPERONE - As soon as you see the unusual flower spikes you'll know why its popular name is Shrimp Plant. The spikes consist of pink or reddish-brown bracts that house tiny white flowers produced over eight to ten months.

Pot the plant in a fast-draining medium such as bark chips rather than peat. STREPTOCARPUS - The Streptocarpus is a close cousin of the African Violet but you'd never know by its appearance. Strap-like leaves up to a foot long grow in a loose rosette. Flowers are somewhat similar but larger and rise above the foliage on long, thin stems in colours that range from white through blues and purples to red. Give the Streptocarpus the same watering and feeding as the African Violet and it will reward you by flowering profusely year round.

Richard Belanger, owner of Scalliwag Toys in downtown Belleville, says parents should consider buying toys with large pieces, especially for younger children.

Durability and popularity are also important considerations.

"You have to be careful that there aren't small pieces that a child can swallow. Teddlers for instance, are always putting small pieces that a clinic dark as wallow. Toddlers, for instance, are always putting things in their mouth," says Belanger. Kevin Knieriem, store director for Toys R Us at the Quinte Mall says electronic games, dolls, cars and keyboards are very popular with children and make up about 20 per cent of total sales at Christmas.

"Our new Nintendo, for example, is selling Our new Nintendo, for example, is selling like crazy. The video games used to have 8 byte graphics but have now doubled to 16 byte, making them twice as good and twice as popular for children," says Knieriem. Traditional toys still sell

The beeps and glicks of high-tech electronic video games and blats from battery-operated dolls ring out throughout

It's Christmas in the 90s, far different from the simpler Christmases of yesteryear when Bobby would play quietly with his tin soldiers and sister Suzie rocked her hand-crafted doll in a wooden rocker. Sitting by the door was Bobby's new wooden sled, with metal runners, not far from Suzie's Eaton's baby stroller.

Although times change, some traditional toys don't.

Kevin Knieriem, store director at Toys R Us: "We're surprised every year at the amount of parents who come in asking for the same traditional toys. These toys may not be advertised but people still come in and ask for them: wooden horses and rocking chairs, wagons for their boys and toys like Easy Bake Oven. These are still very much in demand."

Donna Baglole, manager of Frenken's Toys at the Belleville Plaza: "Because we're more of a traditional store we find a lot of parents are coming in and seeing the stuff they grew up with. A lot of these people want the same things for their kids as they had when they grew up.

"Things like Slinky, Lite-Brite and Etcha-Sketch were part of their childhood," says Baglole.

Richard Belanger, owner of Scalliwag Toys in Downtown Belleville says toys that educate as well as create have always been favorites Christmas morning and through the following holidays.

As well, says Belanger, toys such as wooden tables and wooden rocking horses have a durability factor that will ensure the toy stays around for a long time. "When choosing a toy for your child it's nice to get them something that they can grow up with and enjoy throughout their childhood. Too many toys are throwalways after one year," says Belanger.

An inquiry into the tragedy returned a verdict of accidental death. George col-lected the 500 pounds insurance money plant at did your from the sale of Alice's clothing and jewellery. After his suc-cessful bathtub murder, George returned

City man fights for WWII pilot alleged to be German spy

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Belleville's Bob Norris is fighting to clear the name of a man alleged to be a German spy while stationed in Newfoundland during the Second World War under Norris' command.

War veteran Norris says the claims have hurt the reputation of his 125 Fighter Squadron and QWN SPECIAL have devastated the family of the late Sgt. Pilot Doug Ruggles.

For the past year, Ruggles' sister Jackie Sperrington of Kenora, Ont. has feared her dead brother was a German saboteur and spy during the Second World War.

Fifty years later allegations still claim Sgt. Pilot Ruggles was shot down by his section leader in Newfoundland after he was alleged to be a spy.

RCAF Sgt. Pilot Doug Ruggles was attached to the 125 Fighter Squadron in Torbay, Nfld. when he died Aug. 27, in a fiery plane crash four kms outside the town of Green Harbor. Green Harbor legend claims Ruggles was shot down by his own RCAF section leader, Sgt. Deans, after it

Fifty years later, a publication celebrating the 100th anniversary of Green Harbor still touts the story of how a German spy was shot down after a dogfight over the town, says Sperrington.

It's demeaning to her brother's memory and maligns her family name — one strong with military tradition and honor — and she wants his name cleared.

New rock station ready mid-1992

That's where you'll find Belleville's newest rock and roll station on the FM dial next June, says Roy Bonisteel, station manager and former host of CBC Television's Man

However, the Department of Communication and CRTC However, the Department of Communication and CRTC still have to approve the transmitter site in St. Mary, east of Belleville before plans get underway to equip the station. Bonisteel says tests have already been conducted from the transmitter, but found CIOI's proposed signal would blanket the Kingston area. Readjustments have been made.

"I'm sure by June we! Il have everything operational and on the air," says Bonisteel, who has spearheaded the bid for a new FM station in Belleville with business partners Twigg Communications of London, Ont.

Bonisteel and Twigg want to repatriate Quinte listeners who tune in regularly to American stations.

The station is focusing on the 15 to 35 age group with a heavy emphasis on community awareness and promotion with a solid mix of "rock harder" music.

It's an uphill battle for women in trades

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

In Belleville, 1,000 apprentices are working in traditional trades. Twenty-five of that total are women.

The figures indicate the long fight still ahead for proponents of pay and job equity among minorities says Sharon Leitch, women's access to apprenticeship coordinator for Skills Quinte.

The Belleville figures are similar to the provincial picture. In Ontario, 50,000 apprentices are working toward some form of government licensing in traditional occupational trades, and of that number, only four per cent represent minority groups, including women.

"That number translates into 250 women throughout the whole province that are trying their hardest to break into trades held by men,"

'Unfortunately, there are still attitude barriers in the 1990s that prevent women and minority groups from obtaining employment in non-traditional trades.'

'Unfortunately, there attitude barriers in the 1990s that prevent women and minority groups from obtaining employment in non-traditional trades," Leitch said. "Too many tradesmen feel threatened, I think. But, they have to realize what equity is or for that matter isn't. We don't want to replace men with women — we're just calling for fairer representation."

In an effort to assist these minorities, Leitch and other members in Quinte industry and trade have been working to open doors.

One of the latest bids comes in the form of the Mechanical Construction Trades Training Program, engineered by a 21-member steering committee of local

CAUSE TO BLUSH

Mark Twain says man is the only animal that blushes -

Last week many men wore white ribbons to signify that they wanted to end men's violence against women. During the week, we remembered the 14 women who died in the Montreal Massacre. Last week I blushed for being a man.

But men aren't the problem. Not really, and I don't think I'm saying that just because I'm a man.

There is plenty of evidence to suggest that human beings are the problem. People hurt people. Men do it more often because because more often than not they are in a position to do so. But no sex, no nationality, no ethnic group seems immune.

And it's a matter of the heart. No amount of laws and legislation, no amount of education and learning, has ever changed it or ever will. There is a brokenness that engulfs

Parental rights

This is the third and final editorial in a series on parental rights in education.

Parents have a right to expect their children to be educated in ways that reflect and support the values they teach at home. And that right brings with it responsibility. That means parents have to be prepared to work in a partnership with professional educators, on the one hand telling educators what their values are and how they want their children taught, and on the other, supporting educators when they need it.

But what happens if the values of schools and parents start to diverge so greatly that it seems the gap cannot be bridged? And that is going to happen.
The public and separate school systems are good systems as far as they go, but they don't offer much choice in a society that is increasingly divided on values

And when that happens, parents are going to have to make a choice. Just how committed are you to the values you teach in the home? Are you prepared to make sacrifices to ensure your children learn those values at school as well as at home?

Some parents have chosen home schooling. But that is not a live option for many two-income families, nor are many people able to teach their children at home. That's why schools exist -- to do what parents cannot do.

Some parents have chosen alternative schools. In Belleville, alternative schools include Belleville District Christian School, Quinte Christian High School and Albert College. Then there is the Christian school in Trenton and Sonrise Christian Academy in Picton

But a cost is attached. Those parents have had to pay thousands of dollars for the right to see their children taught in the values they nurture at home on top of the school taxes they continue to pay to the public system and without a cent of public support for their own school. And we're not talking about the elite rich. We're talking about ordinary families that have to scrimp and save and make sacrifices. They do it because they believe their children and the education they receive are worth more than a new car, a bigger home, snowmobiles, movies, eating out or whatever luxury they have had to give up.

Unless the public system is willing to open up educational alternatives, more parents may have to make that choice. Just how much are parental rights worth to you?

'D' for schools and

The Editor:
Belleville schools deserve a 'D'. There is too much time spent on religion and no time to teach correct English.

To put the letter 'A' before

Since when have we been taught to say "so you have"; the correct expression is 'have you".

Reform members defamed by Copps and letter

This letter was sent to Quinte Weekly News and the newspaper in question. The Editor:

The publication by the local daily of a letter by a Robert Keller Nov. 28 with the headline "Manning Equals Duke" is either a gross example of yellow journalism or of inexcusable

Keller had no quotes from the Reform Party's platform or philosophy which he could relate to his version of Duke's, nor the slightest evidence to support his statement that "most of Manning's supporters fundamental Christians."

Keller has defamed and slandered Preston Manning and his party, and the newspaper dignified it with a headline which expanded his calumny, in spite of the fact that even Jean Chretien had the sense and decency to apologize publicly for Sheila Copps' unfounded vicious statement about Manning.

It is of interest that almost many Canadians favour the Reform Party as favour the PC's. One has to wonder are all of these people bigots and fundamentalists?

Or is Keller merely a cheap smear-artist who happens to have easy access to the newspaper's letters page? Ernst Kneisel

The Joy of Cooking: Nuke it!

Through my first two years of marriage the only flavor I tasted was charcoal. Great arrangement! I'd bring home the bacon and she's burn it. If I'd complain she'd make me cook for myself. But the only real food I'd ever prepared was salmon or tuna salad, so if microwaves hadn't arrived I'd house saugu unstream to speak.

After the initial month of hotdogs with my first microwave, I discovered TV dinners taste better warmed.

But they led to TV dinner leftovers ... called re-runs. I had to swear off them when I broke out in test patterns.

Still, they beat having someone else yell, "Dinner's ready. Come and guess it."

Who needs cooks anyway?The Bible tells us, "There is death in the pot," and Charles VI complained, "God sends me and the Devil sends cooks." Not a flattering testament to French cuisine!

The shortest route to a man's heart is no longer through his stomach. With a microwave, who can't scare his own food to death? Pop an A&P apple tart in for a few seconds, and it even passes for homenade pie like Mom used to fake. Homenade meals can drive one from home. Crown Victoria, new car for tomorrow

By Jim Maclean

The old-fashioned, brickon-wheels look of the Ford Crown Victoria is dead! Long live the smoother, sleeker, but still huge new Crown Vic!

One of the last vestiges of the old days of frame-on-body, rear-wheel drive, V8-powered North American automotive engineering has been given a complete redesign and a new lease on life, as has its Mercury twin, the Grand Marquis. The slah-sided, vertical grille look has disappeared in favor of the now-familiar "areo" style featuring integrated headlamps,

"areo" style featuring integrated headlamps, smooth body lines and flush-fitting glass.

The fact sheet on the new Crown Vic. says it's powered by Ford's new and much-praised 4.6 litter VR. In regular trim, kit offers up 190 horsepower, but if you opt for the optional dual exhaust, 210 horses become available. A four-speed automatic is the only transmission available. transmission available. Brakes are four-wheel disc all around, and an anti-lock system, which also boasts a traction-control feature, is available as an option. The interior is huge, comfortable and quiet, featuring room for six. The instruments are easy to read, and a digital dash is available as an option. equipment includes a driver's side air bag while a passenger-side airbag is optional. Seating comfort is improved by the optional duel powered seats with power lumbar support. Naturally, the trunk is about the size of the Grand Canyon and easier to access

The Crown Vic's highway manners are impeccable Cruising is quiet and smooth and the car's new suspension swallows the bumps instead of wallowing in them. An optional "touring" suspension is available this year, from an even more sure-footed ride.

There are three models in the line-up and prices start at just under $21,000. for traditionalists everywhere, this car is worth a look and rates 85 out of 100.

Light is key to plant growth year-round

Foliage plants such as Benjaminas, dieffenbachia, yuccass and philodendron make up to 75 to 80 per cent of house plants sales, which is really too bad. At least a dozen colorful flowering plants can be grown successfully in the home, and with the proper mix, can provide you with flowers and even fruit 12 months of the year.

There is evolutione manufement... liebt, and lots of it.

fruit 12 months of the year.

There is only one requirement — light, and lots of it, because light is the hinge on which all plant growth turns.
While foliage plants can do well in bright corners of the room, flowering plants require much more light.

Whether the light comes from natural or artificial sources really doesn't matter. What does matter is that the light levels be kept as high as possible 12 month of the year.

Windows are our only natural light source and their individual light profiles vary greatly from season to season.
The light value of a north window in mid-winter may be reduced by as much as 80 per cent from its summertime high. And a west window, the hottest window of all in summer, becomes a bright summer, becomes a bright window in winter. Only the window in winter. Only the east and south windows will support flowering plants year around, and even those may require some form of supplementary artificial light if your flowering plants are to be maintained at their booming best. There are two supplementary light sources: incandescent of floorescent, but in the case of the flowering plants, forget about incandescent. The energy output of the incandescent lamp is 90 per cent heat and 10 per cent light, which means if you locate an incandescent fixture close enough to a plant to sponsor flowering, the heat will dry out or burn the leaves. By contrast, the fluorescent output is 90 per cent and only 10 per cent heat, ideal for boosting light values to the levels required for flowering. As well, he red anys, which sponsor spindly growth. The fluorescent spectral output contains a balance of red and blue rays, ideal for plant growth. But who wants a fluorescent fixture hanging in their living room? Enter the fluorescent light bulb. A fairly recent invention, it has a lot of advantages. First they can be easily disguised in a spot light fixture. Secondly, they can be placed close to the plant's foliage. Finally, used in a lamp, they can convert a table into a growing centre for flowering plants.

Ruggles' crash was ruled an accident by a board of inquiry. A copy of the investigation summary states

Parsons that the whole affair is baseless. "They've helped me deal with it immensely, but I'm still very angry and frustrated. That's why I'm glad they're working so hard to clear his name," says

Parson visited the Newfoundland town in mid-November and interviewed several residents who claimed to be eyewitnesses.

"One of the eyewitnesses was an old man who was 10 years old at the time of the crash. He said he saw the

"It's absolutely criminal that she should be subjected to this" --Squadron Leader Bob Norris

Ruggles lost control of the his Hurricane aircraft after it stalled. It "then spiraled to the ground and exploded upon impact ... at such a low altitude (300 to 400 feet) he was unable to recover, before the aircraft struck the ground and burst into flames," wrote chief inspector F.S. Wilkins on Oct. 10, 1942.

But, others steadfastly support the legend, saying the government covered up the incident. Carman, Manitoba aircraft designer and builder Bob Diemert is one. Known for his efforts to build a plane for the Canadian air force called the Defender, he believes Hurricane wreckage he found in Green Harbor is Ruggles' plane.

Diemert visited Green Harbor in 1989 to retrieve the centre section of the Hurricane from the bush to build a replica of the Hawker Hurricane, using as many of the original pieces from the the wreckage as possible.

"The people I talked with were kids at the time of the crash and were were coming from school," Diemert says.

"One guy in the town told me they had to hit the ditches because there were bullets raining down all around them, and then the planes went roaring overhead, chasing each other," said Diemert, in a telephone interview from his Carman

But, those who served with Ruggles and flew lowflying formation training exercises over the coastal towns and villages, call the story "ludicrous." Among them are former 125th Fighter Squadron former leader Norris of Belleville and flight commander Lamont Parsons. Both were stationed at Torbay as Ruggles' superior officers and contend the officers and content cover up accusations and spy cover up accusations and spy allegations are all allegations are all romocoted-fairy tales with no truth behind them whatsoever." In fact, Norris and Parsons have been investigating the Green Harbor story for the past couple of months after being contacted by Ruggle's sister. Jackie admits it's been much easier to dismiss the allegations after being assured by Norris and airplanes but didn't hear any guns firing," said Parsons in a telephone interview from his home in Newfoundland.

'Certainly if Ruggles was shot down, the plane would have been riddled with bullet holes. I didn't see any," Parsons said. "Neither did Rev. Hugh Kirby of Harbour Grace, who was the very first person on the scene with his person on the scene with mid-daughter the day of the crash in 1942. He was berry picking in the area when he saw the plane go down. His daughter told me they had to stamp some of the small fires out around the plane when they got to the crash," says Parsons. "She doesn't remember seeing any bullet holes either."

Parsons continues: "What really bothers me is the grief Doug's family is going through. He had absolutely no association with the Germans and was definitely not a spy. Nothing could be further from the truth. He was one of the most popular guys in the squadron and died serving his country," says 'arsons.

Norris attributes the spy

Norris attributes the spy allegations to rumors spawned from a growing uneasiness of the time, stemming from reports of German spies landing in there from submarines. "We really had a big spy problem down there at the time. There were so many reports of spies coming reports of spies coming reports of spies coming ashore. We had a lot of sabotage going on and tensions were high," says Norris. "One time, some bodies of German crewmen were found floating after we sunk their sub. They were found to have St. John's theatre to have St. John's theatre tickets on them. These guys were circulating throughout the towns and cities unnoticed," Norris says. "I think this is how so many rumors started, including this unfortunate story about Doug."

Stickers -- Lots of Fun!

Stockers - Lous of Fail: For several years, Panini an Italian company with a Canadian office in Montreal, has issued sticker books. Sports books have included hockey, baseball and football. Several others have included Barbie, Transformers, WWF Wrestling, Snow White, etc. Ad infinitem, ad nauseam.

Top Card

The books are readily available at most corner stores usually on a rack with the stickers that sell for about 40 cents per pack.

The books contain spaces for 344 stickers this year.

In the 1991-92 Hockey series, there are colourful photographs of the Stanley Cup playoffs from last year, and as well as pages of statistics. Special pages are included for Top NHL Rookies and the NHL All Star

Rookie stickers are included for Belfour, Ricci, Hodge, Blake, Fedoro, Holik, Reichel and Jagr.

As an investment, stickers really don't cut the mustard, Stickers books are not easy of fill. I purchased the entire box (retail value $40. plus tax) and still was short a few stickers

By comparison a complete set of Score Hockey cards including all of the Rookie stars, is about $30.

I have filled several books in the past, but they really are a challenge to fill - each to his or her own!

Pill-taking made easier for seniors

By Gord Leggat QWN Special

Flip-top containers instead of the childproof variety can make pill-taking easier for seniors -- and the law makes provision for pharmacists to provide the containers.

'We are required by law to package prescription drugs in child proof containers unless specifically requested not to," said Bill Simpson of Shopper's Drug Mart in Belleville. Having only limited use of my right arm, I asked him to use the flip tops.

My various records at the drugstore, from hard copy cards to computer disks, say "#SNAP CAPS#". And if habit takes over and I end up with child proof lids, I ask to have the pills repackaged, since I no longer have kids around the house to open them for me.

In the course of our conversation, Bill showed me several related items, from instore dosage cards to an opener people that makes it easier to turn of flip lids. Primarily for non-prescription drugs, this unit can also assist in opening prescription bottles.

The in-store dispensing card contains up to 34 pills in separate blisters on an 8 1/2" x 11" card. The top of the card contains the label information found on other containers.

There are also specialized reusable containers with sliding covers that indicate day and time of day for each pill. They come in "colors proven easily visible to the aging eye" (to quote the supplier's catalogue) and also have "Braille markings (to) assist those with visual

"According to the maker, the container "increased medication compliance in a test from 50 percent to 90 percent because it acts as a reminder, keeps tabs on your pills and is easy to use.

As well, he showed me the Pill Crusher for turning "those hard to swallow tablets to powder effortlessly." and the Pill Splitter, which "easily divides pills to reduce dosage.'

Marmora is still on the garbage list says O'Neil

CHAIRMAN ROSS MCDOUGALL

BGH faces cash crunch to avoid $2 million deficit

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Belleville General Hospital may have to cut more than $2 million in operational expenditures from its 1992-1993 budget to cover an expected shortfall in funding from the provincial Ministry of Health.

Ross McDougall, BGH board chairman, says the substantial cuts will be crucial to meet an anticipated 2 per cent increase in transfer payments from the ministry.

Frances Lankin, health minister has announced she's looking at ways of cutting the $17 billion provincial health budget. She contends as much as $5 billion of the total is "wasted and could be better directed."

McDougall disagrees, but says BGH will be prepared to meet any drastic cuts in funding of Ontario hospitals by the ministry.

"I'm not prepared to accept that 30 per cent of the health budget is not justified, I am confident, however, that there are ways that BGH can cut down," McDougal says. The board chairman cites a study commissioned by BGH last 4.6.4.

BELLEVILLE FIRE DEPARTMENT URGES CITY COUNCIL:

Make smoke detectors mandatory

By Derek Baldwin QWN Staff

Belleville Fire Chief Gord Gazely wants smoke detectors to blanket residential units across the city to prevent needless loss of life, injuries and property damage.

Gazely says his department will bring forward a new bylaw for city council consideration in early spring calling for the implementation of smoke detectors in all residential dwellings.

The building code requires mandatory smoke detectors in new buildings, but existing dwellings in the city are not prescribed by law to have the early detection devices.

"There is no smoke detector bylaw in place at present

Local group boycotts Chinese toys

The next time you purchase a Barbie or Teenage Mutant Ninja Doll, check the manufacturing label.

Chances are, says the local Canadian branch of the Tibetan Youth Congress, the toys may have been made by child labor camp prisoners in China.

Many of these children are victims of the Beijing Regime's efforts in China to suppress democratic and religious aspirations.

The Tibetan Youth Congress in Belleville is urging Canadian consumers to boycott toys made in the People's Republic of China.

Toys have been chosen as a symbol to represent all products manufactured for export under brutal conditions in China's vast network of prison labor camps, and through China made $1.6 billion (U.S.) from toy exports in the first two quarters of 1990. Last year Canada imported $168 million in toys made in China.

We could afford six at-bats or two hits

Baseball players earned an average salary of about $850,000 last year and that figure is rising. By this time next year, players will probably be earning something just short of But don't make the mistake of thinking the money means a thing to them. Nossir. It's a matter of pride. Wally Joyner, first baseman for California Angels, decided to leave for Kansas City because he wasn't appreciated in California. He felt so under-appreciated that he cried at the press conference. Of course, $4.2 million for next year's contract will go a long ways towards kleenex to dry

SPEAKING OF CRYING: PART I

SPEAKING OF CRYING: PART1
Bobby Bonilla -- $29 million over five years. Chuck Finley -- $18.5 million over four years. Makes you weep for Tom Candiotii who only got $14 million over four years.
Last week, the Jays offered $14 million over three years to Jack Morris but that may not be enough anymore. And the Jays can't afford to wait. Every week increases the amount it takes to sign a star. You can hear the clock ticking....

COUNTING THE COST

How many dollars do you think are flowing out of Belleville and Trenton into the coffers of the Blue Jays to upport these salaries?

How many local families on average would attend a Blue Jays game? Ten per weekend? Twenty? Thirty? Figure 30 families at about $100 apiece for tickets, Go Trains, food and drink. Say about $3,000 a weekend times about 20 weekends a year. Say about $60,000.

Of course that's not enough to justify a domed stadium and

Of course that's not enough to justify a domed stadium and a professional team here. But we could pay for one player at the major league minimum of $60,000. Of course, we could only afford a cheap rookie, but that rookic could grow up to e a star and move to California where the sun shines all the time and dollars grow on trees amongst the oranges.

Or we could get together in a syndicate with other Southern Ontario towns and buy a higher priced player. Our $60,000 a year would purchase roughly 1/97th of Bobby Bonilla, who earns approximately as much as a Third World dictator with a Swiss bank account and an escape route from his presidential palace. That would buy about six at-bats in a normal season or two hits on average.

SPEAKING OF CRYING: PART II

SPEAKING OF CRYING: PART II

And so baseball players go crying to the bank. Where they're crying too. We're in a recession, but you wouldn't know it at the banks. The country's six major banks are announcing record profits over the past year while talking somberly about the economy's dismal prospects.

However, you will be glad to know that they see a silver lining. No wonder. So far, this recession has lined their pockets while emptying everyone clse's.

Smoke detectors: the gift of a lifetime

Belleville does not have a bylaw making smoke detectors mandatory for older buildings such as the apartment building that burned recently on Victoria Avenue, leaving 14 homeless and one dead.

Only new buildings are required to have smoke detectors installed under the Building Code - yet the risk of fire is always greater in older buildings, say fire inspectors. Old furnaces and wiring, more combustible features, all make older residences more

But smoke detectors can save lives.

Most deaths, say fire inspectors, are due to smoke inhalation. An early warning system such as that provided by a smoke detector could save many if not most of those lives

As well, smoke detectors can reduce property damage. The first few minutes of a fire are critical. The earlier warning provided by a smoke detector can reduce the chances of the fire catching hold and save not just lives but property.

Senior Belleville Fire Inspector Reg Christopher estimates that 60 per cent or fewer of the homes and apartments in Belleville are equipped with smoke detectors. He would like to see every residence equipped, and toward that end, the fire department is planning to ask the city to pass a bylaw in the new year, making smoke detectors mandatory in all residences, old and new.

And we'd like to suggest immediate action not just by city council but by individual homeowners.

Remember, winter is the most dangerous time of year for fires. Portable heaters, wood stoves, furnaces and Christmas decorations all contribute towards making the cold season more dangerous than any other time of year.

Why not give a smoke detector to someone for Christmas? It could turn out to be the gift of a lifetime. Literally.

Make a gift to charity

A recent Decima survey indicates that Canadians think they should get involved in the community and should give more to charity -- but somehow just don't get around to it. Why not make that a Christmas promise this year? And if you make a donation before the end of the year, remember it's tax deductible on this year's income. Just a little bonus!

Story was misleading and unfair

I am writing this letter to express my concerns about an article which appeared on the front page of your Nov. 26, 1991 paper. The article was written by Derek Baldwin and was Separate Board Monitors Teachers Absenteeism'

I take exception to the misleading title and the fact the "monitoring of absentee-ism" is not defined until half way through the story

The title and the first part of the article leaves one with the impression that the teachers of Hastings-Prince Edward RCSS Board are abusing sick days and that their board has to undertake special initiative to nitor this. Nothing could be further from the truth!

The fact of the matter is that the teachers of this system are dedicated and hard working individuals.

They often work with supplies and resources that aren't as modern nor plentiful as those found in our public board. They are most unselfish with the time that they give to their students. Far too many times, teachers come into school when they should be staying home ill. Whether it is because of lack of supply teachers or because it's often ore of a hassle to write up plans for the supply teachers, they choose not to stay home when they should be staying. A study by the University of Windsor Business School showed that the rate of absenteeism from work by teachers is less than that of the private sector and other public sector areas me regret over their choice of words for this initiative. They also indicated that they would correct the misunderstanding at the November principals' meeting as abuse of sick days is not an issue with them.

I find the article most misleading and quite unfair. From the heading to the organization of the story, I wonder why this article appears on your front page when there are so many more stories available for you to report on.

would invite Mr Baldwin to attend the regular public monthly meetings of the board, as the other Quinte media do, to get stories that reflect the work of our system and the work of its teachers.

Belleville's missing art gallery

The Editor:

I am struck by the parallels between the story of "The Kings New Suit of Clothes" and the Belleville Public Library Gallery.
In the fable the King, his advisors and subjects engage in an agreement to see what isn't there. Eventually it takes the honesty of a child's vision to see that the King is naked

So, you ask, what parallels could there possibly be with the Belleville Public Library

I have just read in the Nov/Dec 91 "What's Happening" that "...As yet there is no art gallery in Belleville...." Also the gallery is not listed on the recently published in the Arts Council Ouinte

This is clearly a twist on the tale - people who don't see what is there!

Well, Belleville, you do have an art gallery and a fine one at that! The Olive Delaney Gallery was built 15 years ago as an addition to the Belleville Public Library. Its quality facilities have made it possible for Belleville to receive provincial and national shows for many years. Local, regional and internationally-known artists exhibit there and the gallery has a reputation for professionalism amongst art galleries across Canada.

There may be many Belleville and district art lovers who are wondering, as I am, "where's the Fear: the only luggage you don't lose flying

DECEMBER 17

The Wright Brothers first flew Dec. 17, 1903. Their ascents, with Orville and then Wilbur at the controls, lasted 12 and then 59 seconds.

Don't laugh. Some planes today don't stay up that long. The Wrights learned how to fly watching birds. We're lucky they didn't watch rabbits ... or we'd all be homing new. hopping now.
Don't read ahead of me

Fear of flying is silly, of course, How often does a modern jet crash? Usually just once! But it's unnerving to approach an airport and see it marked "terminal." And you know you're in trouble when the insurance machine is sold out. Hijackings frighten me ... like the time this guy pointed a gun at the captain and demanded, "Take me wherever my luggage is going." And you just know you're going to be hijacked when your steak comes in pita bread.

No-frills is an interesting flying fad. When you buy your tickets you saw. "I'll take two chances on the nine-fifteen."

No-frills is an interesting flying fad. When you buy your tickets you say, "I'll take two chances on the nine-fifteen." Before the flight the passengers get together to elect a captain, then he asks everyone to chip in for gas.

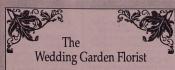

To board, you walk down this long corridor — so the luggage can get a head start. Prior to takeoff a stewardess warns you to fasten your Velcro. Next, if there's decompression, she assures you oxygen masks will fall in your laps, and shows you how to put quarters in the slot. No frills flights don't need movies. Every ten seconds your life passes before your eyes. When there is one, it's usually so bad passengers walk out. Too many vehicles hurtle around up there anymore. Recently a UFO even landed at Pearson International. The aliens were safe, but they lost their luggage.

The Wrights had a great idea ... but no luggage.

THE SHAPE OF YOUR DIAMOND TELLS A LOT ABOUT YOU What's your personality?

What does your diamond tell about you? According to diamond experts, the shape of your diamond says something about the kind of person you are, revealing whether you are creative, aggressive, sensitive, earthbound or dreamy.

Diamond shapes include: round, oval,

If you like the round shape best, then husband, children and home life are very important to you. You relate easily to others and are dependable. Even if you work, your career doesn't come first. Instead, you are looking forward to the comforts and joys of marriage and motherhood.

If you like the pear shape, then the security of home and family are very important to you. But that doesn't mean you aren't eager to meet new people and find experience new things. You're ambitious and you want your mate to be

If you like an oval-shaped diamond, then you probably love innovation and like to let your creativity free. Organized but flexible, you have a sense of style and dare to be different. You aren't far out, but you have a unique sense of who you are and who you want to be.

If you like the marquise shape, you are probably outgoing and impulsive. You may be temperamental, but you thrive on challenges and you're partner is going to have to keep up with you. You are also a sexy charmer. You will thrive in a career where your energies find expression and you can achieve your full potential. You regard being home as being "cooped up."

Finally, there is the orderly angular square or emerald cut. You're a bit conservative, self-disciplined and well organized. Your mind rules your heart and you think things through before making decisions. You would make a good executive or leader.

Planned purchases each and every year for designated rooms of the house can build a Christmas collection over the years and won't drain the pocket book all at once.

By Angela Aide

Once there was three Magi and an angel appeared to them and said: Tonight there will be a star. You must follow it. It will lead you to a Prince of Peace and you will find him wrapped in clothes and lying in a manger." Then my friends and I went to search for him. When we camped, the star came out. Off we went. This is where this took place. King Herod told the three wise kings to "go and find Baby Jesus so I may pray to him." So, they set off. They travelled by following a star. It was a long way. The wise kings brought presents. One king had gold. One king had silver. The last king had myrrh. They nice clothes. They saw an angel. The angel said: "Do not be afraid. By Joelle Turner

Tonight is the holy night. I saw a bush and behind the bush was Bethlehem. I knew I was close. I found the child (he was at least three years old). Mary and Joseph said Jesus was his name. He is the Son of God. The Saviour. King Herod wanted to kill Baby Jesus so they had to travel to Egypt to live there until the king gave up. The end.

By Sonya Zaback

If I were a Magi, I would probably ride a camel. I would pick one with two bumps. They're the best because you can sit in the middle. I would get a gift of myrrh. When I get there, I would give the gift to the new king. I don't know if she will let us hold the baby. The star was out last night and it is out tonight! I wonder what his name will be? I wonder if he has a palace?

By Melissa Jeffrey

"I wonder if he will laugh? Just think how beautiful his palace will be. It is very hot in the desert. "We will offer Him gifts of silver and gold and myrrh," "Look! I see a star up in the sky onight," said a person. "Yes," said

"Let us follow it," said another person. So they did. They got on their camels and left their city. When they started there was a performance. And there was gold and silver everywhere.

I forgot to tell that the people were called Magi or Wise Men or another name is Three Kings. And they got further from their city there were bumpier roads. No gold. No silver.

chairman of the annual Professional Firefighters Toy Drive, says Dec. 20 is the ideal day to deliver thousands of toys — it's the last day that children are in school, providing parents the opportunity to stash the Christmas goodies.

December 19 has been allocated for parents wanting to pick up their own boxes from the toy drive headquarters at Loeb's

reflecting back throughout the past couple of months while standing at his headquarters among rows

Roomhower says a surge at the last minute of families requesting toy boxes has kept the volunteers very busy. A few weeks into the campaign last month, Boomhower was worried new rules under the Freedom of Information Act would hamper his efforts to help underprivileged children have a better Christmas. Recipients of this year's Christmas Sharing program had to register in person and provide a pay stub to be eligible for the program.

"It really was bad at one time. We only had 300 families registered. A lot of parents didn't come forward at first and we didn't have their names. Obviously, we do now. Now we have 700 families on the list and I'm expecting another hundred before our deadline," says Boomhower. "It looks like

"Again this year, we couldn't have done it without the generous support of all of the people who donated new and used toys to us. A lot of companies donated new toys to us, rather than buying presents for each other. That's the real meaning of Christmas."

Boomhower says used toys are no longer being accepted for this year's drive. New toys and cash donations, however, will be accepted up until Friday. And, tickets for the firefighters draw for a trip for two to Florida are still available until this Friday at $1 apiece from Quinte Mall, Zellers, Food City and both city firehalls n July 30, 1975, Jimmy Hoffa told his wife Josephine that he had an appointment to meet friends for lunch. He left his summer home north of Detroit for the 25-mile trip to the suburb of Birmingham. The Seyear-old Hoffa rived at the Red Fox Restartant and was observed parking his green 1974 Pontlac sometime after 130 p.m. when his friends didn't show up, he called Josephine and told her that Anthony "Toor Acck" Giacalone had stood him up. He inquired of Josephine if his friend had called to cancel the appointment. Josephine assured him that she had received no such call. Hoffa made another phone call to a friend of Jimmy's while both were serving time in Lewisburg For had too time been a Teamsters Union vice-president and had been a friend of Jimmy's while both were serving time in Lewisburg Federal Prison. For several days after the disappearance, police, most notably the FBI, held out hope that Hoffa had been adducted in some sort of labor power play and would turn up. As time passed, it became obvious that he had been murdered.

For some time after his disappearance, it was theorized that Hoffa, fearing for his life, had fled the country, but few believed that Jimmy, a devoted family man, would leave his wife, daughter and son. Some think that Hoffa was planning on testifying against top union officials suspected of receiving huge kickbacks paid out of the union's pension fund. Eliminating a witness ready to spill his guts is a time honored mob practice.

Most probable of all the theories alludes to Jimmy as a major threat to once again become president of the Teamsters Union. It must be remembered that hundreds of thousands of truckers owed their increased paycheques to Hoffa, who almost singlehanted the second of th

When Jimmy was paroled from prison, one of the conditions of his parole forbade him from any participation in union activities. Jimmy was legally fighting to have this condition set aside. It was an open secret that he planned to run for the presidency in 1976. This was considered a direct threat to many people. The current president, Fitzsimmons, had delegated power to 15 vice presidents. This was in direct contrast to Hoffar's style. Jimmy had always insisted on total control.

Still others ported from Michigan. Still others believe that Jimmy's body was ground up and incinerated in a Mafia-owned up and incinerated in a Mafia-owned operation in New Jersey. TOY DRIVE Loyalist toymakers are Santa's helpers

Loyalist College students enrolled in the cabinet making program are feeling a bit like Santa's elves.

Their handmade toys were delivered last Friday as part of the Belleville Professional Firefighters' Toy Drive, mandated to helping to make Christmas a little better for underprivileged children.

As many as 160 wooden Model-T cars and dump trucks made their way into the toy boxes delivered to almost 800 families in the Belleville region by chairman Ralph Boomhower and volunteers. The 40 cabinet-making students made the toys as part of a classroom learning project, designed to teach students the merits of assembly-line production.

Henry Douglas, professor, says the class exercise has continued for the past seven years, made possible by saving a portion of the toys each year for an auction. Monies raised finance next year's assembly line.

This year's auction was held in the cabinet making workshop at Loyalist's Pioneer Building, raising approximately $1,100.

Besides learning, our students get something much more important out of this — they learn to help someone who is in need, It can mean a lot at Christmas time," says Douglas.

Looking for a steady job? Try mapmaking

Quick! Tell your children! If they want a job with endless career possibilities and no immediate prospects of a layoff, go into mapmaking.

"What's that? You say there's a news update coming on? Sure, I can hold.

He groans and holds his head in his hands.

Khazakistan has asked to join them. How do you spell that? K ... h ... a ...

In a broken voice, he asks his boss: "Can I please go home? I mean, it's Christmas eve. I haven't seen my family in weeks --- maybe months -- what with all these changes ... sure, I know it's all overtime and ime and a half and double overtime and triple overtime, but still, I'd like to see my kids before they grow up. No? You're sure? But it will just change again in a few hours anyway....

Hello? Hello? I can't believe he just hung up."

In disgust, he tears the map he has been working on from the drafting table, crumples it and tosses it over his shoulder. Time for another shot of rye. They'll never recognize the Soviet Union by time he gets done. Not that it matters. It will all have to be changed anyway. We're expecting a further update after the 11 o'clock new

MILLIONAIRES ROW

Last week we noted the rising salaries in baseball, explaining that the major league minimum was $60,000. Silly us.

It is actually something just over $100,000.

Meanwhile, baseball now has 225 millionaires -- more than one out of three players in the major leagues.

Remember Murderers Row, the lineup of awesome Yankee hitters that included Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig?

Today's version is Millionaires Row. They may not hit for much, but they sure earn a lot not doing it. Some teams, such as the Oakland A's, could field a whole starting team of millionaires and still have seven millionaires on the bench.

on track

Effective Jan. 19, VIA Rail will be reinstating early morning service to Belleville with a train that leaves here at 8:26 a.m. and arrives in Toronto's Union Station at 9:59 a.m.

The local reaction is one of delight. Dave Parker, Belleville's economic development officer, calls the move positive for the local business community, a statement that found agreement from the chamber of commerce and the downtown business association.

We agree. We're delighted.

But we have to wonder why the move took so long -- and why all of VIA's early morning runs were axed in the first place almost exactly two years ago. The reinstatement of service is described as especially appealing to business travellers, so why does VIA think an early morning run is warranted now -- during a recession -- when it wasn't two years ago when business was good?

If rail service is viable today, then it was viable two years ago -- and if that's the case, then VIA shouldn't have axed it. Now VIA is going to have to regain its credibility and sell itself to customers who have found alternative means of transportation.

But never mind. VIA is supposed to be in the people moving business, and we're just glad that the crown corporation has decided to get back into the business it was supposed to be in all the

Making sense of Sunday hours

Sunday shopping update: Apparently local store owners and operators report people are looking but not buying.

What else did anyone expect? If people aren't buying on the other six days of the week, why would they on the seventh? In any case, the response of Semple's grocery store makes more sense -- if people really want more hours to shop, then offer more hours during the other six days and take the seventh day off to be with your family Reader: stop proselytizing

It is disappointing in this so-called enlightened age, where even Ann Landers sage advice is "mind your own business," That we find people proselytizing the Christian faith (see "Indonesia Trip, QWN Dec. 10) -- and even more disappointing that people from the local area took part.

To go out and help build a factory or demonstrate more efficient farming methods is laudable, but to go and help build a training centre for more missionaries -- even if they are local people should have gone out with the passing of other forms of outdated colonialism.

So please, if people are Muslim, Pagan, Hindu or whatever, leave them be and stop proselytizing, especially when it is done under the false pretence of being teachers.

I remember a Native Canadian telling me that when the missionaries came here, the natives had the land and the missionaries had the Bible. The position is now that the Indians have the Bible and the churches have the land. So perhaps the churches are after more real estate in other lands

In closing I would like to state that the whole article reeks of the musty odours of neo-colonialism

Keep up good work

Just a note to express to you our sincerest thanks for your continuous support in promoting the YMCA's mission in the community ... our story on basketball's 100th anniversary was excellent!

I also want to congratulate you for your ingenuity with the kids' recipes.

It was funny to read all the recipes from the kids, but it was also appreciated and enjoyable to see your paper promoting child care services in the area.

Keep up the good work! George Patsios Executive Director YMCA

What would you do if you arrived at a voting station and there was a person there suggesting to prospective voters who to vote for? Voting is a very private and personal event.

If you were at a licensed horse race track and you were overheard by security or police toting customers what horse to bet, you could be charged by the police.

An editor could print the likely successful candidates by simply stating that his picks were as a result of a poll his newspaper was engaged in

All these people forgot the poor, disabled and homeless citizens. These underprivileged persons do become very important on election day. All the aforementioned individuals were defeated because they failed to listen.

Police investigate attempted theft at bar

Quinte Crime Stoppers in conjunction with the Belleville Police Force would like your assistance in solving an attempted theft from an automated banking machine at the Toronto Dominion Bank at

At 12:45 a.m. on the 19th of October, 1991, the alarm was activated by the banking machine. Investigators arrived to find that someone had attacked the money machine with a pry bar. Not knowing that the interior of the machine is actually a vault the novice safecracker succeeded only in tearing the face off the machine and damaging the cash dispensing chute. The culprit managed to cut himself while in the act as there was blood evident on the floor of the booth and outside on the sidewalk. Damage to the banking machine is estimated at over $3000. while the loss of business and customer inconvenience can only be speculated.

If you know who is responsible for this crime or saw someone in the vicinity with a prybar or bandaids Crime Stoppers would appreciated a call. Crime Stoppers offers a

On Feb. 13, 1973, Fred Perez, a 72-year-old retired commercial fishing company owner, was repairing the driveway of a home he owned on Gharkey St. Fred lived around the corner. As he worked, a vehicle pulled up. By the sheerest luck, Fred Perez's niece happened to be looking out of the window of her own home observing her uncle at Suddenly, the barrel of a rifle protruded from the window of the vehicle. The rifle roared and Fred Perez crumbled to the ground. In a few seconds the car raced out of sight, but not before Fred's niece joited down the license number and a description of the vehicle. She ran to aid her uncle, but Fred Perez was beyond help. He was dead. Fred's niece phoned police. In less than three minutes after the fatal shots were fired, the killer's license number was being broadcast to all police cars in the general area. Herbie was taken to police headquarters in Santa Cruz, where his fingerprints were taken and his vehicle thoroughly searched. In the trunk police found a 22 calibre handgun — a Saturday Night Special.

The revolver underwent ballistic examination and proved to be the weapon used in the murders of the Francis and Gianera families. Herbie's fingerprints matched those found on the confessional booth in St. Mary's Catholic Church. The rifle confiscated by Patrolman Upton was the weapon which had taken the life of Fred Perez.

Herbie Mullin was charged with seven murders and lodged in jail. Investigators attempted to learn whether he had at any time met any of his victims. They discovered that Herbie had purchased his revolver in his home town of Felton by simply walking into a general store and picking one out. He filled in his application for the weapon and waited the required five days before returning to pick it up.

During the five-day waiting period, Herbie passe the time fishing off the Santa Cruz Municipal Pier It was here that he met fellow angler Fred Perez, the kindly retired gentleman chatted at length wit the clean-cut young man. drive up and kill Fred for no apparent reason. Four days after Herbie was anfely behind bars, Brian Card's brother trudged through the woods of Henry Cowell State Park to visit Brian. Brian and his three friends, David Oliker, 18. Mark Johnson, 19, and Robert Spector, 18, had been attemptite to lead the lives of rugged woodsmen in the park. They had chosen a picturesque site on the shore of the San Lorenzo River to make camp. The boys had prepared for their adventure. Brian had built a temporary structure on the site several months earlier. Although it was little more than a lean-to, it was covered with a plastic sheet and proved to be a snug makeshift home for the four adventurers. Unfortunately, the boys had picked a location about two miles from Felton, where Herbie Mullin's parents lived and where Herbie often visited.

Brian Card's brother entered the lean-to and faced the most horrible sight he had ever witnessed in his life. All four boys were dead. All had been shot in the head at close range. Nothing was missing from the campsite, nor was there a sign of a structle.

That same evening, autopsies were performed on the four bodies. Bullets removed from the skulls had been fired from the same weapon Herbie Mullin had used to kill six of his seven other victims.
Now Herbie's victim count had reached 11. He stood trial accused of all 11 murders and was found guilty on all counts. Herbie Mullin, who hinted that the devil was behind his murder sprec, could give no coherent motive for snuffing out 11 lives. The boy who was selected as the most likely to succeed by his classmates was sentenced to life imprisonment, a sentence he is presently serving.

Joseph and Mary, portrayed by Joseph McKnight and Tricia Monzon, await the birth of Jesus.

When Jesus was born

In two days, we will celebrate Christmas, marking the day on which Christ was born in the little town of Bethlehem.

Early in December, Bridge Street United Church presented the sights and sounds of the Bethlehem marketplace as it might have appeared in Jesus' time 2,000 years ago. Here it is as it might have looked on the day when Mary and Joseph wearily rode a donkey into town just before that first Christmas.

TAKING HER LUMPS

Havelock's 11-year-old Elizabeth Stinchcombe, holidaying with grandparents Bill and Doreen Wickens of Belleville, cuts a pretty figure on a lumpy Bay of Quinte surface. Later she

Student donations went to other charities the only charity organization to benefit from the energy and enthusiasm of students and staff in the Belleville area. While all the high schools were involved in collecting food and gifts for the sharing baskets, many also organized a wide range of other activities to raise money and goods for those in need.

One group of students in a woodworking class at Moira Secondary School made a the pediatrics wing of Belleville General Hospital. One of them, Scott Maracle, spent

Joan Tuir's family studies clothing class at Moira organized and held a bake sale to Tuir's class also collected food and toys for the Gleaners Food Bank and the Firefighters Toy Drive.

"All the schools are certainly very

Students showed Christmas spirit

By Sarah MacWhirter QWN Special

The spirit of giving was still running strong in students and staff at high schools in the Belleville area just before Christmas

"I thought it was outstanding this year, especially considering the number of parents who are out of work," said Dave Reynolds, principal of Centennial Secondary School

The Christmas Sharing Program organized through the Volunteer Bureau is perhaps the best known area of involvement for local high schools. Staff and students work together to collect and deliver the sharing baskets filled with food and gifts to over 100 families in the Recession failed to dampen student enthusiasm

Many of the student organizers at th various high schools were concerned that the recession would dampen student generosity this year, but they say the results generosity this year, out they say the results have been more than satisfactory.

"There has been a good response this year, a real spirit of giving, especially when you consider the recession," said Tina Dempsey, student council representative at Centennial.

Marie Sikkema of Quinte Christian High agreed, saying: "Our sharing baskets started out kind of slow this year, but we ended up with extra. I think that at Christmas time, people are extra willing to give.

Student and staff organizers at Quinte Secondary School relied upon adrenaline, hormones and support from the local business community to raise extra cash for their sharing baskets.

"We sold computer dating services for $2 per person and put all the profits towards our sharing baskets," said student council representative Anna Zouganelis. She added that students also packed presents at the firefighters' toy drive.

The boys varsity basketball team at Quinte, under the direction of coach Liane Woodley, organized a Christmas sharing basketball game that raised over $1,000. Gift prizes donated by local businesses helped sell tickets for the game, which took place during school hours.

Speaking of cars, how is your teenager?

Bug Off was the name on the sign of a pest exterminating company we observed while on our Christmas travels

How do you suppose they answer the telephone?

ONTHE ROAD
Cars are a wonderful thing, aren't they.
They make possible so many conveniences, Such as nine hour trips to visit family at Christmas in weather better spent before a fireplace with a good book.
The weather was fine and the roads were dry when we left. We hadn't ourselves listened to the weather report, but we had it on the best of information that a rain and ice storm was supposedly following us from the east. All we storm was supposedly following us from the east. All we had to do was keep ahead of it.

Just past Toronto, however, it dawned on us that the best Just past formio, nowever, it dawned on us mat the cest of information might not be the most reliable. It started to rain. The roads began to ice up. And it was coming from the west, the direction in which we were moving.

And it didn't get any better. When the rain quit, it was because the snow had begun. And the roads just became more slippery.

We plugged on.

we piugget on.

Is there anything more disorienting than snow blowing into your lights at night? After a while you're not sure which direction it is coming from, which direction you are going, where the road is or whether you even care. Which, of course, is a momentary fallacy sobered by the reflection that war well age. that you really don't care to spend the night in the ditch.

We plugged on.

The roads became even more slippery, but we had said we would arrive that night sometime around midnight. Which was right now. And no prospect of arriving before 3

So we pulled over and spent the night in a motel, the first time we have had to do so in 15 years of travelling to visit family.

OFF THE ROAD

Some people believe that cars are merely mechanical objects made of increasingly less steel and more plastic.

Anyone who owns one knows better.

There is an obstinacy to cars that is shared only with

When we drove to church, it drove with the eagerness to please of a teenager who wants to borrow the keys to the family car. We came out of church one hour later, it refused to start, groaning like a teenager who has to make an early morning appointment at school.

an early morning appointment at school.

We managed to get it started and with the judicious application of the gas pedal could keep it running, so we lurched off, alternately surging and dying.

Have you ever tried in a strange town to find someone who: a.) knows about Honda carburetor and b.) is willing to fit you in before Christmas two days from now?

We finally found such a place and with it the reflection that life is never so bad that you can't find someone worse off than yourself. We could have owned a Rolls Royce, for instance. The sign in the shop indicated that they would work on Alfa Romeos, Jaguars and Porsches for $40 per hour but that a Rolls would cost $60.

And a Rolls Comiche, by the way, can now be leased in the States for just $20,000 (U.S.) down and a mere $2,999 per month. More in Canada. Of course.

"I was really surprised at how willing people were to give prizes and the support from employers was amazing," said Woodley. "The students in the school are really supportive, as well as staff and administrators. It seems to be a major part of school spirit here

Bayside Secondary Junior enrichment students held a candy cane sale that raised between $400 and $500 in combined sales donations towards their sharing baskets. As well, the school's graduation school's graduation committee organized a dance and collected canned food for the food boxes.

Both Centennial Secondary and Belleville Collegiate held Christmas sharing auctions to raise money for the sharing baskets.

The top selling item at Centennial's auction was a Black Forest cake made by a staff member, Mr. Ganzler, which was bought by the Centennial Concert band for $600. In total, the auction raised $2,890 for the sharing baskets, which was rounded up to $3,000 by extra staff Belleville Collegiate's auction raised $1,800 and a Christmas sharing basketball game against Nicholson raised over $350 (BCI won the game).

Student advisor John Smith explained that the adult class at BCI also raised $1,000 to be donated to the Christmas Sharing Program and Gleaners Food Bank by making poinsettia decorations.

"It's been a very good year for us here," Smith said. "I'm really impressed to see, at a time when we think students are actually selfish, that there is actually a caring community in the school.

The Moira Secondary Geoventure Club also got involved in the spirit of giving, making a gingerbread house that was raffled off to make money for Christmas sharing.

Guided by an angels light, Many people came, To watch the birth of Jesus Christ In the manger, where he had been lain.

Since that night, long ago When the baby boy arrived He was a wonder to everyone He gave the world a big surprise By Lori Scott

A long time ago in a far away land called Bethlehem a baby named Jesus was born. It was said that the infant was to be king of kings. Angels of God our Father witnessed it as well as shepherds, wisemen and his father Joseph. Years after Jesus grew up he was crucified for his beliefs. But the true meaning of Christmas is to celebrate the birth of our Lord. It is a time for love and family, and that is the true meaning of Christmas.

New year's resolutions

The year 1991 is almost over - and a good riddance, too. It wasn't a year many people will wish to remember. Too much of it was dominated by events we'd just as soon forget -- the GST, a recession that shows no sign of loosening its grip as we enter 1992, a constitutional crisis that dragged on until we were jaded by politicians crying wolf at the expense of yet another Royal Commission or constitutional committee. Will 1992 be a similar year? We shudder to think so, and yet, it could be if we don't resolve to make it different. Here are some resolutions you might consider:

1. Let's quit complaining.

Last year, we complained about the GST, politicians, the constitutional crisis, Quebec, the recession, high taxes, the high cost of everything, extravagant governments and the weather.

Did it do any good? Did it make us feel any better? The answer is no on both counts. So why bother with something that does no good and only makes you feel worse? We're not.

2. Let's buy something.

If we wait for the recession to be officially declared over to start spending again, the problem will simply keep feeding on itself. So let's buy something. But let's not buy just anything to get this country out of its recession. Let the peddlers of shoddy goods and services, of gag gifts, cheap gewgaws and extravagant nonsense, go bust. We want things that are sturdy and well-made and make sense. Things with value and quality. Things worth buying -- or we won't buy.

3. Let's buy it locally.

So you came back from across the border loaded down with goods that cost you less than here. Did those shopkeepers pay any taxes towards your local government or schools? Did they support any local minor hockey teams? Did they make donations to the local United Way? Did they provide employment to anybody from here? Did they spend the money you gave them in the stores of other shopkeepers here in Quinte? Of course not. Let's shop locally no matter what the cost. We can't afford not to

4. Let's give something back to the community. Do you hope for a blessed 1992? Then be a blessing, starting with your own community. Dig a little deeper on behalf of those less fortunate or give some of your time and talents. It's a poor man, indeed, who cannot afford time for his own community.

Supports the queen

I want to take this opportunity to sincerely thank Quinte MPP Mr. Hugh O'Neil for his defense of the monarchy.

To my knowledge, Mr.
O'Neil is the only MPP who had the integrity and the fortitude to demand that the NDP government reinstate the oath of allegiance to the Queen for all police officers.

Ever since I've been a kid the monarchy has been special to me. We always sang "God Save the Queen" at school. To me, Queen Elizabeth is a beautiful. refined and sincere lady. With her modest, stately dress and friendly, warm smile she has won a place in my heart. My hat is off to you. Keep up the good

But I sure am tired of being prejudiced against because I am not a minority, not crippled, not a woman not French-speaking and so on. I refer of course to various hiring quotas in such places as the Metro Toronto police the provincial government, etc.

I be a French-speaking crippled lady from Haiti, but that I must also be on the welfare rolls! I know that sounds rude, but this situation itself is rude.

I agree that disadvantaged people deserve a break However, it is unfair that and accidentally belong to majority groups should lose

I don't know what the solution is, probably you don't either. But I really think you can do better than this.

If God went on strike...

This poem by an unknown author was submitted by a Belleville reader.

It's just a good thing God above Has never gone on strike Because He wasn't treated fair Or things He didn't like. If He had ever once sat down
And said, "That's it -- I'm through,
I've had enough of those on earth
So this is what I'll do. "I'll give my orders to the sun -Cut off your heat supply,
And to the moon -- give no more light
And run those oceans dry. en, just to really make it tough And put the pressure on,

Turn off the air and oxygen Till every breath is gone."

Do you know, He'd be justified If fairness was the game, For no one has been more abused Or treated with disdain Than God -- and yet He carries on Supplying you and me With all the favors of His grace And everything -- for free. Men say they want a better deal And so on strike they go But what a deal we've given God To whom everything we owe. We don't care whom we hurt or harm To gain the things we like. But what a mess we'd all be in If God should go on strike.

Australia, California, the Belgian Congo and back to the Klondike. In 1896, Dawson City was larger than Winnipeg and Vancouver. Harry worked long and hard attempting to discover gold, but the Klondike never gave up its riches to Harry Oakes.

Harry heard rumors about gold around Swastika, Ont., and that was enough for him to pull up stakes in the Klondike and try his luck at yet another location. He had his doubts. Gold in any worthwhile quantities had never been found in Ontario.

In 1911, Harry, with exactly $2.65 in his pockets, was refused credit to purchase the essentials necessary for him to stake out claims in the bush near Kirkland Lake.

That's when he met Tom and George Tough, two prospectors looking for action. Harry cooked a deal. The brothers Tough would finance the Irip in return for half of anything found. The claims were staked and the Tough Oakes Mine came into existence. Within months, gold was found, but Harry, with a singleness of purpose, alterneted to obtain financing in order to develop his own mine. He found it more difficult rasing funds than it had been to find gold in the first place.

Quest for funds

Harry kept on prospecting on his own, employing one man, miner Ernie Martin, to tend his claims when he headed south in his ongoing quest for funds. When Harry returned after one such trip, Ernie was jumping with joy. They had struck gold. Harry incorporated his new find under the name of Lakeshore Mines Ltd. and went about issuing shares. Meanwhile, he sold his share of Tough Oakes for $230,000.

SIR HARRY OAKES — Prospector's death remains a mystery after nearly 50 years.

Harry built a fine chateau in Kirkland Lake and another home in Niagara Falls, complete with his own private airport. He loved to look over the Niagara River, perhaps contemplating the turn of fortune which had cataputted him from a man with $2.65 in his pocket to one who was lord and master of Oak Hall.

Those around Niagara Falls who still remember Harry speak fondly of him. He had a large staff and was, from all accounts, pleasant and fair to them. He gave generous gifts of land to the community and today you can walk in formal gardens donated by Harry.

In 1930, when the Bennett Conservatives came to power, they taxed Harry $250,000 on gifts he had

When he learned that there was no income tax in the Bahamas, he moved there with his family. Once in Nassau, Harry didn't waste any time purchasing one of the largest homes on the island. The man who used to work until his hands bled now mixed with millionaires, Harry's closest friend on the Island was Harold Christie, whose main aim was to develop tour sim in the Bahamas.

By 1939, Harry and Eunice had five children, Nancy, Sidney, Pitt, Harry and Shirley, The war raging in Europe was a faraway thing. It didn't affect he social set in the Bahamas one little bit. Harry gave so generously to British charities that he was knighted. He became Sir Harry Oakes.

This week O Pee Chee.

O Pee Chee has more experience, knowledge and moxey about hockey cards than all of the other companies combined. And yet, over the last couple of years, collectors have tended to ignore O Pee Chee. Traditional in nature, the cards simply don't reflect the pizzazz of the upstarts. Upper Deck, for example has card #326 Troy Mallette sitting in the dressing room bare chested! Yikes! Or card #54 Pavel Bure on rollerblades! Or card #267 Mogilny on-the golf course, ready to putt.

Executives at O Pee Chee would cringe at the thought of such cards in their set.

Other manufactures jam Beckett's Collectors World and all the other guides with product promotions. Not O Pee Chee

Nor does O Pee Chee correct its error cards, as do most Certainly, the onslaught of competition has spurred O Pee Chee on to a more aggressive position. This year's set is large by O Pee Chee's own standards (528 cards) and the wax packs contain two sub sets not available i factory sets. Set #1-10 draft choices of the San Jose Sharks Set #2 -56 Russian Players! A bit much, to say the least.

The cards in the set are vibrant and informative. Complete factory sets are now available at Canadian Tire $22. Don't ignore it!
